ALLEN, DISMISSING COUNSEL, PREPARES TO PLEAD OWN CASE

Denials of Requests for Another Trial Board Prompt Action.

FEES BEYOND POWER TO PAY, HE ASSERTS

Ousted Policeman Avers He Can Not Accept Services Gratis.

CALLS EFFORT FUTILE BUT PLANS DEFENSE

Plea of Doyle for Civilian Group to Try Him Also Is Rejected.

Policeman Robert J. Allen, suspended Eighth Precinct patrolman, stated last night that he would go before the Police Trial Board tomorrow and make his own defense against the charges of insubordination.

In a letter to one of his attorneys, H. Ralph Burton, the suspended policeman stated that in view of repeated denials of their request for an impartial trial board, it was useless for the attorney to waste his time on the case.

Allen made it plain, however, that he intended to make a vigorous fight against the charges in his own way.

This decision was made by Allen after Capt. Louis Stoll, chairman of the police board, had denied the request of his attorneys for permission to examine members of the board on their impartiality and fitness to try the case.

Repeated Rebuffs Cited.

"In view of the repeated denials on the part of the officials of the District of Columbia having to do with the Police Department to accede to any requests on my part which would assure me of an impartial trial," Allen's letter stated, "I can not conscientiously accept your services in defending me before the Police Trial Board."

Allen further stated: "It is perfectly clear that any decision which may be reached by the board must be based upon an interpretation of my letter to Maj. Henry G. Pratt, and in my opinion, it is perfectly useless to appear before that board if it is constituted of police officials, particularly when they absolutely refuse to permit an examination upon their voir dire; a right which is scorded to every person in either civil or criminal cases and one which the courts have repeatedly stated is a matter of right."

Has No Money for Counsel.

"Had it been decided by the Commissioners to give me a board which I would feel was impartial, there would have been a basis for making a defense, but I do not feel at liberty to ask you and Mr. Tench T. Marye to devote your time in which seems to be perfectly futile effort, because I am not in a position to pay for your services unless there was at least a chance of my being restored to duty, which would enable me to pay you, and while it is true you have offered to proceed regardless of that, I can not conscientiously permit you to do so."

In making the letter public, Burton said there was nothing that he and Marye could do but accede to Allen's request. His statement follows:

"I understand quite fully how Allen feels about his case, especially after the constant refusals on the part of the District officials to go one step out of their way to assure an impartial trial. There is, of course, nothing for us to do but accede to the request he makes, and hold ourselves in readiness to advise him whenever he wishes, as we would not allow finances to stand in the way of doing whatever we could."

Challenges to Be Passed On.

In his letter denying the request of Allen's attorneys for right to examine members of the police board on their fitness to try the case, Capt. Stoll pointed out that the chairman of the trial board would pass on challenges made against any member of the board.

Since Allen has decided to appear before the board without counsel, and the police trial rules requires that challenges shall be made 48 hours in advance of the trial, it is likely he will plead his case before the board, composed of Capt. Stoll, Capt. C. P. M. Lord and Capt. W. E. Sanford.

The request of attorney for Capt. Robert E. Doyle of the Eighth Precinct, who was suspended and charged with Allen, for a special civilian board to try his case, also was denied by the District Commissioners in a special meeting yesterday. The attorneys, Chapman W. Fowler and T. Morris Wampler had asked for the appointment of a trial board, composed of substantial business and professional men of Washington to

Compulsory Traffic Insurance Is Center Of Row in Bay State

Massachusetts Liability Law Has Become Object of Most Vitriolic Onslaught Ever Directed at Motor Vehicle Statute; Large Companies Oppose Authorities.

Following is the third of a series by the automobile editor of The Post dealing with the automobile liability insurance question.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

"Compulsory Liability Insurance."

No standard ever raised above the battleground of motordom approached this one in the fury it unleashed. It was Massachusetts which ventured legislatively into the field of compelling all motor car drivers to carry insurance protection for potential accident victims. The law was enacted in 1926 and went into effect on January 1, 1927.

Immediately it became the object within and outside of the State of the most vitriolic organized onslaught ever directed against a piece of motor vehicle legislation. Equally furious was the defense of the measure by a vastly outnumbered but stalwart army. In the three years' history of the law, the battle has intensified almost from week to week. The pall of smoke that hides the field has made it almost impossible for the unbiased observer to follow the tide of the furious struggle.

Both sides claim gains. Neither seems able to prove them. The only obvious fact is that the law still remains on the statute books. How much that means is problematical.

On one side in the vicious conflict stand the insurance companies, motor clubs whose position is alleged to be identical with that of the insurers because they have the same interest at stake, large operators of motor vehicle fleets, automobile dealers, and certain individual groups among car owners. They are against the law.

Resisting the mighty efforts of the above group to unseat the statute are State officials, safety authorities, business interests, social scientists, and individual motorists and perhaps a majority of non-motorists. Against all attacks on the alleged injustice of the law, the difficulties of its administration, and the host of known abuses it has encountered, they maintain:

That the one and only purpose of the law was to provide compensation for the victims of motor vehicle accidents or their dependents by compelling every car owner to carry liability insurance.

That if it fails to do this, it is because the machinery is constantly being tampered with and not that the principle of the law is wrong.

The mass of car owners in Massachusetts, hearing constantly conflicting arguments, apparently do not know which to believe. They fluctuate this way and that with the changes in the tide of the battle as fought by two general staffs who

RUM EXPOSURE BY BROOKHART SET FOR TODAY

Iowan Promises to Tell Senate of Liquor Flow Here.

SENSATION LOOMS IN CHAMBER SPEECH

Dry Enforcement, Wall Street Drinking to Be Depicted.

ACCORD ANNOUNCED WITH U. S. ATTORNEY

Senator Accepts Explanation of Delay in Summons to Grand Jury.

On the eve of his appearance before the grand jury, Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa, plans to arise in the Senate today and deliver a sensational speech about liquor drinking in Washington.

"I want to give notice," he told the Senate yesterday, "that as soon as I can get the floor tomorrow, I am going to talk on prohibition enforcement in general and Wall street booze parties in particular."

The Iowan's speech will be a prelude to his appearance before the grand jury tomorrow, when he will tell all he knows about a party which he says was given for senators in the Willard Hotel nearly three years ago by a "Wall street gentleman" named Fahey.

May Withhold Names.

That Brookhart will discuss this party in his speech today is certain, but whether he will reveal the names of the senators who were present remains to be seen.

Brookhart also plans to talk about the jailing of three Washington Times reporters for their refusal to testify about speak-easies they frequented, and about other local matters having to do with prohibition.

The Iowa senator made it clear yesterday that there was no conflict between himself and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover. The reason Rover had not called him before the grand jury earlier, he said, was because of the big drive that the former was planning against bootleggers and speak-easies here.

House Drinking Charged.

The brief announcement of Senator Brookhart yesterday was the second reference to liquor made on the floor of the Senate in the course of the day. While the resolution to censure Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, was under discussion, Senator Gillett, of Massachusetts, said that he had frequently seen members of the House of Representatives under the influence of liquor while he was a member of that body.

"But I did not think it was necessary to adopt a resolution of condemnation," Gillett said.

VIRGINIA STATE CONTROL PRIZE IN VOTE TODAY

Democrats Hope to End Coalition That Won 1928 Election.

ANIMATED CAMPAIGN WAGED TO ZERO HOUR

Tickets Are Headed by Governor, Lieutenant, Attorney General.

ENTIRE LOWER HOUSE IS TO BE SELECTED

Managers of Pollard and Brown, Rival Leaders, Predict Victory.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Virginia electorate will say tomorrow who won the debate Democrats and their coalition opponents have staged in Virginia, from the Hustings and through the press, for more than three months. The governorship of Virginia is the major prize for the winner.

While John Garland Pollard, Democrat, and William Moseley Brown, nominee of the coalition of anti-Smith Democrats and Republicans, the rival candidates for governor, were taking advantage of eleventh-hour opportunities to present their claims to the voters today, their supporters continued the vigorous debate that has made the campaign the most spirited since reconstruction. Dr. Brown closed his campaign tonight at Roanoke, while Dr. Pollard spoke at Poquoson.

Byrd Reiterates Denial.

Governor Harry F. Byrd and Henry W. Anderson, Republican leader, resumed today their argument that has continued intermittently throughout the campaign. The governor, in a statement from Winchester, said: "Colonel Anderson uttered an untruthful libel of me when he said I am not a legal voter," in referring to the Saturday night address by Anderson. The Republican leader replied by saying that the Paul-Harrison election contest in 1922 showed "many citizens of Winchester, including Gov. Byrd, had never registered in accordance with the constitution by application to the registrar."

Statements from rival headquarters tonight continued optimistic. Predicting victory, E. E. Johnson, campaign manager for Dr. Brown, said that should Virginia elect the coalitionists "we believe they will purify the national Democratic party and take it out of the hands of Al Smith leaders" and "adjourn machine politics in Virginia for at least four years and perhaps forever."

Unique for Old Dominion.

T. McCall Frazier, from Democratic headquarters, said: "The people of Virginia have enough of absurd

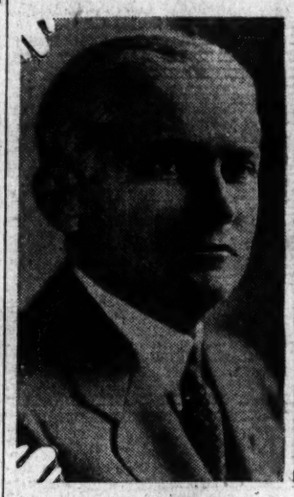
CENSURE OF BINGHAM IS PASSED BY SENATE WITH BLOW SOFTENED



Harris & Ewing.
SENATOR HIRAM BINGHAM.

Underwood & Underwood.
SENATOR GEORGE W. NORRIS.

Absolved by Resolution of Having Acted With Corrupt Motives.

REBUKE IS ADOPTED BY 54 TO 22 VOTE

Norris Complains That Senator Does Not Yet Recognize Guilt.

OBJECT OF ACTION REMAINS UNMOVED

Legislator Is Defiant to End on Employment of Eyanson.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Senate pinned Hiram Bingham's shoulders to the ground today, but it could not make him say "uncle." Even when it tired of its strangle hold and offered to let him up, he insisted that he did not want to get up unless the Senate would let his friend, Charles L. Eyanson, up, too.

Whereupon, the Senate gave it up as an impossible job and let the Connecticut senator up anyhow, adopting a modified resolution of censure for his employment of Eyanson as his secretary and taking him into the secret hearings of the Senate finance committee. It did this by a vote of 54 to 22, with Senator Norris, of Nebraska, complaining "He doesn't yet realize that he has done wrong."

As modified, the resolution censured Bingham's act as "contrary to good morals and senatorial ethics," and tending to bring the Senate into "dishonor and disrepute," but that it was not as the result of "corrupt motives on the part of the senator."

Norris Accepts, But Complains.

The insertion of the corrupt motives absolution, initiated by Senator Glenn, of Illinois, and perfected by Bratton, of New Mexico, was accepted readily by Norris, sponsor of the original resolution, but not uncomplainingly.

"We censure this man," he exclaimed, "for an act which no one has defended and then turn around and say he is the moral genius of the ages."

Bingham, tall of stature and bland of countenance, remained unmoved through it all, sustained in his philosophy that it was all politics, holding to this philosophy, in fact, as even his friends got up and said he had done wrong, even as Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, perhaps his closest personal senatorial friend, put this serious interpretation upon the resolution:

"I may overrate its importance," said Reed in an obviously friendly effort in Bingham's behalf, "but if that resolution were passed about me I would feel that the rest of my life was to be spent under a cloud."

Expresses Sorrow for Bingham.

And at another point the Pennsylvania senator, showing how seriously he considered the resolution, declared:

"I feel sorry for the senator (Bingham) from the bottom of my heart."

And in this light Bingham's friends tried twice to modify the resolution, first Smoot, of Utah, and then Edge, of New Jersey, and were successively voted down, 44 to 32 and 43 to 34. Then when Glenn managed to drive an entering wedge into the Senate's belligerent mood and got Norris to accept an amendment that would absolve Bingham of any corrupt motives, the former Yale professor got up and said he did not want this consideration unless it was extended to Eyanson, too.

Senator Bratton, who had perfected Glenn's amendment so as to make the absolution apply to Bingham alone, said he was prepared to make the distinction between the senator and Eyanson, as "I know the senator

NEW YORK'S MAYOR TO BE NAMED TODAY

Walker and LaGuardia Vie in Claiming Victory as Campaign Ends.

QUIET VOTING EXPECTED

New York, Nov. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—All the shouting is over. Between 6:00 and 6:00 tomorrow, New Yorkers up to the number of 1,552,607 will convert into cold figures the optimistic claims from all headquarters with which the campaign closed tonight.

All law enforcement officials expect a quiet and orderly election, but they have taken full precautions to prevent disorder and fraud. Only in the Italian districts, where LaGuardia is expected to make his heaviest inroads upon Tammany, was feeling running high tonight. Word went out from the wigwam today to all workers in the Italian sections to deliver the vote, but to prevent any violence which might go harshly with the note of austere dignity adopted for the campaign to reelect Mayor Walker, Comptroller Berry and Aldermanic President McKee.

The weather forecast is fair and cooler.

As the entire city is equipped with voting machines for the first time, full reports on the major offices are expected shortly after the polls close at 6 o'clock.

Tammany expects the most overwhelming victory in its history. Some of the most conservative members of its "war board" were predicting today that the plurality for the city ticket would exceed the 550,000 shown by the Tammany canvass.

The final instructions issued by Chief John F. Curry were to carry every assembly district and to elect every Democratic candidate in the city.

Mayor Walker issued no election statement, but went to Harlem in a last effort to hold the Negro vote in line.

Stoutly claiming victory by 200,000, La Guardia brought his energetic campaign to a close with two radio appeals, one in German, and finished at midnight on his "lucky corner," 116th street and Lexington avenue.

Norman Thomas, Socialist, carried on until after 10 o'clock. He made no forecast, but he said he had found "much that has been encouraging in this campaign" and that in the last few days he has detected an "impres-

DARK FUTURE SEEN FOR BRITISH LABOR

Thomas Informs Commons Unemployment Remedy Is Uncertain.

PREMIER GIVEN OVATION

London, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—With Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and the full array of the Labor cabinet on the government benches, the House of Commons today began a week of important deliberations with a speech by J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal and minister of employment, on the all-important question of unemployment.

The blight of unemployment in England will not be wiped out by any magic cure, Thomas said, in a review of the Labor government's efforts to reduce the number of more than 1,000,000 jobless during four months of office.

After MacDonald had received an enthusiastic and noisy welcome, Thomas brought a hush to the house with his outspoken admission that in "some districts of the country there is no hope whatever of work for thousands and hundreds of thousands of our fellow men, no matter what is done."

Nevertheless, he asserted, trade was improving and there was in the long run cause for optimism.

The prime minister's mission in America, Chancellor Snowden's achievements at The Hague reparations conference and Foreign Secretary Henderson's work at Geneva, were real contributions to the solution of the unemployment problem, he said.

"In fact, anything that substitutes peace for war is a contribution," he added.

He warned the English people against "silly and extravagant expenditures" and dwelt on the development of England's export trade as the soundest method for reducing the number of unemployed.

In connection with the latter he explained the difficulties met with in British-Canadian trade. He said that although Britain was Canada's best customer for wheat, the Dominion spent £5 ($25) in the United States for every pound in the mother country. He cited the Canadian wheat pool as a hindrance to the regularity of cargoes across the Atlantic.

He outlined schemes of the Labor government for spending £42,000,000 ($210,000,000) on unemployment

M'PHERSON DEFENSE FUNDS ARE SOUGHT

Friends Start Drive to Aid Bank Clerk in Fighting Murder Charge.

PERSECUTION IS CLAIMED

Charging "persecution for political reasons," friends of Robert A. McPherson, jr., have started a drive to raise money to defend the young bank clerk who now faces an early trial for first-degree murder of his wife, Virginia, whose nearly nude body, strangled with the silken cord of her pajamas, was found on the bedroom floor in her Park Lane apartment on September 14.

Clive Wilson, a close friend of young McPherson, has formulated a written appeal for funds, which is now being circulated throughout the District. A small fund already has been raised, but more is sought. In its reference to "political persecution," the appeal says:

"Through the entrance of Senator Overman and other political forces with purely political motives, McPherson is being severely persecuted because of the favorable publicity resounding therefrom."

The appeal concludes with the admonition:

"Remember, every cent is a lick struck not only for young McPherson, but also for the rights of every citizen of the District."

After its unexpected and unprecedented volubility on Saturday, when Special Prosecutor John E.

EASTERDAY IN TOILS IN $13,000 FORGERY

Man Linked With Arnstein in Noted Case Held for New York Police.

CONVICTED HERE IN 1921

Wilen William Easterday, 38 years old, who figured with the famous Nicky Arnstein several years ago in one of the most sensational bond robbery cases of the last decade, was arrested at 8:15 o'clock last night in his apartment at the Chastleton, Sixteenth and R street northwest, for New York authorities on a $13,000 forgery charge.

Easterday, who gave his occupation as salesman, was taken in custody by Detective Sergts. L. M. Wilson and Carlton Talley, in company with an operative of the Burns Detective Agency, who declared that the man was wanted in connection with a case in New York involving a bank, a member of the American Bankers Association, which the private detective organization represents.

Shortly after the arrest of Easterday, who was transferred from police headquarters to the First Precinct Station, Lieut. W. O. Embrey, night chief of detectives, received from John O'Brien, chief inspector of the New York City Police Department, a wire reading: "Hold Easterday on $13,000 forgery charge." Police declared that Easterday would not be admitted to bond except on a writ of habeas

Stock Mart Trading Again Nears Normal

6,202,930 Shares Change Hands; Recovery of Prices After Opening Wave of Selling Is Checked by Decline Near Close.

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Trading in the New York securities markets returned to nearly normal proportions today after a brief flurry of selling, representing the execution of a vast accumulation of orders over the week-end, took place at the opening of the exchanges. Prices slid off $1 to $12 a share at the opening, rallied moderately before the end of the first hour and then extended their initial declines in a fresh selling movement which carried nearly two score issues down $10 to $25 a share below last week's final quotations. Closing quotations generally were around the low levels of the day.

For the first time in about a fortnight the Stock Exchange ticker tape caught up with the market in the early afternoon trading and printed the final quotation within half an hour after the close. Total sales on the New York Stock Exchange were 6,202,930 shares as against 7,149,390 in last Thursday's abbreviated session and 16,410,030 shares in the record-breaking session last Tuesday.

Governors of the New York Stock Exchange voted before the opening of the market to shorten the daily sessions on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from five to three hours, opening at 10 a. m. and closing at 1 p. m., and to suspend business all day Saturday. Similar action was taken by the New York Curb Exchange and the securities division of the Produce Exchange. All exchanges and banks also are closed tomorrow, election day, a legal holiday in New York.

Despite the fact that the exchanges were closed last Friday and Saturday, this further suspension of business was deemed necessary because brokerage firms found it impossible to catch up with the tremendous accumulation of work that piled up last week, and to give their employes sufficient rest. Most of the leading firms were manned with full staffs, not only on Friday and Saturday of last week, but on Sunday as well, in a strenuous effort to straighten out the many tangles that had developed. Evidence that much still remains to be done was apparent from the order of the stock and curb exchanges requiring all specialists to have an authorized representative on the floor not later than 3:45 p. m. in the closing business sessions of the week, and calling upon telephone clerks of the brokerage houses to report at the same hour.

The New York banking group held no meetings of conferences today, and issued no statements. Spokesmen for the group expressed pleasure at the apparent passing of the hysteria which characterized many of the recent markets, but indicated that the organization would be maintained for the time being, although no further meetings have been called for or are contemplated.

Spokesmen for the group declined to affirm or deny rumors that stock bought for supporting purposes last week had been sold.

The following table illustrates the extent of the recovery from last Tues-

Triangle Traffic Ignored in Design, Says Trade Board

Serious Error Alleged in Failure to Provide for Problem.

Charging the architects and designers of the proposed triangle in the improvement program for Washington with making a serious error in failing to consider the handling of traffic, the board of directors of the Washington Board of Trade recommended immediate investigation of this situation by committees of the organization yesterday afternoon.

The alleged error was brought to the attention of the board of directors by George V. Graham, chairman of the committee on streets and avenues of the Board of Trade. Basing his charges on the report of the committee, Graham said that the most serious error is the proposed closing of Thirteenth street south of Pennsylvania avenue. This will be brought about by the extension of two of the new Jury Returns Its Verdict After Vainly Asking Pardon Promise.

Draguignan, France, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Amid exhibitions of the wildest enthusiasm, Richard Corbett, son of an English father and a French mother, was acquitted today by a jury of charges of murdering his mother to put her out of pain.

Corbett, who would accept no lawyer and spoke in his own defense, frankly admitted that he had shot his mother last May to relieve her sufferings from an incurable case of cancer. He made a dramatic plea to the jury, declaring he felt he had done right even though he had broken the law.

The public prosecutor in a brief and impassioned speech demanded a verdict establishing Corbett's guilt.

"I am not asking for excessive punishment. But this startling case de-from Connecticut, and know him to be an honorable man. I know nothing whatsoever about Mr. Evanson."

"I can say," Bingham replied "that Mr. Evanson is absolutely honorable; that his conduct was above reproach."

Norris Pleads for Understanding.

It was then that Norris, who had already agreed to accept the amendment, declared that the "regrettable part of this whole matter is that he does not yet realize that he has done wrong." Reiterating that he had no personal feeling in the matter, that he introduced his resolution as a matter of duty, to uphold a principle, he declared: "We would have accomplished something of vast importance if we could just make the senator understand that he has done wrong."

But the Nebraskan and the other senators were willing to give it up by then and despite Bingham's statement that he did not want the modification absolving him of corrupt intentions, went ahead and passed it just the same. Or rather, all except Heflin, who apparently remembered Bingham's attitude on the matter of somebody throwing a beer bottle at him up at Brockton, Mass., not so long go, were in this mood. Heflin did not want the Senate to relent one bit.

And when it was all over, the Connecticut senator walked slowly out of the chamber with the other senators just as he might walk out after the Senate had disposed of any other matter that had brought him from the cloakroom in the first instance and subsequently told inquiring newspapermen that he had no intention of resigning either from the Senate or its finance committee. And that statement, he made known, would be his last on the subject of the whole business, his employment by Evanson, the $10,000 a year representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association, or what further he intended to do about it or anything else concerning the matter at all. To him it is a closed incident.

The Final Roll Call.

Republicans for the resolution—Allen, Blaine, Borah, Brookhart, Capper, Couzens, Cutting, Frazier, Glenn, Goldsborough, Jones, La Follette, McNary, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, Pine, Robinson, of Indiana; Schall, Steiwer, Thomas, of Idaho; Vandenberg—23.

Democrats—Ashurst, Barkley, Black, Bratton, Brock, Broussard, Caraway, Connally, Copeland, Dill, Fletcher, George, Harris, Harrison, Hayden, Heflin, Kendrick, McKellar, Pittman, Sandsell, Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Steck, Stephens, Swanson, Thomas, of Oklahoma; Trammell, Tydings, Walsh, of Massachusetts; Walsh, of Montana; Wheeler—32.

Against resolution:

Republicans—Dale, Edge, Fess, Gillette, Golf, Gould, Greene, Hale, Hastings, Hatfield, Hebert, Johnson, Keyes, Metcalf, Moses, Oddie, Phipps, Reed, Shortridge, Smoot, Townsend, Walcott—22.

Paired—Blease, for, Kean against; Hawes for, Sackett unknown; Overman for, Warren unknown.

Bingham voted present.

Voted With Bingham.

Nine Republicans and two Democrats: Allen, Capper, Goldsborough, Jones, McNary, Schall, Steiwer, Vandenberg and Blease and Walsh, of Massachusetts, voted with Bingham's friends in an effort to modify the blow by adoption of Smoot's substitute, which did not mention Bingham by name and which simply disapproved the principle, and again in favor of Edge's substitute which, while mentioning Bingham and Eyanson, eliminated all reference to good morals and senatorial ethics and merely had the Senate disapproving the practice.

On the Edge proposal, in fact, they were joined by Cutting and Stephens, the latter having just come into the chamber. This group, however, all bolted to the other side on the final vote. Senators Hiram Johnson and Oddie, of Nevada, voted with Bingham all the way through. Otherwise, it was only the waning Old Guard that went down the line for him.

Johnson's vote was, of course, a surprise. In the cynical philosophy that has come to him from such long service in the Senate, however, he refused to become outraged at the Bingham incident and didn't have the heart "to hit a man when he is down."

Bingham Defends Himself.

Most of the debate turned upon the Smoot substitute. Bingham, unafraid and unchastised, defended himself.

He even brought up the practice of some senators and members of the House employing members of their family in their offices. Norris subsequently replied that he had no criticism of this so long as the members of the family did the work but if there was an instance of where the work was not done he "would not hesitate" to vote a resolution of censure.

As the debate progressed, in fact, the practice of senators censuring one another at all was questioned and there was vague reference to senatorial "bottles."

"Why, a rumor has it that in the Capitol and in the office building there are bottle that ought not to be there and which members of Congress have there to use," Senator Gillette said, in pointing out that many "improper" things take place, but that the Senate should not be expressing itself except in a "matter of grave importance."

Gillette Feels for Regulars.

Gillette described Bingham's act, however, as "exceedingly indiscrete and indicates an ingeniousness and a lack of appreciation of results." He complained that there was no reason why the coalition should have any grievance against the Connecticut senator, however.

"We are the ones who will suffer," he said, referring to the regulars. "We're the ones to have a grievance." He explained that those opposed to the tariff hold the manufacturer up as a monster who writes the tariff bill, and the Bingham-Eyanson episode will now be cited in support of their claims.

He declared that the Senate should not take the action it was bent upon for "partisan advantage."

"Does the senator think I framed the committee?" asked Norris, referring to his make-up of the subcommittee that made the lobby investigation.

Gillette replied that in naming the committee Norris did not have Bingham in mind, of course, but that he had only put one "anticoalition" man on it, Robinson, of Indiana.

"Does the senator deny the Republicanism of the senator from Idaho (Borah) or does he say he was unfair or that there was anything wrong in putting him on the committee?" Norris asked.

Analyzes Committee Workings.

Gillette replied that "that is not the point at all," but to his way of thinking the committee should have been composed of three coalition members and two anticoallion, instead of four and one as it is. He simply brought this in, he contended, to show that if he were a captious sort he, too, could be criticizing and to point out that the senators should not be too critical of each other.

Norris replied, however, that he presumed the Senate wanted the facts and the accomplishments of his committee justified his naming it. Furthermore, he said, the facts were unchallenged, regardless of what kind of a committee got them. He denied that there was any partisanship in it.

"The senator from Connecticut," he said, "will not accept your apology. He says, 'No; what I did was right. I am not apologizing for it.'"

He described Smoot's substitute as an "apology to the country and the speech of the senator from Massachusetts as an apology to the Senate."

Calls Evidence Undisputed.

"The senator from Connecticut did not tell the committee about that $1,000 check," he said, referring to a check that Bingham sent Eyanson, purportedly for his work with Bingham, but which Eyanson would not cash. "He gave them no information that he did not think was already public, but they had to worm it out of him and worm it out of Eyanson until the facts came out.

"It is no defense to say that the chairman of judiciary committee appointed the wrong subcommittee. The senator from Connecticut has not disputed the evidence, he has not contradicted the facts which were brought out, and yet the answer is that the chairman ought to have appointed stand-pat members on that committee."

Senator Norbeck, of South Dakota, interrupted to observe that he "did not understand why the Republicanism of the senator from Idaho was questioned—the senator who did not only save the West for the party, but went down and rescued Massachusetts when the adjoining States went for Al Smith and the senator from Massachusetts sat on the platform cheering him."

Criticism Called Premature.

Borah subsequently suggested with a wicked gleam in his eye that it was Bingham's second mistake to charge that the committee was packed against him. "It implies," said Borah, "that if the committee had been made up of regulars they would either have smothered the facts or they would have failed to bring out the facts. We should get off of that proposition."

Reed, when it came his turn, agreed that the "criticism of the committee had been premature."

Bingham's first mistake, Borah said, "was to have employed Eyanson."

"I believe," he said, "that the senator from Connecticut feels in his heart that it was a mistake."

"He didn't indicate any such feeling in his heart by his statement," Senator Dill interjected.

"The senator from Connecticut is under criticism and under fire," Borah replied, "and I can well understand that he may not be conscious of just how he would feel if the situation were different."

When Senator Cole Blease had his turn, he said it was his understanding that the lobby subcommittee had been packed, not against Bingham because it could not have anticipated running across him, but to "make a case against the tariff."

Caraway After Blease.

When Caraway, of Arkansas, got after him about this, he took a dogged stand:

"Well, that was my impression and I am entitled to my impression. Every senator is entitled to his own views and I will defend mine either on or off the floor."

He warned the Senate that adoption of the resolution would not do anything but solidify Bingham in his State. He recalled the time the Senate censured "Pitchfork" Ben Tillman for fighting on the floor. He kept coming back up here; so, too, did "Pres Brigs" as Blease enunciated it, who resigned from the House while facing a censure for fighting and who was overwhelmingly reelected.

"Nobody can bring disrepute upon me except myself," Blease said referring to the language of the resolution.

Blease Deprecates Criticism.

Blease made it very feelingly known that he did not like this business of senators criticizing one another.

"I understand that the grand jury will be informed tomorrow about every man who takes a drink," he lamented, referring to Senator Brookhart's forthcoming appearance before the inquisitorial body.

Senator Gould, of Maine, who knows the wrath of the Senate himself, brought down the house, so to speak, when in heated answer to Senator Wheeler's taunts that some member of the Old Guard defend Bingham's act, he exclaimed:

"He made a very fair and square statement just what he done and why he done it."

Wheeler's taunts brought Reed to his feet.

Explaining that he thought Bingham's accusation that the committee was packed was "premature," he said it was "probably based upon the fact that the members of the committee had handled him very roughly, according to the newspapers and without that courtesy that he expected from its membership."

Terribly Serious, Says Reed.

Bingham's act was "regrettable, unwise and very much to be deplored," Reed said, "but when the Senate collectively finds a verdict of guilty on an act against good morals, of an act against the honor of the Senate, it is a terribly serious thing."

Many unpleasant things occur about the Senate every day, he said. "We hear little sneering remarks, perhaps, from individual colleagues or individual critics," but he contended that to pass such a resolution as was proposed was going too far. He cited Bingham's war record.

All of the senators, foe and friend alike, assured Bingham that no one suspected him of dishonesty, but Senator George, of Georgia, contended that it was necessary to specify him in the resolution because a "public quality" in senators transcends personal considerations.

It was out of these expressions of personal high regard that the modifying note finally came.

Bingham Strikes Back.

"In the first place," Bingham said in defending himself, "it is claimed that the employment of Mr. Eyanson was contrary to good morals. It is difficult to know exactly what is meant by this expression * * * but if it means anything at all it must mean that there was something in this employment which was immoral in the sense of being dishonorable or corrupt. To this charge I plead not guilty. There was nothing in his employment which was dishonorable or corrupt. Not one dollar of the public money was wasted. Not a single taxpayer's dollar was employed for any sinister purpose. I did not profit to the extent of one dollar by any part of this transaction. It happens that I have not a single dollar invested in any of the Connecticut companies seeking an increase in tariff rates, which might be presumed to be represented by an official of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association. Not a penny of the public money stuck to my fingers nor to the fingers of Mr. Eyanson. On the contrary, whatever he received while on the Government pay roll was turned over to the clerk who continued to perform the same functions in my office as he had done previously and as he has continued to do since. There was nothing about the transaction that was dishonorable or corrupt. The Connecticut Manufacturers Association did not seek any unfair advantage. In loaning me one of their highly paid officials they did so at my request in order that I might secure that person in Connecticut who was best posted on all sides of the tariff problem. * * *

"Now let us take the second point. It is claimed that his being placed on the rolls of the Senate was contrary to Senatorial ethics. It is fair to assume, Mr. President, that the expression 'Senatorial ethics' relates to what is considered by Senatorial practice to be right or wrong. Every profession has its ethics. There are what is known as newspaper ethics. There are what is known as business ethics. There are what is known as the ethics of the medical profession. This action of mine in placing Mr. Eyanson on the Senatorial rolls is called contrary to Senatorial ethics." Again, Mr. President, I plead not guilty."

He explained that every senator is given four clerkships and that he is permitted to allot them or employ them as he sees fit.

Cites Employment of Kin.

"There is no restriction," he said, "on who should be appointed or how he or she shall be employed. That is the custom of the Senate. That is the nature of senatorial ethics so far as these positions are concerned. According to senatorial ethics no senator is to be criticized if he chooses to place members of his family in these clerical positions. He is not to be accused of nepotism if he appoints cousins, nephews, nieces, sons or daughters in these positions. He is not accused of doing something contrary to senatorial ethics if he uses one of these positions to pay a salary to the wife of his chief clerk, who herself does nothing directly for the Government but indirectly serves the senator and his constituents by helping to keep her husband well and happy and enabling him to give better service to the senator and his constituents. According to business ethics such employment might be regarded askance but it should be remembered that according to Senatorial ethics these four clerical positions have always been considered to be part of the perquisites of a Senator to be used by him in whatever manner he deems to be best for the interest of his constituents.

"The third charge is that my action tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute, Mr. President. In order for this action to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrespect it must have had some sinister motive and must have been directed against the interest of the people of the United States.

Sought Information Only.

"Obviously, it is felt by those who favor this resolution that my motives in this action were evil, or else that the action itself had resulted in some public calamity, or was adverse to the public interest. Mr. President, I do not believe that those who have done me the honor of listening to, or of reading my previous statements, will accuse me of having had dishonorable or unpatriotic motives. My sole desire was to secure the best possible information on a difficult and intricate subject, particularly as it related to the people who elected me to the United States Senate."

The resolution that was adopted follows:

"Resolved, That the action of the Senator from Connecticut, Mr. Bingham, in placing Mr. Charles L. Eyanson upon the official rolls of the Senate and his use by Senator Bingham at the time and in the manner set forth in the report of the subcommittee of the committee on the judiciary (Report No. 43, Seventy-first Congress, first session), while not the result of corrupt motives on the part of the senator from Connecticut, is contrary to good morals and senatorial ethics and tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute, and such conduct is hereby condemned."

Senate Works on Tariff Determined on Speed

(Associated Press.)

Determined to reduce wrangling over secondary rate changes to a minimum, the Senate returned to consideration of the tariff bill yesterday after devoting four hours to the Bingham case and approved both increases and decreases in duties affecting commodities in the chemicals and earths schedules.

Informal conferences looking to speeding action on the measure continued but no definite future program was forthcoming. All sides reiterated determination to hasten debate, however, in the hope of passing a bill before the special session ends with this month.

Principal arguments yesterday revolved around the proposal of the finance committee majority to retain the existing 6 cents a pound duty on synthetic camphor, a product used in the manufacture of pyroxylin or nonshattering glass. The house bill provided a cut in this rate to 1 cent

DAWES AND HOOVER TO TALK NAVY CUT

Ambassador to Give Data Gleaned in London to President Today.

ENVOY TO SEE STIMSON

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover and Charles G. Dawes, American Ambassador to Great Britain, will meet today for the first time since the former Vice President initiated the conversations with Prime Minister MacDonald out of which grew the invitations for the five-power naval limitation conference in London next January.

The ambassador, accompanied by Mrs. Dawes, will arrive early today from Chicago and will be a guest at the White House until Thursday evening, at which time he will proceed to New York en route to London to resume his duties.

Stimson to Be Seen.

Mr. Dawes will confer also with Secretary Stimson, who is to head the American delegation to London. Besides the Secretary of State, Ambassador Dawes and Senators Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Robinson, of Arkansas, the delegation will consist of one or two members who will be selected by the President after his talks with the ambassador.

The conversations between the Chief Executive and his personal representative at the court of St. James are expected to cover the naval limitation subject, with Mr. Dawes making a personal report on his long negotiations with the British prime minister.

negotiations with the British Prime Minister.

An agreement on naval parity between the United States and Great Britain by 1936 climaxed these negotiations, but details as to how this is to be applied to cruisers remain to be worked out at the London conference.

Several Proposals Made.

During the talks between Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Dawes, several propositions were put forward, with the latest and apparently the most acceptable allotting 339,000 tons of cruisers to Great Britain and some 40,000 tons less to the United States. Parity would be reached through a greater ratio of 10,000-ton, 8-inch gun cruisers for the United States.

These figures may be reduced at the London meeting of the delegates of the five powers. Such a reduction is expected to be urged by the Japanese delegation, which will arrive here about the middle of next month for conversation with Secretary Stimson before continuing to the British capital.

Petition Rejected To Unseat Hoover

Countess Loses in Move to Set Aside Result of Last Election.

Boston, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Federal court here has rejected a petition to to set aside the last presidential election which placed Herbert Hoover in the White House, it became known today.

The author of the petition was Countess Ida von Clausen whose suit against the late President Theodore Roosevelt brought her into prominence several years ago.

As a basis for her latest action, the countess set forth that while in Italy her passport was seized by the Italian government, thus preventing her return to this country to vote for Alfred E. Smith. Had she been able to return and tell her story of the political situation, she averred, Smith would have been elected.

Defendants named in the petition included President Hoover, all officers of the State Department, prominent figures in the Catholic and Protestant churches and persons of lesser prominence in the public life of the Nation. The court ruled that it was without jurisdiction.

Pilot Is Drowned Rowing to Plane

Boat Overturns Going Out to Sandbar on Which He Had Landed.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Capt. A. K. Mims, 35, pilot for the Spartan Aircraft Corporation, Tulsa, Okla., drowned in the Mississippi river near here today when the small boat in which he and two companions were rowing to a sand bar on which Mims had landed his plane, capsized.

The two other persons in the boat, C. H. Gossett and E. McNeil, of Paduca, Ky., saved themselves by clinging to the overturned boat, but Mims, hampered by his heavy flying suit and boots, sank.

Mims, with Gossett as a passenger, flew to Memphis late yesterday with a propeller to replace the shattered blade of another ship. In the dusk they were unable to locate the Memphis sandbar and landed on the sandbar.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at 10 a. m. and recessed at 6:05 to 10 a. m. today.

Adopted, 54 to 22, a resolution condemning Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, for employing a representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association as his aid in writing the tariff bill.

Bingham announced that he had no intention of resigning.

Senator Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa, announced that he would speak today on prohibition and "Wall street booze parties."

Senator Gillette (Republican), of Massachusetts, said he had frequently seen members of the House of Representatives under the influence of liquor, but that nobody had ever suggested that they be censured.

Continued consideration of the tariff bill and acted on several minor amendments.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and recessed at 12:04 to noon Thursday without transacting any business.

GREEN ISSUES CALL TO UNIONIZE SOUTH

Presidents of 105 Bodies Asked to Send Men to Session, Nov. 14.

GREAT DRIVE PLANNED

(Associated Press.)

President Green of the American Federation of Labor yesterday called upon presidents of 105 labor unions to send representatives to Washington November 14 to plan intensive organization campaign in the South.

"There is a basis for the social unrest and industrial discontent which is so apparent in the South and which is attracting attention of the Nation," Green and Secretary Morrison said in the letter addressed to the various unions affiliated with the federation.

"The officers and members of the American Federation of Labor must respond to the appeal of the Southern workers for assistance and help. We must give to them and to the industrial situation in the South the constructive service which the American Federation of Labor is prepared to give. Let us accept the challenge which comes to us from those extremists among employers of the South who classify the American Federation of Labor as communist and destructionist."

Calling of the conference was an aftermath of the Toronto convention of the federation last month, at which recent events in the Southern textile industry were recalled and President Green instructed to press for unionization of workers in this section.

Green last week announced the postponement of the sixth Pan-American Labor Congress because "the very existence of the organized labor movement" was threatened by conditions in the Southern States.

Pointing out that more than a million workers are employed in the region where the campaign is to be conducted, Green said at that time "the labor movement in the South finds itself confronted with one of the most gigantic campaigns ever launched by employers to prevent organized labor from doing its duty."

Wales to Resume His Tour in Africa

Prince Plans to Arrive in Cape Town in January. Will Go Hunting.

London, Nov. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Prince of Wales is planning to resume his African tour cut short last winter by the illness of his father, King George V, now that the latter is making good progress toward complete recovery, it is stated here tonight.

According to present arrangements, the prince will start his visit in January and remain in Africa about six weeks. He will go first to Cape Town, where he will stay at Government House as the guest of his uncle, the Earl of Athlone, governor general of South Africa, and the Countess of Athlone.

According to tentative plans, the prince will sail from Southampton in the steamer Kenilworth Castle on January 3 and land at Cape Town three weeks later. After a few days there he will go up country to the big game districts for some hunting. It is expected he will be back in England about the beginning of April.

Police Cleared in Death Of Man Following Raid

LeRoy Jackson, colored, 26 years old, was held yesterday by a coroner's jury to have died as the result of natural causes, not from a beating by two policemen during a raid at his home on Elm near Fourth street northwest. Dr. Arthur Curtis and Dr. W. L. Tignor, who treated the man, testified Jackson told them he had been beaten.

Detectives William Laflin, W. E. McEwen and James Casey, of the Eighth Precinct, who conducted the raid, denied that Jackson was abused. An autopsy by Dr. Joseph D. Rogers, deputy coroner, revealed that death resulted from gland trouble.

SON OF PUBLISHER MISSING IN CANADA

Family of W. J. Scripps Has Reward Posted; Police Search in Vain.

WAS ON BUSINESS TRIP

Detroit, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Definite fear for the safety of William J. Scripps, 24-year-old president of Gliders, Inc., manufacturers of gliders and son of W. E. Scripps, publisher of the Detroit News, became manifest today as a search for the young man by Detroit and Canadian police continued to be fruitless.

Missing since October 23, when he was last seen in Windsor, Ont., his associates now believe that either he has met with an accident which prevents him from communicating with his home or that he is being detained by force.

Did Not Take His Auto.

Business trips took Scripps across the river frequently to Windsor and the Walkerville Airport. Private investigation by the family revealed that he went to Windsor two weeks ago to meet Oskar Kuhn, of his company. Kuhn was living at the Prince Edward Hotel and Scripps was in Kuhn's quarters that afternoon. He did not say where he was going when he left the hotel at 8 o'clock in the evening, but Kuhn later found a note on the dresser in his room which seemed to indicate that his employer would return. He failed to do so, however.

That Scripps planned no extensive trip when he went to Windsor seems clear by the fact that he did not take his automobile. Nor did he have any great amount of money with him. He cashed two checks totaling $75 with the hotel during the afternoon. Out of this money he paid Kuhn's hotel bill.

Not at Air Field.

Scripps is intensely interested in aviation, and when he did not reach home or report at Lake Orion, the first assumption was that some business had detained him unexpectedly.

An inquiry was more or less unfruitful. It revealed only that the glider manufacturer had gone to Windsor, that he had been at the Prince Edward, and that he had quitted the hotel at 8 p. m., no one knew for where.

It was announced through a spokesman for the family that a "suitable reward" would be paid for information leading to the finding of young Scripps.

Tom Mix Forces Trial In Income Tax Charge

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Two Federal indictments against Tom Mix, screen cowboy, charging conspiracy to defraud the Government of income taxes, were dropped today after he pleaded not guilty to a third indictment in which he was charged with evading payment of approximately $100,000 taxes by making false returns for the years 1925, 1926 and 1927.

February 18 was set for his trial on the latter.

Singer Asks $100,000 For "Has Been" Remark

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Pasquale Amato, baritone, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera Co., today filed notice of a suit charging May Beegle, Pittsburgh promoter, with slander. His counsel said the singer would ask $100,000 for injuries to his reputation.

Miss Beegle was alleged to have referred to Amato as "a has-been." The baritone is here to sing as guest star at a Pittsburgh Opera Co. performance.

Death Plot Case Dismissal Asked

State Would Drop Charges in Alleged Slaying for Insurance Money.

Detroit Nov. 4 (A.P.).—A motion for the dismisal of charges of assault with intent to kill pending against Mrs. Grace M. Wood, William Thompson and Taylor Pierce, alleged plotters against the life of Ralph A. Wood, Wyandotte real estate dealer, was made today by James E. Chenot, prosecuting attorney.

Wood, Cecil Holt and Herbert L. Sullivan were acquitted last summer of charges of assault with intent to kill in connection with the fatal shooting of Ambrose L. Hagerty, at a police ambush arranged to catch alleged plotters against Wood's life.

Holt, who acted as informant for Wood and the police and was supposedly in the confidence of the alleged plotters accused Mrs. Wood of planning to kidnap Wood and "take him for a ride" to enable her to collect his life insurance.

Shoppers Felled By Ammonia Gas

Providence Marketers Are Driven Into Streets by Fumes.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Scores of men and women were sent reeling into the streets, and nearly 400 other employes and customers were more or less affected by gas fumes today when a compresser head of the ammonia gas refrigerating system of the Providence Public Market Co. broke, sending the suffocating fumes through the five-story building. Although the occupants scrambled for doors, there was no panic.

Pouring out of the building, the gas hung close to the ground, affecting the crowds at the scene watching gas-masked firemen search the building for possible victims.

The area about the large building was put under police guard for several hours to prevent passersby and curious crowds from being overcome by the fumes, which hung in the rainy air almost without dissipation.

One man, unidentified, was taken to a hospital in a critical condition.

Jockey Seriously Hurt In Plunge From Horse

Thrown from a horse he was exercising yesterday at the Benning Race Track, John Hula, 21 years old, an apprentice jockey, was seriously hurt. He was taken to Casualty Hospital, where it was found he had bitten off the tip of his tongue in the fall and had suffered a fracture of the skull and a broken jaw.

The horse Hula was riding is owned by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, who was the late President Woodrow Wilson's physician.

Missing Explorers Found By Radio Plea to Eskimos

McAlpine Expedition, Lost for Eight Weeks, Reported Safe on Northernmost Rim of Canada, as Planes Scour Icy Wastes in Search of Party.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Believed to have been found by wandering Eskimos called to the search by the voice of the radio, Col. C. D. H. McAlpine and his party of seven prospectors, who have been missing for eight weeks in the Arctic barrens, were safe tonight at Cambridge Bay, away up on the northernmost rim of Canada.

From Bathurst Inlet Radio Station, on the north coast—1,000 miles due north of Regina, Saskatchewan—was flashed to the search headquarters late this afternoon the following message:

"Fort James Station, at Gjoahaven, King William Island, advised me 10 a. m., mountain time, that McAlpine party arrived safely at Cambridge Bay, across the ice from Dease Point. Fort James will forward me instructions as soon as possible."

Col. McAlpine, head of the Dominion explorers, and his party went into the north country on an aerial exploration trip. When they failed to return a widespread search was organized.

For the last three weeks the base for the search had been at Bathurst Inlet. From there four airplanes had been vainly scouring the surrounding territory.

Persons familiar with the north country tonight speculated on how the news was sent out of Cambridge Bay. Permanently anchored at Cambridge Bay and frozen into the ice is the Maud, a ship which the explorer Amundsen had built with the idea of allowing it to freeze in and then float over the north pole in the ice drift. The Maud now is a Hudson's Bay station, and young Jack McKinnon, who hails from Vancouver, British Columbia, is living there.

At one time a first-class radio set had been installed on the Maud. The set has been shut down, however, and the wireless operator now is away on a furlough.

But Young McKinnon is still on the job, and he has flashed awkward, amateurish messages when the occasion demanded to the Port James, the Hudson's Bay Co. steamer now frozen in at a tiny haven on King William Island, off the north side of Canada. The Fort James was mentioned in the radio message this afternoon. Some observers believed that from McKinnon, aboard the Maud, first news of the safety of the party was sent out.

From Cambridge Bay and King William Island the Hudson's Bay Co. sent out three weeks ago radio messages to Eskimos off the north coast that McAlpine and his party were believed to be marooned in that territory. Each evening during the last three weeks the messages have been repeated. Many of the north coast Eskimos have radio sets and understand English.

It is believed that Eskimos found the McAlpine party somewhere along the north coast, even as the airplanes were vainly hunting for them, and conducted them across the ice to Cambridge Bay.

You can always start the day with a smile if you turn to the page of comics in The Washington Post. Some of America's most famous cartoon characters have their laughable adventures there every day.

Buffalo Election Centers Around Dog's Biting of Girl

Daughter and Son-in-Law of Mayor Support His Opponent After Official Refuses to Kill Animal That Attacked His Grandchild.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—A chow dog and a 4-year-old child are prominent figures in the mayoralty contest which will be decided at the polls here tomorrow.

The chow dog belongs to Mayor Frank X. Schwab, a Republican who won the Democratic primary and lost the nomination of his own party. The baby is the mayor's grandchild, daughter of Mrs. Albert E. Gunther, the mayor's eldest daughter.

Two years ago, while the Gunthers were visiting at the mayor's house, the chow dog attacked the child, tearing her scalp so severely that eight stitches were necessary. The Gunthers wanted the dog destroyed. The mayor refused after having the animal examined by a veterinary. This caused a rift in the family that has not been healed.

Gunther, this fall, espoused the cause of Charles E. Roesch, Mayor Schwab's opponent for mayor. Following the appearance of Mrs. Gunther at a Roesch rally, a statement was issued from Mayor Schwab's headquarters outlining the causes of the family row.

Statements followed today from Mr and Mrs. Gunther giving their side of the case and the controversy has become the outstanding feature of the closing hours of the campaign.

Mrs. Gunther said she was taking no part in the campaign, but intended to vote for Roesch "because his campaign has been free from cheapness."

"I feel," she added, "that my father's bringing this family matter into the press now, after an interval of nearly two years, is a cheap political trick. If I felt for a moment that I had been unfair, I would go to my father today. But mine is a justifiable stand. Whether it is victory or defeat for my father tomorrow, I shall not go to him; he will come first to me."

Mayor Schwab said today he was ready to welcome his daughter home at any time and also would welcome his son-in-law back into his good graces.

SUICIDE VIEW AGAIN ENTERS KRAFT CASE

Murder Charge May Topple as Evidence Fails to Back Up Shooting.

GIRL'S MOTHER AT JAIL

Pointe a la Hache, La., Nov 4 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—Possibility that the charge of murder against John McGouldrick, second mate of the Liner Creole, will be nolle prossed tomorrow appeared tonight.

District Attorney Perez, of Plaquemines Parish, had had McGouldrick indicted after the body of Jack Kraft, of New York, a passenger on the Creole, who was supposed to have jumped overboard was found with a supposed bullet hole in it.

But Perez stated tonight that he had only a chain of circumstantial evidence and admitted that the stories told by his two chief witnesses, Ione Orde, or Gloria Rouzer, of New York, and Sam Epstein, a steward on the Creole, were not bearing out the evidence.

Ione Orde was traveling with Kraft as his foster sister. She declared Kraft jumped over the rail. Epstein confirmed her story. Then a body, identified as that of Kraft, was found with what the coroner of Plaquemines Parish, described as a bullet hole in the chest, and the charge of murder was brought against McGouldrick. None of the evidence gathered supported District Attorney Perez's view that Kraft had been shot on the ship and his body thrown overboard. Perez is considering having the body reexamined.

Ione Orde and her mother met here this afternoon in the girl's prison cell.

"Hello, my dear," said Gloria as her mother walked into her cell. 'I am so, so happy to see you."

She flung her arms about her mother's neck. Sobbing, they broke into French.

"I have come to help you out of your troubles," said Mrs. Rouzer, who arrived from New York this morning with Miss Dorothy Frooks, attorney, of New York.

"Why, mother, I have no troubles," Gloria replied.

GGloria, her mother, Miss Frooks, her attorneys from New Orleans and Nicholas Callen, of New Orleans, who was retained by wire during the afternoon by the girl's father, Capt. Leigh Rouzer, of Washington, conferred through the afternoon.

The New Orleans item this afternoon said it had learned from a reliable source that the Rouzers adopted the girl in Washington soon after the World War when she was 10 years old.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

IT WAS the night before Christmas down in Virginia last night and that sadness that inevitably comes at least once in the Yuletide celebration must have been felt by any outsider who contemplated the disappointment that today will bring.

There will be great rejoicing in many homes tonight, of course— most likely those of the Democrats—may be the anti-Smiths—the trees will shine bright in the homes of the victors, there will be merrymaking and plenty of good things to eat.

But the stockings of one side or the other will go unfilled. Think of the keen heartaches that will be theirs.

* * * * *

FOR weks now, anxious little Democrats have looked longingly into their fathers' eyes for definite assurance that Santa Claus would come.

"Tell me, Daddy," they have plaintively asked, "is it true that Santa Claus may not come to see us this year?"

And the grizzled father has tried to quiet his own fears in heaping assurances that what the little fellow has heard is all the bunk, that the same political Santa who has visited periodically all those who were good in the past knows his chosen ones this year. The uncertainty of it has been enough to turn a man's hair gray, something to give them fright.

They have been afraid, indeed, to go out into the political night and look at the sky, for fear there would be some traces of that phenomenon which struck them last year.

That there should ever come a time, in the first place, when one's little child must ask such questions is enough to give mortal man pause, to give him humility in the face of infinite, political things.

* * * * *

IT is the tragedy of the political world. Washingtonians sit around and laugh at the political mess Virginia is in. They can't be aware of what it all means.

Little anti-Smiths, who have never known the political Santa before, have come to expect him this time. For more than three months now their fathers have been faring forth joyfully every day with clean linen and shoes that shined—faring out into the world with the good-by kiss, singing, singing merrily:

"Don't you worry, little child,
"I'll have a job bye and bye."

And now it has come to the point where all the little anti-Smiths in Virginia are expectant. They have hung up their stockings for the first time in their lives, believing with that confidence that a child gives to a father, that this year they are to have something that has gone only to the little Democrats in the past.

* * * * *

IT would seem to be all right for men to go out and fight with other men, to contest for their jobs, if it were not for the heartbreaks that come to the home when they fail. The men are strong and half the time have no serious hope of getting what they go after anyway.

They speak of the coming of Santa Claus in their easy, braggart way with no thought to the children listening in, and they never realize the poignancy of the youngsters' disappointment when no Santa comes.

That is the pity of the Virginia Christmas today. It is too bad Santa Claus can't come to see them all.

VIRGINIA STATE CONTROLLING PRIZE IN ELECTION TODAY

charges and equally nonsensical appeals to prejudice by coalition forces for me to impose upon them a silly prediction of the extra majority which we will receive in the State. The election tomorrow will be decided by reason, not prejudice. That statement alone eliminates our opponents."

The campaign terminating tonight has been unique in Old Dominion history of the past 40 years. Normally Democratic by 50,000 majority until the split in the party during last year's presidential campaign, which brought a Republican victory, Virginia saw the anti-Smith Democrats unite with the Republicans in an effort to take State control from the Democrats. Charges and countercharges have been hurled thick and fast and a controversy between leaders was seldom dropped.

Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, organizer of the anti-Smith Democrats threw his support to Brown in calling for a repudiation of "Raskobism" and leaders of the Democratic party in the State who supported Al Smith for the Presidency.

The bishop did not take the stump in the fight as he did last year, going to Brazil for his Episcopal appointments before the close. "Cannonism" was originated by individual Democrats in criticism of Bishop Cannon as a reply to his use of "Raskobism" and "Raskobian liberalism" in criticism of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

"De Priestism" was another term used, this coming from the circulation of a pamphlet containing pictures of Oscar De Priest, negro member of Congress and his wife, the pamphlet being issued by I. C. Trotman, former anti-Smith committeeman. Republican accusations that Democratic headquarters issued the pamphlet were vigorously denied by Democratic headquarters and the Democratic nominee.

Attorney general and lieutenant governor are also to be elected tomorrow, but have been overshadowed largely by the gubernatorial contest. John R. Saunders, for attorney general, and James H. Price, for lieutenant governor, represent the Democratic party, while Callom B. Jones, Republican, for lieutenant governor, and C. C. Berkeley, anti-Smith Democrat, for attorney general, are candidates of the coalition. The entire lower house of the Legislature and county officers are also to be voted for.

ONE CONVICT KILLED, TWO FLEE IN BREAK

Ohio Prisoner Dies While Posse Follows Trail of Companions.

JAIL GUARD SUSPENDED

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Arthur Brooker, of Findley, Ohio, 23, one of three convicts who made a daring break for liberty over the walls of Ohio Penitentiary today, died in the prison hospital tonight from bullet wounds inflicted by a guard.

The other prisoners, armed with a shotgun and a pistol, were at large, hunted by a posse of 30 policemen and deputy sheriffs. The fugitives were Guy R. Tennent, 32, of Celina, Ohio, and William Miller, 21, of Lawrence County.

Brooker had been serving a life term for first-degree murder. Tennent and Miller were serving 10 to 25 year sentences for robbery.

Trail Is Followed.

A trail leading from the penitentiary walls to the northern rim of the city was followed by the officers, but no clew as to the whereabouts of the prisoners was discovered. A newsboy early this morning reported the men near Upper Arlington, a suburb.

Brooker was found wounded along a building near the wall of which he escaped. A bullet from the pistol of a prison guard had felled him probably when he dropped to the ground from the wall.

Warden P. E. Thomas, after a preliminary investigation, suspended Montgomery, while State Welfare Director Hal H. Griswold ordered inspectors of his department to make an investigation.

Ceiling Chiseled Through.

The trio chiseled through a steel reinforced concrete ceiling of their cell in the new escape-proof block into the attic of the prison and, after working through the building, cut through a brick wall facing the prison walls.

Using ropes knotted from torn bedding, the three men dropped to the catwalk leading to the tower in the southeast corner and there attacked Montgomery, disarming him. They dropped another rope over the wall and slid to the ground, but not before other guards noticed them and opened fire. They returned the fire, several bullets striking the wall of the execution chamber in front of which the guards had taken positions.

Montgomery was unconscious when removed to the penitentiary hospital, but recovered a short time after physicians had taken stitches in his scalp and reset a broken nose.

Brooker was found by guards about four hours after the break.

Tardiness of Justice Halts Supreme Court

Yesterday morning, when Chief Justice William Howard Taft took his seat to call the Supreme Court of the United States to order, he was surprised to find that he did not have a quorum present. The oldest attaches of the court can recall no such situation as that before.

Instead of meeting at noon, the appointed time, the court waited until Associate Justice Stone, who was on the way from his home, arrived. His arrival increased the number to six, a quorum, and all was well. Those absent were Associate Justices Sanford, Sutherland and McReynolds. The delay was for about fifteen minutes.

SLAYER OF MOTHER TO END PAIN FREED

MAN CONFESSED CRIME

velops the tremendously vital question whether society can permit one human being to take the life of another and remain unpunished," he said. He demanded the minimum sentence of five years solitary confinement.

When the jurors, after an hour's deliberation, returned to the crowded and excited courtroom and announced their verdict of "not guilty," men and women rose as one mass of cheering and sobbing humanity.

The judge, whose attitude was sympathetic to the defendant throughout the trial, ordered the courtroom cleared immediately, but the police had a difficult job doing it. There were hundreds of people massed in front of the building.

The trial was the latest in a series of "mercy killings" that have come up in France, in the past few years.

Corbett, who sat with head bowed during the proceedings and took little interest in them, killed his mother on May 9 and then shot himself. He recovered in a hospital and was brought to trial.

In one concession to the tensity of emotion he was experiencing, Corbett summed up his own case to the jury today.

Felt He Did Right.

"Gentlemen, my mother was suffering tortures. The doctors agreed she could not recover. I feel that though I broke the law I did right. I'm willing to pay any penalty you think just. My action would not have been necessary if the state would pass a law enabling doctors to end the suffering of incurables."

The trial presented an interesting legal paradox, being reduced to the point where Corbett insisted he had killed his mother with premeditation and the jury found that he had not.

The judge charged the jury to answer two questions, first, did Corbett kill his mother? Second, did the jury recommend mercy?

After deliberating for half an hour, the jurymen called in the judge and the prosecutor, saying they wished to give a verdict against Corbett but wanted assurances from the judge that the prisoner would be pardoned. The judge replied that it was the prerogative of the president of the republic to pardon a convicted person.

Man's Confession Ignored.

Within the next 20 minutes, the officials again were called to the jury room to suggest a solution which would blame the prisoner but not entail more punishment. This proving impossible, the jury calmly descended into the courtroom and the foreman announced their answer of "Not guilty" to the first question. He said that the prisoner was technically not guilty despite his own confession of guilt, which meant that legally, Corbett had not killed his mother.

In spite of the general satisfaction with the verdict in Draguignan, the town was split into two camps tonight. Everybody pitied Corbett, but many persons felt that the laws that forced the jury to return a verdict of "not guilty" in the face of the evidence, in order to save the prisoner from unmerited punishment, were faulty.

Had the jury answered the first question in the affirmative, the judge would have been forced under the law to sentence Corbett to five years' solitary confinement, even though the jury asked for clemency.

Czechoslovakia Gets Sea Outlet.

Hamburg, Germany, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Czechoslovakia, land-locked state, today secured an outlet to the sea by concluding an agreement with the Hamburg Senate for the lease of certain sections of the harbor here for 99 years.

HAMILTON'S STORY OF SHOOTING IS HIT

Powder Burns Indicate Shots Were Not Fired During Fight, Expert Says.

CLOTHING IS EXHIBITED

Weatherford, Tex., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Sitting forward on the edge of his chair, R. H. Hamilton today watched the jury in his murder trial examine the tan herring bone suit his son-in-law, Tom Walton, jr., was wearing last May 4, when four bullets ended his life in Hamilton's Amarillo law office.

The suit of clothing was introduced while District Attorney Edward Thomerson was on the stand as a state rebuttal witness.

Powder burns on the clothing first entered the testimony today when Steve Ridings, colonel in the Texas National Guard and a police court judge at the time of the shooting, qualified as an expert. He said he judged all bullets which pierced the clothing save one had been fired from a distance of 3 or 4 feet. Four bullets struck the coat, one through the neck, two through the right shoulder and one through the lower right-hand side.

Fired in Fight, Claim.

The defense, through two eyewitnesses, and the defendant, had claimed all shots were fired while Hamilton and the husband of his then 17-year-old daughter, Theresa, a student in the University of Texas, were in a hand to hand struggle, or, as Hamilton described it from the stand, "a moral battle."

Ridings declared the bullets in the .44-caliber revolver which had been introduced as evidence, contained black powder. He based that opinion, he said, on a "ring" around the shells and the odor of the powder in the reception room of Hamilton's law suite when he entered. He added that a bullet fired from that kind of shell from a distance of less than 3½ feet would have powder burned the clothing.

An attempt to impeach the testimony of the defendant was made in rebuttal testimony. Rebuttal witnesses also attacked the eyewitness story of J. W. Burks, another defense witness.

Testifies on Clothing.

Another State witness today was Grady Hazelwood, assistant to Thomeraon in prosecution of the case. Thomerson testified regarding the clothing Walton wore when he was killed, and Hazelwood's testimony bore on a conversation he had with Burks about the killing.

The question of a possible perjury indictment against Burks was broached by Defense Attorney R. E. Underwood while Hazelwood was on the stand. Underwood asked whether a perjury indictment had been returned against Burks. Hazelwood replied that it had not, explaining that the statute of limitations had not expired.

Hamilton's testimony, put into the record within five hours last Friday and Saturday, was attacked by R. E. Coon, a public stenographer, who said Walton visited his father-in-law's office in Amarillo almost a month later than Hamilton had testified. The accused man declared Walton visited his office on March 9 and 30. Coon said he was in the attorney's office on April 25 taking dictation when Walton entered.

Hamilton told Walton to have a seat in an adjoining room and that he would see him "in a minute." Coon declared. As he left the office, the public stenographer testified, he heard Hamilton say: "Come in."

Eyewitness Story Attacked.

Among State rebuttal witnesses who attacked the eyewitness story of Burks, defense witness, were H. L. Gaither, Amarillo police chief at the time of the killing, and M. W. Lemons, foreman of the grand jury which indicted Hamilton.

Numerous rebuttal witnesses declared Walton had a reputation in Amarillo as being a "kind, peaceable and inoffensive" man. The defense established, with each witness, that they had heard only a few persons discuss Walton before the homicide.

BROOKHART TO TALK ON RUM HERE TODAY

"But that was no secret," interjected Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska.

"It was no secret to those there," said Gillett, "but it was a secret to the great American public."

"It was not a secret to those at the Capitol."

Quiz Delay Irks Blease.

Commenting on Senator Brookhart's threat to talk about Wall street "booze parties," Senator Blease (Democrat), of South Carolina, said it held no terror for him because Wall street men wouldn't invite him to their parties anyway.

Blease also took occasion yesterday to express the opinion that the investigation of District affairs authorized in his resolution should be conducted by the full Senate District subcommittee instead of by the Sackett subcommittee.

Night Sessions Urged.

If the full District committee were making this investigation, Blease said, there would not be the delays that have marked the inquiry by the Sackett subcommittee.

Blease pointed out that the chairman of the subcommittee, Senator Sackett (Republican), of Kentucky, has been out of town much of the time since the investigation started, and is now out of town.

He was not criticizing Sackett, Blease said, but simply pointing out how difficult it is to get anything done when an investigation is left to a small subcommittee.

In addition to suggesting that the full committee be assigned to investigate local affairs, Blease also is on record as favoring night sessions for the investigation.

sive awakening to the importance of municipal problems."

His managers claim between 200,000 and 250,000 votes for him, and Tammany concedes him between 100,000 and 150,000. He is expected to be the chief beneficiary of the unorganized, independent vote of both the major parties.

Richard E. Enright, square deal candidate, while he did not concede his own defeat, declared he would keep his party alive after the election as a rallying center for independent voters.

State-Wide Elections In Five Commonwealths

(Associated Press.)

Campaigns of a far more intensive character than generally are conducted in off-year elections ended last night with many of the principal candidates making last minute appeals to the voters in a dozen States in which there will be balloting tomorrow. The only gubernatorial contest was in Virginia.

Mayor James J. Walker, Democrat, of New York City, broke his rule for an election-eve speech to answer his opponents, who number three. Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Republican; Norman Thomas, Socialist, and Richard E. Enright, former police commissioner, and nominee of the Square Deal party.

Candidates in the many other mayoralty contests in Massachusetts, Michigan, Indiana, Kansas, Ohio and Arizona also carried their oratorical efforts down to the last minute for appeal to the voters, thus concluding campaigns which have furnished the usual intensity and bitterness.

Besides their hopes for keeping Virginia from going back to its status of a safely Democratic State, Republicans entertained others for obtaining a majority in the Kentucky Legislature and thus taking complete control of every branch of the State government.

In addition to Virginia and Kentucky, there will be State-wide elections in Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania, a tax limitation amendment being before the voters of the Buckeye State and the selection of judges for State courts resting with the people of Illinois and Pennsylvania.

There was to be a municipal balloting in California in addition to half a dozen other States, while St. Paul furnished the one contest in Minnesota. A change from a commission to a city manager form of municipal government was the issue there.

Self-Defense Plea May Free Wife

Detroit Woman Says She Killed Husband When He Beat Her.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—A plea of self defense which Mrs. Louise Stein made to police today in connection with her confession to stabbing to death her husband, Meyer Stein, veteran croupier in the Ecorse gambling house of "Lefty" Clark, may result in no charges being made against Mrs. Stein, Duncan C. McCrea, assistant prosecuting attorney, said today.

Mrs. Stein admitted she fatally stabbed Stein at 4 a. m. today, when he returned from Ecorse drunk and attempted to beat her because he had lost all his money in a dice game. Whether a homicide charge will be made against her will depend on the verdict of a coroner's jury, McCrea said. Both McCrea and Detective Lieut. John Hoffman, who heard her confession, said they were convinced she acted in self defense.

Stein died while being taken to a hospital. His wife, who reported finding him, told police at first that he had stabbed himself. She said Stein had lost large sums at the Ecorse gambling resort, and on such occasions he always came home drunk. He has a record of 23 arrests on charges of drunkenness, disturbing the peace and frequenting a gambling resort.

AN OPEN BOOK ON BANKING

In this modern age when fortunes are made so swiftly—and lost just as rapidly—it is important to remain financially sane.

The men who direct the activities of the Federal-American National Bank are cool-headed business leaders; men who have achieved success themselves in the financial world.

Under the leadership of such men, the Federal-American National Bank has adopted a banking policy of "Progressive-Conservatism."

We do not believe in Ultra-Moderatism. Neither do we believe in Ultra-Modernism. Nor are we "straddling the fence."

The Federal-American National Bank directs its loans where they will stimulate modern industry—and yet are collectible when due.

This comes from keen business judgment, experience and "practical vision"—qualities of the financial minds here which make sound counsel available to you, for as a depositor you are entitled to confer with our officers at any time.

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS KELEHER SENTENCE

23 COUNTS CONFIRMED

Approval of the conviction of John B. "Dapper Jack" Keleher, well-known Washington sportsman, on an indictment of 23 counts charging him with permitting gaming in November, 1926, at an establishment on H street, near Fourteenth street northwest, was given in a decision handed down by Justice Charles H. Robb yesterday in the District Court of Appeals, and the sportsman will be obliged to serve a sentence of eight years and nine months in the penitentiary, imposed by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy of the District Supreme Court. The sentence also includes a $7,500 fine. Keleher was convicted on all 23 counts of the indictment, which charged him with setting up a gaming table, permitting others to use the premises for gaming and for accepting separate bets on horse races at different times.

Chief Justice McCoy sentenced Keleher to five years in the penitentiary on each of six counts in the indictment, to run concurrently with the sentences of one year each on the other counts and fifteen sentences of 90 days to run consecutively to each other and to the five-year terms.

In affirming the conviction, the Appellate Court found that there was sufficient evidence to sustain the lower court's action, and refused to entertain a number of exceptions made on behalf of Keleher. Justice Robb upheld the propriety of joining charges of felony and misdemeanors in the same indictment in separate counts, pointing out that according to the District statutes, where the sentence is imprisonment for more than one year it shall be in the penitentiary and cumulative sentences of more than one year shall be deemed one sentence for the purpose of this provision."

The Court of Appeals held that there was no abuse of discretion in the action of the trial judge in denying a bill of particulars and a motion to require the Government to elect on what counts it would ask for a conviction. It also upheld the refusal of the trial judge to quash the search warrant which was issued early against Charles D. Payne, a defendant, pointing out that Keleher failed to assert any interest in the property seized and was not in a position to challenge the validity of the warrant nor to ask the return of the property to a third person.

Slain Man's Body Found After Fight

Victim Was Killed in Row With Dry Raiders; Shot Agent's Deputy.

Whitesburg, Ky., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The body of a man who climaxed a record of prohibition offenses by fighting a gun battle with a liquor-raiding squad, seriously wounding one officer, was found today. Twelve bullets from the revolvers of the raiders struck him.

The shooting occurred yesterday in a remote section of this mountain county. The slain man, Ashland Collins, 30 years old, and Tom Morton were "riding double" on a mule when the raiders, who had arrested two men and three women, came upon them.

According to the officers, they took a bottle of whisky from Collins, who dismounted and opened fire, shooting Deputy Sheriff Steven J. Cornett. With Cornett were W. A. Veech, a Federal prohibition agent, and three other deputies. Cornett, who is a candidate for sheriff in tomorrow's election, was reported to have a chance to recover.

Contractors Plan Dispute Tribunal

Meeting in Pittsburgh to Lay Out Program for Possible Action.

Chicago, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Building contractors from all sections of the country will meet in Pittsburgh November 18 and 19 to draw up plans for a tribunal to adjust jurisdictional disputes among building trades, it was made known today by Edward F. Craig, executive secretary of the National Association of Building Trades Employers.

The plans will be tentative, intended for submission to the meeting of the new executive council of the American Federation of Labor when it organizes January 20 in Tampa, Fla. Establishment of such a tribunal would have for its purpose, Craig said, the elimination of disputes in building construction which cost the general building public $30,000,000 a year.

A tribunal once set up to handle such disputes was abolished when the building trades department of the federation withdrew its representatives.

Wounded Trapper's Dog Carries S O S Message

Nakina, Ont., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—A young Canadian trapper, who accidentally shot himself in the solitude of Pine Lake, owed his life today to his dog.

Andrew Zyvitski, 23, wounded when his pistol discharged as he drew it from its holster, fastened a note to the dog's collar and headed him in the direction of the nearest camp.

The dog ran through 3 miles of bush, swam a river, and at last reached a camp occupied by Thomas Hughes. Hughes followed the dog back, gave Zyvitski first aid and took him to his own camp. From there the wounded man came to Nakina by train and later was sent to Port Arthur.

SOLUTIONS SOUGHT FOR TWO CROSSINGS

Removal of Rail Menaces at Michigan Avenue and at Chestnut Street Seen.

ESTIMATES NOW PENDING

Elimination of the railroad grade crossing at Michigan avenue as well as the grade crossing at Chestnut street is expected to be provided for in the annual District estimates which will be submitted to Congress next month. District engineering officials have been engaged in a study of plans for the elimination of both crossings for several months, Col. William B. Ladue, engineer commissioner, said yesterday.

Plans which have been practically completed for eliminating the Chestnut street crossing call for closing Chestnut street on both sides of the railroad and a subway passage under the tracks at Fern street. This subway passage would connect on the District side with Eastern avenue and the projected extension of Piney Branch road and with Chestnut street, Baltimore street and Takoma avenue on the Maryland side. The work would cost approximately $210,000, it is estimated.

The engineering problem presented by the Michigan avenue crossing, however, is considerably more complex, largely because Michigan avenue follows a sharp downgrade which would make difficult of construction either a subway or a traffic viaduct, engineers say.

A viaduct on Michigan avenue to carry traffic over the railroad tracks would have to be a large and massive one and, not only would it be expensive, but owners of adjoining property protest that it would ruin their homes. It is estimated that it would cost between $350,000 and $400,000 to build an adequate viaduct.

An alternative plan is to widen the existing viaduct across the tracks at Monroe street, rounding the northeast corner of Tenth and Monroe streets and using Tenth street for access to Michigan avenue, which would be closed on both sides of the railroad tracks.

Residents of Tenth street, however, do not look kindly on the proposal, and have protested to District officials that they do not want anything done which will divert traffic past their homes. Property owners who would be affected by the several other plans suggested also have protested and District engineering officials have given up hope of working out any plan which will not be objected to by some one.

Receiver for Bankers' Corporation Sought

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—A petition for the appointment of an equity receiver for the Bankers Capital Corporation, incorporated in Delaware, with head office at 44 Wall street, was filed late today with Federal Judge William Bondy. The petitioner is the Superior Credit Corporation, of Worcester, Mass.

Attorneys for the defendant company, which joined in the petition for a receivership, said that "the financial furore" in Wall street was the cause of the petition being filed, as the sudden lowering in values of securities held by the defendant corporation had lessened its ability to obtain working capital on loans based on collateral.

CHAMBER TO MAKE ROAD FETE PLANS

Hyattsville Commerce Body Is Sponsoring Event to Mark Opening.

DIVORCE SUITS STARTED

Plans for a celebration of the formal opening of Rhode Island avenue and the opening of the bridge over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad grade crossing at Hyattsville will be made at a meeting to be held tonight at 8:45 o'clock in the Municipal Building at Hyattsville.

The meeting has been called by Lemuel L. Gray, of the Hyattsville Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the affair. Plans for cooperation with other communities interested in the extension of Rhode Island avenue will be made.

In addition to the outdoor clebration a banquet is planned, at which Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Maj. Harry Williar, of the State Roads Commission, and other prominent Maryland and District officials. Plans for the canvassing, which will be necessary to raise the large funds necessary for the expenses of the affair, also will be discussed.

Two suits for divorce have been filed in the circuit court at Upper Marlboro.

Benjamin L. Fowler, of District Heights, asks an absolute divorce from Jessie Pauline Fowler. The husband claims that he was deserted in favor of correspondent, with whom the wife is alleged to have eloped to Florida. The couple married in November, 1920, in Washington, and have three children.

Absolute divorce on the grounds of desertion is asked by Mrs. Asanta McDonough, of Brentwood, who alleges that she and their 7-year-old child were deserted by James S. McDonough, of Washington. The couple married in November, 1920, in Washington. Both plaintiffs are represented by Attorneys John H. Bittenbender and Alth Warman, of Washington.

The first forestry tour to be conducted in the counties of Prince Georges, Calvert and Anne Arundel by the State Department of Forestry at the Maryland University Extension Service will be held today. The tour will be conducted by Frend E. Trenk and the county agents of the counties to be visited. A large group of farmers, forestry wardens and business men are expected to accompany the group.

The Cheverly Citizens Association will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Cheverly School. Nominations of officers will be the principal business of the meeting. Elections will be held December 3. Bert H. Wise is president o fthe association.

A special meeting of the Prince Georges County Board of Education will be held today at the school board offices in Upper Marlboro The board will consider the suspension of a colored teacher, convicted of assault in county police court, who has been suspended pending action by the board.

Attention to Married Woman Costs Man's Life

Chicago, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Peter M. Marradino, 32, paid with his life today for his attentions to a married woman. Three hours after Marradino was found shot to death in his automobile, William Marzano confessed the slaying to police.

Marzano said he surprised Marradino when the latter waited to meet Mrs. Marzano at a candy factory in which she is employed. Marzano said he asked Marradino to stop attempting to see Mrs. Marzano. Marradino refused, Marzano said, and the shooting followed.

214 Spanish Workmen Get Big Family Bonus

Madrid, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Minister of Labor today signed orders for a "big family" bonus payment to 214 workmen each having more than eight children. Some of them had more than twelve.

Under Premier Primo de Rivera's policy of assisting workmen with large families, any parent of as many as eight children is eligible to government benefit ranging from fifty to several hundred pesetas (the peseta is quoted at 14¼ cents).

THOMAS PAINTS DARK PICTURE OF FUTURE FOR BRITISH LABOR

grants and improvements in railways and roads.

Bridges over the River Thames and tunnels under it, together with other schemes under construction, called for the expenditure of many more millions, Thomas said.

Thomas began his general statement by saying the opposition had said he would fail because they had failed. His answer was that neither section of the opposition had ever tried. On the Labor side of the house the reception of his proposals had been somewhat mixed.

"A little treacle, some vinegar and considerable brimstone," he described it.

His task now was to report on how his statutory powers had been used. The result of his simplification of the work of the unemployment grants committee was that work amounting to $56,000,000 had been provided in three months by the committee, giving approximately 500,000 men direct employment. Furthermore, schemes involving expenditure of $55,000,000 were being considered by water authorities, in consequence of the dangerous position which arose from the droughts of last summer.

Thomas then described his steps to make a scheme for transfer of labor from depressed areas more elastic, and schemes of work by the railways. He mentioned that as a result of the railway companies' investigation of steel sleepers they had ordered 13,000 tons of steel sleepers in the last two months. The electricity committee had speeded up its schemes for giving more work, and so had the postoffice.

He said the scheme to tunnel under the English Channel between England and France was still being investigated by the tunnel committee.

Textile Trade Topic.

He the came to a point of importance to the great Lancashire textile trade, which was suffering from the Canadian regulations that goods, to gain British preference, must be of 50 per cent British manufacture and the materials. Obviously, this quota could not be established on cotton goods, since the raw material was bought outside the empire.

Thomas said he had officially discussed the matter in Canada and hoped the difficulties would be removed.

A debate on the crisis in the Indian constitution question may begin Thursday over a motion for adjournment of the house. Agreement on this was reached between MacDonald and former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin. No vote of censure or motion to reduce the salary of the secretary of state for Iridia will be necessary to start the debate, which probably will be without a division.

MacDonald was accorded a warm welcome when he rose in the house today. Balwin added to the rousing Labor reception a "warm welcome on behalf of every one on the opposition side of the house."

Coal and Steel Discussed.

Thomas said that he had concentrated on the coal and steel industries in his recent trade mission to Canada.

He stated that it was hoepless to compete for the whole importation and that Russia was also attempting to capture the Canadian coal market. However, 600,000 tons of British anthracite would be shipped before the end of the year, and next year he believed the difficulty would be in supplying the demand, rather than in getting Canadian customers.

Those in Canada dealing with the coal trade were well satisfied with the result of his visit and with the advance shipment of British soft coal. The Canadians had decided to order five 7,000-ton vessels to deal with coal movements next year alone. He said he had assurance that in price and quality British steelmakers had nothing to fear.

The minister announced that he was arranging for an exports credit commission to finance large movements of steel and he alluded to the possibilities of increasing sales of British automobiles in the dominions.

Lloyd George Is Caustic.

David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, was one of the chief speakers criticizing the Thomas speech. He said:

"Since the Labor government came into office and Mr. Thomas undertook his onerous task, the unemployed have increased by 100,000. By the time winter has passed the government scheme will not have provided for one-third of the numbers added since the government came into office. This winter will be a black winter of heavy unemployment, and yet the proposals are timid, pusillanimous and unintelligent."

He added that in the whole of the Labor schemes "there was not one-half crown for rural areas."

Without division, the House of Commons passed the vote for the salary and expenses of Thomas. The vote included the sum of $3,250 for the cost of his visit to Canada in connection with his schemes for the solution of the unemployment problem.

This vote was not the equivalent of a vote of confidence in his plans, although it eliminates any present challenge. His speech had been made in committee on a formal motion to grant his official salary. Futher legislation will be necessary to give effect to any measures involving expenditures to relieve unemployment.

REV. JULIAN E. INGLE DEAD AT AGE OF 92

Ntive of Washington Was One of Oldest Clerics of Episcopal Church.

FUNERAL AT RALEIGH, N.

The Rev. Julian Edward Ingle, 92 years old, one of the oldest Episcopal clergymen in the United States and a native of Washington, died at his residence in Raleigh, N. C., yesterday, according to information reaching here last night.

A member of a well-known Washington family, he was born in Washington in 1838, and received his education at the Episcopal High School in Alexandria and the University of Virginia, where he was one of the founders of the university Y. M. C. A., said to be the first college branch of that organization in the world.

He attended the General Theological Seminary in New York, and after ordination was assistant at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Baltimore, later becoming rector of the Church of the Ascension in Westminster, Md., and of Trinity Church in Woodbridge, N. J.

CAPT. THRAVES DIES IN CHARLOTTESVILLE

Confederate Veteran Noted for Hospitality Is Victim of Pneumonia.

FAMED AS FOX HUNTER

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 4.—Capt. John T. Thraves, Confederate veteran and noted fox hunter, died yesterday morning at University Hospital, where he had been under treatment since October 19. The immediate cause of death was pneumonia.

The body was taken to Richmond, where burial services were held at 3 o'clock today in Hollywood Cemetery.

Capt. Thraves was one of Virginia's typical sons. He made a gallant record during the Civil War and performed creditably the duties that developed upon a few during the reconstruction period.

"Mars John," as he was familiarly and affectionately known, was born in Amelia County, Va., May 16, 1843, the son of the late George Thraves, of England. He volunteered for service in the cause of the Confederacy in 1861. He served under Gen. Thomas J. ("Stonewall") Jackson and was wounded at Harpers Ferry. Later he joined the Forty-fourth Virginia Cavalry and fought until the "Battle of the Crater," where his horse was shot from under him and he was severely wounded.

The Thraves plantation, Eight Oaks," along the Appomattox, was known far and wide for its broad and generous hospitality. Here the humblest cabin dweller and the proudest of Virginia's aristocracy felt equally welcome and at ease.

Capt. Thraves was a great lover of sports. He bred and owned the great steeplechase horse, Fearless, and during his entire lifetime kept a fine pack of fox hounds. While riding to hounds at the age of 83 he had the misfortune to be thrown heavily, sustaining a broken hip.

Capt. Thraves married Miss Martha Catherine Barden, of Amelia County, who survives, with the following children: William Vernon Thraves, of Lexington, Ky.; Mrs. Ella Hill, wife of Dr. P. B. Hill, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of San Antonio, Tex.; Mrs. Alma Caperton, wife of Maj. James N. Caperton, instructor at the United States Military Academy, at West Point, N. Y.; Mrs. Martha Wing, wife of Maj. Paul R. Wing, of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Robert Thraves, of Branchland, just north of this city.

ACUSED POLICEMAN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Patrolman, Suspended for Intoxication, Swallows Poison at Home.

CONDITION IS SERIOUS

Patrolman Lyman L. Leich, 40, attached to the Fifth Precinct, attempted suicide in his home yesterday, police say, an hour after his suspension by Capt. William A. Sanford, on a charge of intoxication.

Following his suspension, Leich went to his home, 2312 Minnesota avenue southeast, according to Mrs. Leich, where he became despondent. Fearing discharge from the police force, his wife said, he swallowed poison tablets. She sought ineffectually to restrain him. He dropped to the floor in the parlor of their home, writhing in agony.

Police of the Eleventh Precinct were notified. In response to a call the rescue squad arrived and sought to revive him. They were unsuccessful and he was removed to Casualty Hospital.

Found in Shoe Shine Parlor.

Police at the Fifth Precinct received an anonymous call at 1:40 yesterday afternoon that there was a drunken policeman in a shoe shine parlor at 305 Pennsylvania avenue southeast. Capt. Sanford said he found Leich asleep in a chair in the shop.

He brought him to the precinct, where he was stripped of his shield and gun. Capt. Sanford said that the man was under the influence of liquor, but not sufficiently intoxicated to warrant charges other than violation of the police code. He was not examined by a doctor, according to Capt. Sanford.

After his suspension Capt. Sanford declared that Leich had intimated that "he was through." The superior officer declared that Leich had been transferred to his precinct from the Sixth Precinct in July and had a good record.

Took Gun From Holster, Claim.

Inquiries at the shoe shine parlor revealed that Leich had entered the place about 1:30 o'clock. He was staggering, according to Leroy Johnson, colored, an attendant. Leich drew his gun from its holster and asked to have the holster stitched. He did not flourish the gun, according to Johnson.

A man who had had his shoes repaired in the store witnessed the withdrawal of the gun. Soon after he left the place the complaint was received. Johnson said that the man returned to the place when the officers arrived and told him that he had made the complaint because he was afraid that Leich might discharge the gun. Johnson does not know the name of the complainant.

Not on Duty at Time.

Leich was not on duty at the time, nor was he in uniform. He had reported off duty at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and was to start again at midnight, Johnson said that Leich was not disorderly.

On his return home, Mrs. Leich said, the suspended policeman appeared dejected and took a bottle of poison tablets. Leich said he would lose his job. As she pleaded with him not to take the poison he swallowed several tablets, she said.

Policemen J. B. Hicks, William Wright and James Tolson, of the Eleventh Precinct, responded to a call for aid and assisted the rescue squad. Dr. Jimal treated Leich at the Casualty Hospital, where his condition is regarded as serious.

The record of Policeman Leich shows that he was suspended February 11, 1929, for intoxication and subsequently was convicted and fined $100 by the Police Trial Board.

Leich was appointed on June 23, 1920. He gave his former occupation as a soldier, and said he was born in Minnesota. He was twice commended for good work in making arrests. He was injured twice, although not seriously.

The meeting is open to the public.

ALLEN, DISMISSING COUNSEL, PREPARES TO DEFEND SELF

hear the charges of insubordination against Capt. Doyle.

Conference Due Today.

The next move in Doyle's behalf will be considered at a conference between Doyle and his attorneys today.

Allen apparently has decided on his course and feels there is no use haggling on technicalities.

His letter to Burton follows:

"Dear Sir: While I feel that you and Mr. Marye have done everything that could have been done in my behalf, in view of the repeated denials on the part of the officials of the District of Columbia having to do with the Police Department to accede to any request on my part which would assure me of an impartial trial, I can not conscientiously accept your services in defending me before the Police Trial Board.

"It is perfectly clear that any decision which may be reached by the board must be based upon an interpretation of my letter of October 18, 1929, to Maj. Henry G. Pratt, and in my opinion, it is perfectly useless to appear before that board if it is constituted of police officials, particularly when they absolutely refuse to permit an examination upon their voir dire, a right which is accorded to every person in either civil or criminal cases and one which the courts have repeatedly stated is a matter of right."

Effort Called Futile.

"Had it been decided by the Commissioners to give me a board which I would feel was impartial, there would have been a basis for making a defense, but I do not feel at liberty to ask you and Mr. Marye to devote your time in what seems to be a perfectly futile effort because I am not in a position to pay for your services unless there was at least a chance of my being restored to duty, which would enable me to pay you, and while it is true that you have offered to proceed regardless of that, I can not conscientiously permit you to do so.

"While, as you know, I have secured a temporary position as helper at the Mid-City Gas Station, nevertheless you probably realize that I secure very little recompense for my services in this position — barely enough to pay my household expenses, as a matter of fact.

One Other Factor.

"There is yet another consideration which actuates my attitude and it is this:

"You will probably recall that I once before trusted my fate to the hands of a Police Trial Board composed strictly of police officials. I was charged at that time with an offense of which I felt perfectly innocent. Nevertheless, they sentenced me to dismissal from the police force. But I was sustained by the thought that I was innocent and went to great expense, time and trouble to present my appeal to the proper authorities. My appeal was sustained. I was restored to duty. If the alleged feeling against me on the part of certain police officials was sufficient to cause a Trial Board composed strictly of police officers to sentence me to dismissal on one occasion without just cause, they probably would do it again.

"I have taken a great deal of pleasure in my work as a policeman. I dislike the thought of losing my position intensely. Nothing gives me more satisfaction than playing a personal part in the apprehending of major criminals. In spite of this, however, in view of the apparent determination of District officials not to grant me an impartial trial, I feel it useless for you to make a defense in my behalf.

To Make Own Plea.

"I want to make it clear that it is my intention to appear at the time specified before the Trial Board and attempt to make such defense as it is possible, in my own behalf, which is all I feel I can afford to do under the conditions."

It was reported yesterday that despite the flareup in the newspapers over negotiations looking to an ending of the charges against Doyle on the basis of a letter of "clarification" to be written by the captain, the subject may be revived. A conference was said to have taken place yesterday between counsel for the captain and William W. Bride, corporation counsel, and Robert E. Lynch, assistant corporation counsel, assigned to prosecute the charges. This report, however, was denied.

Doyle's Course Unknown.

Whether Doyle will go to trial tomorrow morning or will seek another continuance has not been determined, Wampler said last night. Neither has it been definitely decided whether the threat to challenge every member of the board and all alternates in an effort to appoint a special trial board will be carried out.

In their letter rejecting the plea for appointment of a special board the Commissioners declared that "a reason must be given for any challenge made, and these reasons are passed upon by the trial board at the initial hearing of the case."

corpus. He refused to answer questions regarding the case.

Easterday came into prominence Arnstein and a man known as N. Cohen in a search fro $2,000,000 in certificates stolen from Clark, Childs & Co. which sent detectives scurrying throughout the nation about ten years ago.

D. W. Sullivan and N. Bowles were the first brought into the robbery case, following the arrest of the messengers charged with the thefts. Easterday, recognized as the power behind the Sullivan firm, was later arrested, and the trio was indicted in Washington on October 5, 1930, for receiving stolen certificates.

In the first trial the jury disagreed, and a retrial was not reached for another year. Finally, in 1921, they were convicted and each was sentenced to two years in prison. They appealed, but the Court of Appeals upheld their convictions more than a year later.

Meanwhile the three were tried and convicted of forgery and sentenced to three years in prison. This conviction was also upheld by the Court of Appeals.

Easterday also was involved in several bad check cases and was at one time charged with threatening a woman.

Times Reporters Returned to Jail

Trio Sentenced in Refusal to Tell Names Begins 45-Day Term.

Tacitly admitting that they had no legal grounds upon which to contest the execution of the 45-day jail sentences imposed upon them last week by Justice Peyton Gordon for contempt in refusing to answer certain questions propounded to them by the grand jury in regard to their investigations into liquor law violations here, three Washington Times reporters yesterday asked Justice Frederick L. Siddons in the District Supreme Court to vacate their petitions for writs of habeas corpus, and returned to the District Jail as prisoners 4277, 4278 and 4279.

Although the three young reporters, Gorman M. Hendricks, John E. Nevin, jr., and Linton Burkett, have appeals from Justice Gordon's convictions pending in the Court of Appeals, they elected yesterday to return to the jail and serve their sentences at least until some action is taken by the higher court.

Defense Counsel Wilton J. Lambert intimated that his clients' return to jail probably would hasten argument of the case, and it is understood that above all things the reporters are anxious to be free by Christmas.

The social news in The Washington Post is unparalleled in interest because it concerns those people about whom one wishes most to know.

FRIENDS SEEK FUND TO HELP M'PHERSON

PERSECUTION IS ALLEGED

Laskey announced that sufficient evidence was in hand to warrant trial of McPherson under the indictment found against him by the grand jury, the Department of Justice retreated into its shell of silence again yesterday. Beyond brief comment to clear up confusion developing out of erroneous stories in the afternoon papers on Saturday which predicted that McPherson would not be tried, officials and agents of the Justice Department declined to discuss the situation.

"For ten days," said J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation, "we had been following a specific lead, but it was not until Saturday that we were positive the evidence obtained from the many witnesses on this point would stand up, clinching the decision to bring McPherson to trial. Until that stage in the investigation was reached, naturally we were not in position to state definitely what legal action would follow completion of the investigation, or whether McPherson would be brought to trial. It is possibly only natural, therefore, that some reporters interpreted that indefiniteness as indicating that there was not sufficient evidence to justify trial.

"At no time, however, have I ever been inclined to any suicide theory; from the start it has appeared that Virginia McPherson was murdered, although all of us have proceeded throughout the investigation with open minds, and would have given full consideration to any evidence of suicide if any had been found."

Laskey and various Federal investigators echoed Hoover's declaration that at no time had any evidence been presented to the Department of Justice substantiating the suicide verdict of the coroner's jury. The argument presented by one newspaper commentator that "the department had insufficient evidence to proceed against McPherson and the case probably would be nolle prossed" and that "the department anticipated no new indictment, which led to the obvious observation that the suicide verdict of the coroner's jury would stand as the official record," was classed as "ridiculous."

In the very remote possibility that the Department of Justice had been unable to bring a case into court, the case would have gone down in the records as "murder by a person or persons unknown," and not as suicide, it was pointed out.

Investigation Goes On.

Even although Laskey is confident that he already has sufficient evidence with which to proceed to trial, the Department of Justice investigation is not yet ended. Operatives are still working ceaselessly, interviewing more witnesses and checking and rechecking on the testimony and evidence previously gathered, to the end that when the case is brought to trial, there will be no slightest loophole unguarded in the prosecutor's hands.

The nature of the evidence on which McPherson is to be tried and its source are held in closest secrecy by the Federal sleuths, although it is believed that they have been able to dispose of McPherson's alibi and place him definitely at the Park Lane Apartments at the approximate hour during the night of September 12, when his wife is believed to have been slain, about 36 hours before her body was discovered.

This development is believed to be the result of testimony given by a street car motorman on the Georgia avenue line who is understood to have identified young McPherson as a passenger on his car on a late run from Petworth to the downtown section of the city. Following that lead during the last ten days or two weeks, the Government agents have, it is believed, been able to place together an accurate and detailed story which constitutes the evidence upon which Laskey will bring the case into court.

Both Sides Want Early Trial.

Both the prosecution and the defense are anxious to have McPherson brought to trial and the case disposed of as promptly as possible, but McPherson's attorney, William E. Leahy, indicated last night that he would require some time in order to line up his defense, having purposely delayed any action along these lines while the Department of Justice was investigating in order to avoid the possibility of charges that, in interviewing witnesses, he might have influenced them.

It will take some time for Leahy to catch up with the Department of Justice in the matter of obtaining evidence for the defense, and whether he will be prepared to face a jury with his case in time to have the case disposed of during 1929 is problematical just now.

Leahy appears not at all discouraged by Laskey's determination to press for a first-degree murder verdict, and indicates that when the case reaches the court he will have some fireworks of his own to spring.

Mrs. Nellie Smalldon Asks Absolute Divorce

Declaring that she has not seen her husband, Fenton Smalldon, in more than four years and that she does not know where he now is, Mrs. Nellie Smalldon, who stated that she is a resident of the District of Columbia, yesterday, through Attorney Iredell Meares, filed suit in the District Supreme Court for an absolute divorce on grounds of infidelity and desertion.

Mrs. Smalldon promises to name a corespondent when the case is heard. She avers that she discovered her husband and the woman together and that Smalldon then left her and she has not heard from him since. The couple were married in 1923, the petition states.

TARDIEU WILL FACE DEPUTIES THURSDAY

New Cabinet Will Be Greeted by 12 Interpellations in Parliament.

NAVAL POLICY IS ISSUE

Paris, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Premier Andre Tardieu, electing to stand or fall upon a ministerial declaration to Parliament on Thursday, will accept immediate discussion of interpellations on the general foreign policy of the government.

In announcing this late tonight it was indicated that the new premier was prepared to include an outline of the program that the French delegation will follow at the naval disarmament conference in London in January. It was on M. Briand's refusal to reply to questions of foreign policy at the opening of Parliament on October 22 that his cabinet was defeated.

Although Premier Tardieu had expected to have his ministerial declaration ready for submission to his colleagues tomorrow morning, he found the task more laborious than he had expected and announced late this evening that it would not be ready before Wednesday morning.

Although his first appearance before parliament is still three days off, twelve deputies have already served notice of interpellations. These deal mostly with the foreign policy of the government and will come from the Radical and Socialist groups. All are intended to force Foreign Minister Briand to explain his policy concerning evacuation of the Rhineland and the Saar Valley status.

The fact that one of the interpellations will be presented by a deputy friendly to Premier Tardieu is interpreted as meaning the premier has decided to make the government's position on the London conference known.

THE TARDIEU POLICY.

Andre Tardieu's foreign policy, with particular reference to the coming naval conference at London, now constitutes the enigma of the general program initiated by President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald. The first authoritative inklings of the French position will be received with undisguised interest.

Meanwhile, intimations from Geneva that the London conference may be postponed for a week or more are not surprising. It may well be expedient to arrange for a further postponement in view of the uncertainties incident to Mr. MacDonald's troubles in Parliament and the probable crystallization of Tardieu's policy of nationalism in France.

Three major preliminary problems should be disposed of by M. Tardieu before the French delegation embarks for London. It is clear that the French premier will devote attention to each of them.

First is the question of reaching an agreement in principle with Italy. Premier Mussolini demands naval parity with France. French policy totally opposes that demand. Consequently there is a head-on clash between the French and Italian positions which will wreck the London conference unless the obstacle to agreement can be removed.

The second problem confronting M. Tardieu is that of restoring a spirit of accommodation between the MacDonald Labor government and the conservative elements in France. Premier Tardieu and his followers are not only antagonistic to Mr. MacDonald and his socialistic plans but are smarting under affronts which they feel have been deliberately inflicted upon them. Henri Cheron, minister of finance in Tardieu's cabinet and a close personal friend of the premier, was singled out personally by Philip Snowden at The Hague in describing French reparation figures as "grotesque and absurd." Snowden has declined to retract or modify his statement.

Meanwhile Mr. MacDonald's proposed recognition of the Soviet and his inclination to sympathize with radical and communistic theories represent a policy diametrically opposite to that which M. Tardieu personifies. It was Tardieu who initiated the new policy of summarily dealing with communist agitators in France and refusing to temporize with them. When the time came for the communist demonstrations last May M. Tardieu was minister of the interior, and he snuffed out with ruthlessness and dispatch. To some of the French politicians it looked as if Tardieu had signed his own political death warrant by this act. But the communists in France have been set back, and Tardieu is premier of France.

The third problem with which M. Tardieu must deal in connection with the naval conference concerns the question whether any agreements reached shall become effective at once, or be made part of a general disarmament program to be formulated by the preparatory commission of the League of Nations. Since alterations in naval policies and programs have a vital bearing upon national defense in which military factors are involved, it seems probable that Premier Tardieu will strongly support M. Briand in insisting that any understanding reached in London shall be tentative, to be passed upon later by a general disarmament conference.

VIRGINIA'S VOTE TODAY.

Virginia, the lone State that is electing a governor in this off year, commands the spotlight today. The campaign has been bitterly fought throughout the length and breadth of the Old Dominion. The candidate of the coalition that was formed last summer between the anti-Smith Democrats and the Republicans, William Mosely Brown, opposes John Garland Pollard, regular Democrat, who is supported by Senators Swanson and Glass and Gov. Byrd. In ordinary times the regular Democrat would be assured of victory without a contest, but these are not normal times. A new issue has been injected into this campaign.

The issue may be summed up in three words—Tammany, Raskob, Smith. In the national campaign of last year some 50,000 Virginia Democrats, led by the prelate-politician, Bishop James Cannon, jr., deserted the Democratic fold to vote against Al Smith, as a result of which Virginia was brought into the Republican column for the first time since the Civil War. Bishop Cannon organized the revolt in the present campaign. A vote for Pollard, he told his followers, would be a vote for the perpetuation of the Smith-Raskob leadership of the national Democratic party, and it was at Bishop Cannon's instigation that the anti-Smith Democrats assembled in convention, nominating Mr. Brown, whose candidacy was subsequently ratified by the Republican organization. Bishop Cannon several weeks ago went to South America to lead a religious convention, but his spirit has marched on through Virginia during the entire campaign.

The Virginia election today may determine whether the Old Dominion is to remain part of the solid South or whether it is to join such States as Kentucky in the doubtful column. If Pollard should be elected the question of course will be settled definitely. If Brown should win it will not mean that the Democratic hold upon Virginia has been permanently broken, but only that a Democratic-Republican coalition has been able to take practical advantage of a passing political phenomenon. The coalition is unnatural, and could not be expected to survive in normal times.

CENSURED BY PARTISANS.

The Senate yesterday by a partisan vote adopted a resolution censuring Senator Bingham for his action in placing Charles L. Eyanson upon the official rolls of the Senate. The resolution exonerates Senator Bingham personally of any corrupt motive in the employment of Eyanson. No Democrat voted against the resolution, while practically all of the regular Republicans opposed it. With a few exceptions, all the insurgent Republicans voted with the Democrats.

The palpable effort to make political capital against the Republican party out of the Bingham-Eyanson incident gives the reference to "good morals and senatorial ethics" the hypocritical flavor that attaches to all the outgivings of the new bloc that is destroying party respectability in the Senate. Republican regulars who disapproved of what Mr. Bingham had done were nevertheless compelled to vote against a resolution so obviously inspired by partisanship.

Democrats and insurgents who seized upon a Republican peccadillo to advertise their superior virtue are apt to encounter public derision rather than applause. The people are so tired of demagogism in the Senate that they are likely to cry "A plague on both your houses" when either side denounces the other. The bloc that has wrecked the tariff bill, in violation of both the Republican and Democratic party platforms pledging relief to agriculture and industry, need not hope to divert public attention by grossly exaggerating the blunder committed by Senator Bingham. When an individual sanctimoniously condemns another for a breach of morals and ethics he should himself have a clean record, for human nature recoils from receiving lectures on morals from an impure source. A political combination of individuals should likewise make sure that its record is free from perfidy before it sets itself up as a censor.

NEW $10,000 BILLS.

Notes of the denomination of $10,000 each have not been printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing for several years, not because that is an undesirable denomination for a bank note, but because there are few citizens except butter-and-egg men who demand funds in such concentrated form as $10,000 bills. Until last Saturday no one had ever seen a $10,000 bill of the vintage of 1929. On that day the Bureau of Engraving and Printing printed the first small-size Federal reserve notes of that denomination. They are not yet in wide circulation, as it will take some days to dry them properly and put them through the numbering machine.

When these new bills become more or less familiar to bank tellers and other haughty people who are accustomed to handle money in big batches they will notice that there is a decided change in the faces of these Federal Reserve notes. It was pointed out by The Post last June that in designing the new bills for the Federal Reserve System the designer had designated the number of the reserve district in black-faced type, so placed that it might be mistaken for the figure signifying the value of the note. For instance, the designation of "District No. 10" in bold black type on the left side of the face of a $5 bill might, and as it turned out, did, result in confusion and loss. The point made by The Post appealed to the Treasury Department, with the result that on the new Federal Reserve $10,000 bills and on others of all denominations to be printed in the future the regional bank which issues the notes will be designated by a letter instead of a number. The Boston district is "A" instead of "1," New York "B" instead of "2," and so on for the twelve districts.

Now if the holders of $10,000 bills exercise ordinary caution they will not pass off these notes as $5 bills.

FEDERAL PRISON PROBLEMS.

Attorney General Mitchell's radio address indicates that improvement of prison conditions has become one of the major aims of the Department of Justice. He frankly discusses all the shortcomings of the Federal prison system and gives hope that a more enlightened policy is to be inaugurated. The only doubtful question is whether Congress will support the administration's program.

The immediate objective of the department is to obtain appropriations for construction during the coming five years of a new Federal penitentiary with a capacity of 1,200 prisoners, an industrial reformatory in the West with similar capacity, and three Federal jails. Expenditure of $6,500,000 for this purpose has been approved by the Budget Bureau. Congress should be spurred to action by Mr. Mitchell's pointed statement that the underlying causes of the recent riot at Leavenworth were overcrowding and lack of work.

Prison disorders in recent months have focused attention on overcrowding, but that is by no means the only defect in the Federal system. Atlanta Penitentiary has but one industry, employing only 800 out of 3,770 prisoners. Two industries have been authorized at Leavenworth, but 1,500 to 2,000 men are left in idleness. Mr. Mitchell recommends that prison industries be diversified so that competition with private industry will not be concentrated on a few industries. Beyond that, he says, private industry has no justification for opposition to the employment of Federal prisoners. The public can not afford to support criminals in idleness and release them at the end of their terms to renew careers of crime.

Personal rehabilitation in penal institutions has had to be deferred, the Attorney General admits, because prisons have been overwhelmed by the task of housing and feeding twice as many men as they have facilities to care for, and because the majority are in idleness. More than 98 per cent of these prisoners are returned to society. Instead of learning a trade, the majority degenerate mentally and physically, increasing their susceptibility to crime. Congress has authorized appointment of probation officers in every judicial district to assist in orienting paroled prisoners in the economic and social systems, but adequate appropriations to employ such officers have been lacking. The obligation of the Nation to convert as many as possible of its lawbreakers into useful citizens is being shamefully neglected. Construction of more prisons is one of the urgent projects confronting Congress, but to dismiss the penal problem with only that accomplished would be to confess that the Government is unwilling to do its duty.

BLOCS IN THE SENATE

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The tendency growing in the Senate to change the rules of the legislative game by a species of direct action, for factional partisan advantage may well arouse grave public concern. The latest instance in point is found in Senator Nye's resolution providing for an investigation of speculation on stock exchanges.

The resolution has gone over under the rules. Doubt is expressed in Washington that any further attention will be accorded it in the special session. But that it will not be permitted to die is taken for granted. It constitutes another threat to Republican authority in the Senate, and that is its chief importance, altogether aside from the merits of the proposal in its main purpose.

The resolution is "that a committee of five senators be appointed by the Vice President, which shall include as members thereof the chairman and the ranking minority member of both the committee of judiciary and the committee on banking and currency of the Senate and that such committee is hereby authorized and directed, by subcommittee or otherwise, to investigate the facts and the practices concerning or relative to speculative operations connected with stock exchanges within the United States and to report their findings, together with such recommendations as they deem necessary to the Senate not later than February 1, 1930."

This would take from the Vice President the discretion which he customarily exercises under time-honored practice in the appointment of committees authorized by resolution. Usually, to a committee of five, three members of the majority party are appointed—three "regulars," that is. By such means is authority kept where it belongs—with the party responsible for legislation. By specific direction of the Nye resolution, however, Vice President Curtis would be permitted to select only one committeeman. The four picked by the North Dakota Insurgent Republican are Norris and Norbeck, of his own faction, and Senators Overman and Fletcher, Democrats. The design is to keep the trend of inquiry favorable to the coalition viewpoint, which is resentful of "Eastern capitalism," and to assure recommendations in accord with it.

The grave danger lurking in confirmation of this method of selecting investigating committees is apparent. For one thing, it would give encouragement to the factionalism that already has all but destroyed party action and party responsibility. The importance of individuals and of relatively small blocs would be magnified. Dignity and orderliness in legislation would become but a memory. We should witness logrolling at its worst. And mere vindictiveness as a power in Senate legislation would acquire authority, if not respectability.

A dangerous game is this which the coalitionists are playing. It magnifies the unfortunate party division. Success for them now may bring considerable trouble to them later. A restoration of unity of Republican purpose is in order. Only through coordination of effort are the best results obtainable. If the better way be finally and definitely rejected by the Insurgent Republicans the situation will ultimately become an intolerable check upon the business of the Senate.

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST

A PHILOSOPHER IS ROBBED.

A thief broke into his room one day
And carried his watch and his purse away;
Looked at him sleeping, and thought with a smile:
"Well, I guess I have all that he owns worth while.
You could almost say I have stripped him bare."
So he closed his grip and he left him there.

The victim woke, he missed his things,
His purse, his watch and his diamond rings;
His coat and vest, his trousers and shoes,
All stuff which any one's apt to lose,
And he counted his losses, and said: "Why fret?
I am left with much which he couldn't get.

"All the wisdom I've learned from books
Is safe from the cunning of stealthy crooks.
Though a thief at night in my room may break
There is much I value he can not take.
What a terrible crime would this robbery be
If the man could have stolen one friend from me!

"Suppose it were possible thieves could find
A way to enter the human mind
And steal faith and thought and the dreams men hold,
Instead of the stuff which is bought and sold,
Then they could say with a cunning smile
They had stripped a man of the things worth while."

To One a Sunset Is Beauty; To Another a Promise of Rain.
By ROBERT QUILLEN

SOME of the magazines have been stirring up controversy by asking: "Why go to church?"

Thousands of sincere and contented people will answer at once: "Go to worship."

To which other thousands, equally sincere, will reply: "But how can you worship when you are being bored?"

It is hard to find people who will discuss this question fairly and judicially, for most of those who are interested at all are prejudiced one way or the other and have solidified opinions that neither logic nor evidence can alter.

People who think church-going a pleasant and helpful duty are more or less regular attendants who hear preaching that satisfies them, or find the joy of worship a sufficient recompense for unsatisfactory preaching.

People who think church-going an unpleasant and unprofitable business, enjoyed only by the superstitious and the stupid, are agnostics who have seldom if ever attended, or disillusioned and disappointed people who have attended much in quest of light and have yet to hear preaching of sufficient power to convince them of its value.

To those who judge without attending, a critic might say: "Your opinion is not arrived at intelligently. The searcher after truth, who is the true scientist, examines the evidence before forming an opinion. You are guided by prejudice; not by reason."

To the second group a churchgoer would say: Perhaps you judge the whole by one of its faulty parts. Because the small hills you have seen do not impress you, it does not follow that none but the simple are awed by the mountains. There are great things you have not seen."

The truth is, however, that universal education has lessened the contrast between pulpit and pew, and it becomes increasingly more difficult for preachers to lead people whose nature it is to follow none but superiors.

Mediocre men, timidly preaching a religion in which their own faith wavers, cannot convince intelligent people who hunger for truth supported by reason and evidence.

There is truth. Presented by a prophet, it would be accepted by those who desire it. But prophets, Alas! are few.

What is more, though religion is like classical music in the sense that almost everybody can acquire the capacity to appreciate it, there are people with a natural passion for it and others who lack the ability to comprehend and enjoy it, no matter how hard they try.

Pearls are for those who can appreciate pearls. And scolding cannot make the poet enjoy work in a bank, nor prompt the Shylock to write verses to a Grecian urn.

THE ONCE OVER
By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE RETURN OF THE USED GOLF BALL.

Immediate results of the stock market crash, debacle, panic, break or what have you are being felt on the golf links of the country. Players have returned to the old-fashioned custom of making an extensive search for lost balls.

* * * *

"I never saw anything like it," said "Red" Callahan, a well-known caddy, today. "For the past four or five years few players have shown any concern about a lost ball. They'd look a few seconds for it, but if they didn't find it right away they'd unwrap a new dollar ball and put it in play.

* * * *

"You should see them since the Wall street crash! During the last few days golfers have been spending so much time in the woods looking for lost balls that you would think they was forestry students. A man won't stop looking for a ball now until his caddy has crawled around on his hands and knees through the underbrush and used everything but a search warrant to find it.

* * * *

"Up to the big break in stocks most players thought no more of a golf ball than Heinz thought of a bean. I have caddied for men who would drive a half dozen balls in succession into a shallow brook and tell me not to bother to pick them out.

* * * *

"Yesterday I had an ex-millionaire walk around a swamp up to his knees looking for a 50-cent ball, and he got sore because I refused to dive into a lake 50 feet deep and recover a 'repaint' for him.

* * * *

"Nobody's using new balls any more. The 'repaint' is back in popularity for the first time in years. Six weeks ago you couldn't sell a golfer a used ball. Today he stops every caddy on the links and asks him if he has a dozen old balls he wants to sell for a quarter or so.

* * * *

"I even had a feller call me a rotten caddy the other day because I let him lose a wooden tee!

* * * *

"Working on a golf course ain't what it was before this market break, believe me. The golfers have turned sour, ugly and tight. The only good break a caddy gets is when the game is over. I have had a dozen two-somes come to blows over 10 cents a hole. These same guys played all summer for $5 a hole and never made a squawk.

* * * *

"It's terrible. If you want to know where the stock market crash is being felt the worst ask any caddy."

DISQUALIFIED.

"I can't make you a sandwich, sir," said the clerk.

"Why not?" demanded the hungry customer.

"Because I'm not a licensed druggist," he explained.

People have had to listen for the last five years to folks tell about their winnings in Wall street and now they'll have to put in the next five listening to them tell about their losses.

DRAW YOUR OWN CONCLUSIONS.

Q. Is he a heavy drinker?

A. Well, he goes to all the big college football games.

John D. Rockefeller is buying stocks, but he was just a wee bit late to get any of the really high-grade investment issues for a dime.

A banker says a college education sets a man back three or four years. That must be why nobody is ever on time to keep an appointment at the University Club.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Ho, Hum! Life Is Made a Bore by Efficiency Experts—No Human Beings Any More.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been reading comments of Carter Field in your paper, who claims to know what is the matter with President Hoover. Field says that Hoover does not understand the human element in affairs, which is surely some misunderstanding, the human element being about all there is of consequence. If the world was not made for human beings, what was it made for, anyway? I mean human beings in the human sense. But for some years past things have been getting turned roundabout. "The United States is only a mass of reinforced concrete," says one of those subtle East Indian philosophers.

The efficiency experts have done it. Before we had "efficiency," people just went and did their necessary work as a matter of course. They didn't have to say, "See, I am working!" That word efficiency has had a sinister effect. By the time experts have got through with their conferences and their charts and diagrams the real issue is all balled up. A story is told of a New Yawk efficiency expert who went West armed with blueprints and specifications to see about having a bridge built. The first thing was to summon the local expert for a conference. The local expert scratched his head and observed, "Well, I don't know about these blueprints, but the bridge is built and the trains are running over it."

The President, observes Mr. Field, wants the "peepul" to stop gambling and get down to productive work. But why are they shying these days at work? It is because efficiency experts have made it such a bore. There is no creative work any more; it is all divided into small pieces and details, too monotonous and too drably scientific. The people are mad for easy money in order to get away from the efficiency experts, but they won't; the experts are all telling them how to spend it.

New Skirt Lengths Prove That War Is Over, But They Shouldn't Drop Too Far.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The styles this fall make it evident that dresses will be considerably longer. At one fell swoop feminine apparel has dropped down eight to twelve inches.

It was said that short dresses were the direct results of the war. What does this lengthening of them mean? It can only mean one thing and that is the war is over. The new styles are very pretty, and they certainly are more graceful than the styles of the last eight or ten years. There is only one thing that might prove fatal about the lengthening of dresses, and that is, the change may be carried to an extreme which will result in dresses dragging the ground as they did before. That, of course, would portend a new world war. Let us have place.

Rejoice! Spinach Is Unnecessary, According to Rice.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The words of Dr. Thurman B. Rice, department of bacteriology and public health, University of Indiana, may be of interest to many who do not like spinach. Dr. Rice says, "Forget your calories and vitamins. Eat what you like and be happy, so long as you get plenty of variety. If you don't like spinach, don't eat it." Many people who do not care for spinach have forced themselves to eat it in the hope of putting iron in their blood.

The assurance of this great scientist will comfort many of us who have been partaking of this gritty and tasteless grass. It is now just a matter of eating whatever one likes so long as there is plenty of variety. Fellow humans, let us rejoice that this theory about spinach being so necessary to health is totally exploded and cast into thin air!

Soviet Airplane on a Communist Propaganda Mission.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is no question whatsoever about the mission of the so-called "Land of the Soviets" being a propaganda mission. I can prove that, if the accuracy of the statement is ever challenged, by translations of an editorial from Pravda, official organ of the Communist Party of the U. S. S. R., which distinctly states that that is the purpose of the flight. I can confirm that editorial, if confirmation is needed, by quotations from Communist organs in the United States. There can be further and complete confirmation through a presentation of the facts regarding the ceremonies and programs staged by the Communist organizations in this country at every point at which the red propaganda plane stopped Cash, for the ostensible purpose of the purchase of tractors and trucks, is being presented to the bolshevist fliers.

I am inclosing herewith an exact copy of circular issued this week by the Young Communist League of the Chicago district dealing with Navy Day and the forthcoming celebration of the twelfth anniversary of the bolshevist revolution in what once was Russia. Kindly note the ridicule of the Navy and of our Government and bear in mind that this circular was widely distributed in Chicago by one of the organizations in this country that is the direct representative of the camarilla headquartering in Moscow to whose propaganda airplane the United States Department of State asked the United States Navy Department to extend its radio facilities.

How long are we to indulge officially in a policy of bringing vipers into our country and making things pleasant for them in order to facilitate their work of spreading their deadly poison?

U. S. Envoys To Be Guests Of President

Guests at Dinner Tonight to Meet Mr. Dawes, Mr. Guggenheim.

By JEAN ELIOT.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. HOOVER entertained at dinner last night and will be hosts again this evening, when their guests have been asked to meet the United States Ambassador to Great Britain and Mrs. Charles Gates Dawes and the United States Ambassador to Cuba and Mrs. Harry Guggenheim. Gen. and Mrs. Dawes and Mr. and Mrs. Guggenheim will arrive at the White House today and will remain until Thursday.

The dinner tonight will be informal, the guests having been invited by telephone. Since their arrival in this country, Gen. and Mrs. Dawes have been at their home in Evanston, Ill. They are due to sail for England on Friday, the ambassador returning to his duties at the Court of St. James. This will be Mrs. Dawes' first visit in Washington since she left immediately after the inauguration of President Hoover. Gen. Dawes was here for a day or two prior to sailing for his first diplomatic post. Mr. and Mrs. Guggenheim are also scheduled to leave the country shortly, being due in Havana on November 20.

Already elaborate preparations are being made in the Cuban capital by government officials and members of the American colony for the reception of the new envoy and his wife. Mr. Noble Brandon Judah, former United States Ambassador to Cuba, and Mrs. Judah are planning to spend the Christmas holidays in Havana, where they will be extensively entertained.

Dr. John R. Mott is a guest at the White House, having arrived yesterday.

The guests last night were Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Young, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Husband, Mr. and Mrs. Robe C. White, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Sisson, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles McK. Saltzman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Teague, Mr. and Mrs. George Akerson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Scattergood, Gen. and Mrs. C. E. Blethen and Dr. Mott.

Unless something unforeseen develops, Mrs. Hoover expects to attend the opening concert of the Philadelphia Orchestra of this season, which will be held this afternoon in Constitution Hall, with Mr. Leopold Stokowski conducting. Mrs. Hoover is a season box holder, as are many other women prominent in Washington society.

Former Gov. Nellie Ross Attends Forum-Luncheon.

Former Gov. Nellie Tayloe Ross was among the guests at the weekly forum-luncheon yesterday at the Woman's National Democratic Club, when Dr. Mildred Wertheimer, of the Foreign Policy Association of New York, was the guest of honor and speaker. Her subject was "What Happened at The Hague Conference and Geneva This Year?"

Dr. Wertheimer has spent the last six months in central Europe, where she had interviews with many of the ministers of foreign affairs, later attending The Hague Conference as special press correspondent; also the League Assembly.

Some of those attending the luncheon yesterday were Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, president of the club; Mrs. George M. Eckels, Mrs. Alvin Dodd, Mrs. E. A. Stewart, Mrs. William H. Clagett, Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. K. T. Abrams, Miss Caroline Reilly, Mrs. Rodney Bean, Mrs. Charles Michaelson, Miss Connolly, Mrs. Edward Keating, Mrs. Ray Palmer, Mrs. Charles Warren, Mrs. E. H. Jackson, Mrs. Donald Woodward, Miss Jeanette C. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tate, Mrs. Bertram Chesterman, Mrs. William Conant, Mrs. Harry Rickey, Maj. Julia Stimson, Mrs. Samuel Herrick, Mrs. Florence Boeckel and Mrs. Frederic W. Wile.

Mrs. Clarence M. Busch, president of the National League of American Penwomen, and Mrs. Herbert D. Brown, author of "Grandmother Brown's Hundred Years," the Atlantic prize biography, will be the guests of honor and speakers at the Columbian Women, meeting this afternoon. Mrs. Busch will speak on "Women in Letters Today," and Mrs. Brown on "Grandmother Brown." The meeting will be held in Corcoran Hall of George Washington University at 4 o'clock.

During the social hour preceding the meeting the young women who are members of the editorial boards of the George Washington University student publications will act as hostesses. They are Miss Dorothy Ruth, Miss Winifred Beall, Miss Margaret Monk, Miss Mary Hudson, Miss Naomi Crumley, Miss Mary Sproul and Miss Ruth Campbell, of the board of editors of The Cherry Tree; Miss Betsy Booth, Miss Hazel Peterson and Miss Dorothy Albert, of the board of editors of The Hatchet; Miss Elizabeth Ford, Miss Marie Nold, Miss Miriam deHaas and Miss Ruth Markwood, of the board of editors of The Colonial Wig; Miss Elizabeth Bunten, Miss Aubrey Somervell and Miss Edith Norris, of the board of editors of the Ghost.

Miss Elizabeth Cullen, president of the Columbian Women, will preside.

On Saturday the Columbian Women will hold a treasure hunt at Dower House, the ancestral home of Lord Baltimore near Rosaryville, Md. Proceeds will be devoted to the scholarship fund. Miss Virginia Diedel, chairman of the finance committee, is in charge of arrangements.

Senator and Mrs. Frederick Steiwer entertained at luncheon Sunday, when their guests were Senator and Mrs. Daniel O. Hastings, Senator Arthur Capper, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Richard H. Leigh, Mrs. Roesch, mother of Mrs. Steiwer, and Commander and Mrs. Norman Murray Smith.

The Counselor of the Turkish Embassy and Mme. Bedy Bey have taken an apartment at the Hay-Adams House.

Capt. and Mrs. George W. Steele snapped as they landed from the Mauretania. Capt. Steele has been serving as naval attache of the U. S. Embassy in Paris.

Lord Bishop Will Attend College Rites

Rt. Rev. F. T. Woods Is Expected in Capital by November 14.

The Right Rev. F. T. Woods, Lord Bishop of Winchester, who is coming to Washington to attend the dedication of the College of Preachers on November 14, will be a guest at the College of Preachers while in town. Apparently Mrs. Woods is not to come with him. She is in this country, however, and, as the guest of the diocesan committee of Pennsylvania, is to make an address on "Woman as a Citizen" at the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia on Monday afternoon, November 25.

The Lord Bishop of Winchester holds high place officially in the Established Church of England and is regarded as one of the most distinguished of the English clergy.

It is in honor of the Lord Bishop of Winchester that the English-Speaking Union will entertain at luncheon at the Willard on November 15.

The Canadian Minister and Mrs. Massey will have as their guests for a week the distinguished French economist, M. Andre Siegfried, and Mme. Siegfried, who will arrive in Washington Friday. M. Siegfried is best known to the general public as the author of "America Comes of Age."

The United States Ambassador to Mexico, Mr. Dwight W. Morrow, was the guest of honor at a dinner and reception on Saturday evening, given by the local authorities at Acapulco, State of Guerrero. Ambassador Morrow plans to visit Chilpancingo, capital of the State of Guerrero, before returning to Mexico City. This is the Ambassador's first trip to the West Coast of Mexico.

Mrs. Marshall Leighton is in New York. She will return to Washington Saturday.

ARDEBIL

Shah Ismael I—in ordering Maksoud, of Kashan, to weave a carpet for the Mosque Ardebil*—sponsored the creation of a masterpiece which has stood since 1540 A. D. as a challenge to other rug weavers. It would require pages of description to cover the wealth of ornamental design embodied in the Ardebil design, detail comprehensive of the period's sacred symbolism and superlative excellence in the rug-weaving art.

Almost four hundred years after the original's weaving, Karastan has reproduced its every feature in a lovely creation, in a triumph for American rug weaving. The Ardebil pattern is featured, among other room-size Karastan rugs, at $195 in a display on the Fifth Floor.

*The original Mosque Ardebil Carpet is now treasured in the Victoria and Albert Museum, South Kensington, England.

Early Season Ball Attended By Debutantes

Mrs. Philip Lee Phillips and Mrs. Hoes are Their Hostesses.

With the first formal "coming out party" still a fortnight away, the debutantes are enjoying a merry round of early season parties. Last night Mrs. Gouverneur Hoes and Mrs. Philip Lee Phillips were hostesses at a ball at the Willard to which the entire group was invited, with cavaliers to match and enough extra dancing men to insure an imposing "stag line."

Some of the debutantes of yesteryear were also included, the company numbering in all nearly 300. The guests were, however, all from the younger set. A buffet supper was served at midnight.

Guests from a half dozen smart dinner parties came together at the dance. Miss Loranda Prochnik, daughter of the Minister of Austria, and Mme. Prochnik entertained ten guests at the legation preceding the party, among them being her particular chums of the debutante group, Miss Laura Tuckerman and Miss Elsie Ekengren. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wilmer Bolling entertained for their debutante daughter, Miss Clara Bolling, and Mrs. Gillett-Hill had a young peoples' dinner for her goddaughter, Miss Jean Hay, whom she is to present to society soon.

Mrs. Hoes and Mrs. Phillips received together. Under the leadership of Mr. Bowman MacArthur, a group of young men served as a floor committee, their chief duty being to see that presentations were quickly made and that the strangers in the group of debutantes were made to feel at home.

Col. and Mrs. Edward Clifford and their daughter, Miss Helen Clifford, returned yesterday from Princeton, N. J., where they passed the week-end with Col. and Mrs. Clifford's son, Mr. Robert Clifford, a student at the university.

Swedish Minister's Wife Leaves For Trip.

Mme. Bostrom, wife of the Minister of Sweden, and her daughter, Miss Ellis Bostrom, have left town for a week's trip to Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Representative and Mrs. W. R. Coyle, of Bethlehem, Pa., are at the Hay-Adams for a few days on their way South. They will remain South for about a month, before returning to the Hay-Adams, where they have taken an apartment for the congressional season.

Gen. and Mrs. Cheatham Will Present Daughter.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. B. Frank Cheatham have issued invitations for a reception on Thursday, November 28, when they will present their daughter, Miss Virginia Cheatham, to society. Miss Cheatham is a student at Vassar and will make her debut during her Thanksgiving holiday, again joining the festivities at Christmas time.

Gen. and Mrs. Cheatham sailed last week for a short trip in Europe and will return in time for the party.

Commander and Mrs. Norman Murray Smith entertained at dinner last evening at the Willard, when their guest included the Turkish Ambassador, Ahmed Moukhtar Bey; Senator and Mrs. Frederick Steiwer, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Richard H. Leigh, Mr. and Mrs. Rowland K. Smith, Judge and Mrs. C. C. McChord, Capt. and Mrs. Clarence Kempff and Mrs. Herbert Sparrow.

Commander and Mrs. Smith have moved from the house they occupied on Tracy place last year and have taken an apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street for the winter.

Capt. George W. Steele, naval attache to the United States Embassy in Paris, is now at the Mayflower. Capt. and Mrs. Steele arrived in New York on Friday from Paris and will sail again for France November 18.

Mrs. Steele is in Pittsburgh, her former home, and due to their short visit in this country will be unable to spend any time in the Capital. As Mrs. Wilfred Du Puy, she lived in Washington before her marriage to Capt. Steele and has many friends here.

Dr. Rowe Entertains U. S. Mexican Group.

The director general of the Pan-American Union, Dr. L. S. Rowe, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Pan-American Annex in honor of the members of the International Water Commission of the United States and Mexico.

The guests invited to meet the commission were Ambassador of Mexico and Mme. Telles, the Charge d'Affaires of El Salvador and Senora de Leiva, Senor Dr. Miguel Cruchaga, former Ambassador of Chile; Senor Dr. Simon Planas-Suares and Senora de Planas-Suarez, of Venezuela; the agent for the General Claims Commission of the United States and Mexico, Senor Dr. Bartolome Carbajal y Rosas, and Senora de Carbajal; Senor Dr. Jose Romero, of the General Claims Commission; the assistant director of the Pan-American Union and Senora de Gil Borges; Mr. Arthur Bliss Lane, chief of the Mexican division of the Department of State; Mr. Richard C. Tanis, of the Mexican division; Dr. Thomas H. Healy, assistant dean of the Foreign Service School of Georgetown University, and Mr. Jose Tercero, of Mexico, chief of the division of translation of the Pan-American Union.

The Mexican section of the commission was represented by the chairman, Senor Dr. Fortunato Dozal, and Senora de Dozal, Dr. Gustavo P. Serrano and Senora de Serrano, Senor Dr. Ignacio Lopez Bancalari, Senora de Lopez Bancalari and their daughters, Senorita Gusdalupe and Senorita Terese de Lopez; the technical adviser, Senor Dr. Armando Santacruz, and Senora de Santacruz; Engineers Senor Don J. L. Favela, Senora Don Becerril Colin and Senora de Becerril Colin, Senor Don Carlos G. Blake and Senora de Blake, and Senor Don Federico Ramos, secretary to the Mexican section.

From the American section there were present: The chairman, Dr. Elwood Mead and Mrs. Mead; Gen. and Mrs. Lansing H. Beach, Mr. W. E. Anderson, Engineers Mr. Frank Adams, Mr. Karl F. Keeler and Mrs. Keeler and Miss M. A. Schnurr, secretary.

Mrs. Thomas Hardy Taliaferro is in Emergency Hospital suffering from a fractured ankle. With Mr. Taliaferro and a friend from out of town, she was inspecting the Lincoln Memorial by night and slipped in the half light and fell several steps, breaking her ankle. It is expected that she will return shortly to her apartment at the Concord.

Mr. John Francis Amherst Cecil has returned to Biltmore, N. C., for a brief visit. Mrs. Cecil is remaining in town, as she is taking a course at the Corcoran School of Art.

Mrs. Edward Garret Riddick has arrived from her home in Memphis, Tenn., to visit her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Snow, jr.

Mrs. Gillett-Hill To Present Miss Hay.

Mrs. Gillett-Hill will give a tea on November 22 at her house in E street to present Miss Jean Hay to society. Miss Hay is Mrs. Gillett-Hill's goddaughter.

Mrs. Virginia White Speel is confined to her residence, 1755 N street, by illness and has been obliged to cancel all her engagements.

Mrs. A. Davis Ireland is staying at the Mayflower while closing her house at 1790 Sixteenth street, preparatory to spending the winter in New York.

Miss Sophy Stanton has recently returned from a trip around the world and has opened her apartment in the Galleon. She entertained at luncheon Sunday at the Anchorage.

Mrs. Joseph H. Bradley and her daughter, Miss Mary Parrish Bradley, have come to town from their summer place, Rosemont Farm, near Rockville, Md., and have taken possession of the residence at 1715 Nineteenth street.

Mrs. C. C. Calhoun will go today to Charleston, S. C., to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Waring, and to make the acquaintance of her infant grandson, Charles Waring, jr., born recently. Under the engaging title "Autobiography of a Chameleon," Mrs. Calhoun has a volume of reminiscences to be published soon. This deals with the author's five "incarnations." The volume is signed "Daisy Breaux," Mrs. Calhoun's girlhood name, under which she has written extensively.

Mrs. Harold Smoot will entertain at luncheon today, when Mrs. Edward Everett Gann will be among her guests.

The birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fremont-Smith in Philadelphia last week prompts speculation as to the acquisition of a prospective novelist in the Fremont-Smith family. The mother, formerly Miss Mary Dixon Thayer, is the creator of several distinctive novels, including "The Intellectuals" and several others kindly received by critics, and a poem, "The Prayer," named the prize winning poem by the Browning Society in 1923.

Mrs. Fremont-Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thayer, of Philadelphia, and a great granddaughter of George M. Dallas, one time Vice President of the United States. Mr. Fremont-Smith is a former resident of Washington.

Mrs. Harold E. Irish, of New York, is visiting her father, Mr. R. Golden Donaldson, in his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel for a few days.

Dr. and Mrs. C. Augustus Simpson had with them for the week-end their daughter, Miss Frances Simpson, who is attending Fairfax Hall School.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Will Give Luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Moore Stuart will entertain at luncheon in the palm court of the Mayflower on November 25 for their debutante daughter, Miss Grace Moffat Stuart.

Col. and Mrs. Edward Goring Bliss have given up their house in Church street and have moved to 1736 Q street.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Snyder and their daughters have returned to their Wasington residence, 1126 Sixteenth street, after spending the summer at their country home in Virginia.

Maj. and Mrs. Stuart Richardson, of London, England, are passing some time at the Carlton.

Mrs. Hayne Ellis, who has been visiting her father, Mr. R. A. Long, in Kansas City, for the past few weeks, has rejoined Capt. Ellis at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. James McKee entertained a company of fifteen at dinner at Le Paradis last evening.

Dinner to Be Given By Trinity Alumnae.

Members of the Washington chapter of Trinity College Alumnae Association will entertain at dinner this evening at Collier's Inn in honor of several graduates of 1929. They include Miss Elinor Brady, Miss Adele Cavanaugh, Miss Sylvia Crowley, Miss Eleanor Finch, Miss Mary Fitzgerald, Miss Margaret Geagan, Miss Dorothy Harrington, Miss Angela Hicks, Miss Mary Howe, Miss Catherine Sheehan and Miss Margaret Sheehan.

Mrs. Frank O'Hara, former member of the faculty of the University of Minnesota, will speak. She will be introduced by Mrs. James J. Hayden, president of the chapter. Others who will speak are Mrs. Aubrey B. Fennell, Miss Ruth Craven, Miss Julia O'Neil, Miss Angela Hicks and Miss Julia Diggins.

The Reserve Officers Association, District of Columbia Department, will open its social program by holding a reception, card party and dance at the L'Aiglon Salon Saturday evening, November 23, to which Army, Navy and Marine officers and their wives have been invited.

The committee in charge comprises Maj. Charles Demonet, president; Maj. Lester Wilson, Maj. H. K. Bentley, Lieut. Charles Riemer, Lieut. Col. T. S. Troy, Lieut. Col. Robert P. Parrott, Maj. Frederick Livingstone, Maj. William Walker Smith, Maj. F. A. Frost, Maj. L. M. Leisenring, Maj. Harry W. Hort, Maj. C. P. Skemp, Capt. Arthur C. Adair, Capt. Milton J. Landvoight and Capt. W. W. Bercaw.

In a morning lecture today Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard will discuss several pertinent questions, including a brief resume of the present tariff situation, a discussion of events in Turkey, now celebrating its sixth anniversary as a republic, and will touch upon the subject of Muscle Shoals. The lecture will be given at 11 o'clock at the American Association of University Women, 1634 I street.

At the first regular business meeting of the Art Promoters Club, the following officers were elected for the new year: Mr. Felix Lake, president; Mr. Isaac Gans, Miss Margaret Louise O'Brien, Miss Mae Vance and Mr. Jess Hohrback, vice presidents; Miss Mittie Burch, corresponding secretary; Miss Deal Bogue, treasurer; Miss Marie La Cavera, recording secretary, and Miss Pauline Brune, social secetary. Mr. William E. Huntington has been appointed executive director of the organization. There will be a meeting of the new officers Friday at the home of Mme. de Lagnel.

England-to-Canada Air Line Is Proposed

Prince Albert, Sask., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Premier Mackenzie King today disclosed that negotiations are under way with a firm in England looking toward establishment of an air route between Great Britain and Canada. The proposed route, the premier said, is across the lower portion of Greenland, North Labrador and Hudson Bay, probably ending at Winnipeg.

King said he was not prepared to disclose the name of the British company, but it is known that the proposed air line is entirely separate from that for which the dirigibles R-100 and 4-100 were planned.

Majestic RADIO

"Now Again the Public Benefits by Increased Majestic Economies" . . . Wm. O. Grunow

CONSISTENTLY, day in and day out, month in and month out, Majestic has produced up to 6,000 radio receiving sets per day, until nearly 2,000,000 people now own a Majestic radio.

MAJESTIC is the only concern in the world with such a record. It is the only concern in the world with the facilities to build such tremendous production.

IN THE EIGHT great Majestic plants, employing more than 15,000 people, economy of operation is a scientific study. Under expert guidance, Majestic has literally been able to improve the unimprovable. By constantly checking and rechecking every minute operation of production, Majestic has effected economies that at one time were thought impossible to attain.

MAJESTIC'S POLICY has always been to pass on to its dealers and the public all economies made possible through increased production over a long period, and through improvement of that production.

AGAIN, therefore, Majestic is enabled to assert its leadership by offering the public sensational savings in the purchase of the best radio set that money can buy. Note these new low prices, and remember that you are buying a Majestic set, the standard of value, at the price named, only because of the production job that the whole world is still talking about.

REMEMBER, too, that in its own factories, Majestic makes from raw material every part and parcel of its radio sets, including its own tubes. For the greatest enjoyment from your Majestic set, and for the perfect reproduction which you are assured of with Majestic tubes, be sure to insist that your dealer equips your set with Majestic tubes.

Chick Sale Will Go on Air Tonight

Will Recount Experience as Witness in Defense Suit Over WRC at 9. Armistice Day Program on WMAL at 9.

Eagle-eyed Elmer, the slickest goldarned feller that ever bought the Brooklyn Bridge, will have a large audience when he broadcasts over the Eveready Hour at 9 o'clock from WRC. Elmer Higginbottom Jones is his full name, but to millions he is Chic Sale, specialist in structural engineering of a very important type.

He will recount for listeners the incident when he was called as witness for the defense in a suit against a railroad. Elmer was watchman at a crossing where the Hartford express and a touring car disputed the right of way and tied.

The driver of the car contended to the court that there was no light at the crossing. Elmer testified he waved his lantern exactly 24 times to head off the motorist. Like Sam Weller at the trial of Mr. Pickwick, Elmer tied the smart lawyers in bowknots. The case won, Elmer received the approbation of the defense counsel, but admitted he had been mighty nervous for a while.

"Why?" asked his attorney.

"I was afraid that danged lawyer any minute would ask me if my lantern was lit," replied Elmer.

A transcontinental hook-up from Station WEAF will carry this special Chic Sale broadcast. Nathaniel Shilkret will conduct the orchestra in a program of background music.

A group of stage artists will be heard on the Radio-Keith-Orpheum hour at 10:30 o'clock this evening. Among these are John Steele, tenor; Leo Reisman and his orchestra, Betty King, male impersonator, and the Watson Sisters.

How a national traffic light system for highroads of the air was installed and operated will be told by Col. Paul A. Henderson, who will address the radio audience during the Roads of the Sky program at 7 o'clock. His subject will be "Lighting the Skyroads for Airplanes."

A special Armistice Day program will be heard during the Old Gold-Paul Whiteman hour to be broadcast at 9 o'clock from WMAL. Three medleys of wartime songs will be given during this program, presenting among others such familiar airs as "Madelon," "Good-by Broadway, Hello France," "Roses of Picardy" and "My Buddy."

Bing Crosby, Mildred Bailey, Jack Fulton, the Rhythm Boys and the Old Gold Trio will assist in the presentation of this program.

"Lady Luck," a story by Jack London that has for its setting a salmon cannery situated on a bleak and almost deserted portion of the Alaskan coast, will be presented as "True Romances" from WMAL at 8:30 o'clock.

Helen Oelheim, contralto, will sing two solos, accompanied by the Fada Orchestra, under the direction of David Mendoza, at 10 o'clock.

Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians and the Paramount Orchestra will be featured for a half-hour each between 11 and 12 o'clock.

"Mission Bells," a Spanish romance with the early missionary period of California for its background, is the story which Empire Builders will tell tonight. A musical setting has been arranged by Andy Sanella. This program may be heard from WJZ and WBW at 10:30 o'clock tonight.

Station WOL will be on the air from 7:30 o'clock until noon today with a regular program, including the household chat and beauty talk by Bertha Parker. A program of luncheon music will be transmitted at 1 o'clock. The station will then be silent until 6 o'clock, when the early evening features will be presented. Two hours of dance music will close the station, beginning at 10 o'clock.

Hoover Will Speak on Air Nov. 11th

Coast-to-Coast Network Arranged on Armistice Day at 8:30 P. M. Great Orchestras to Be Heard Sunday Evening.

President Herbert Hoover will speak through a coast-to-coast network of stations associated with the National Broadcasting Co. on Armistice Day. His address before the American Legion post here will be picked up from the Washington Auditorium and will go on the air at 8:30 o'clock the evening of November 11.

President Hoover will be introduced by Maj. O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of the American Legion, who will preside at the gathering. The United States Army Band will play at the meeting. George F. Hicks, of the WRC studios, will be the announcer.

The radio audience will have a chance to hear some of the great symphony orchestra conductors in a series of concerts, in the Atwater Kent hour, beginning Sunday evening with the appearance of Artur Bodansky, one of the greatest conductors of Wagnerian music.

The list includes such musical celebrities as Fritz Reiner, of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra; Willem Mengelberg, of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra; Willem van Hoogstraten, of the Portland (Oreg.) Symphony Orchestra and director for five years of the Lewissohn Stadium Concerts in New York; Eugene Goossens, famous modern English composer and director of the Rochester Symphony Orchestra; Enrique Fernandez Arbos, for 25 years director of the Madrid Symphony Orchestra and guest conductor this year of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra; Artur Rodzinski, director of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra and associated as guest conductor with the Philharmonic of New York, and the Curtis Institute of Music, and several others.

This season A. Atwater Kent decided that in addition to the great opera and concert stars that have been presented in his Sunday evening radio programs, guest coductors should be brought to the studio from time to time to demonstrate their individual interpretative genius.

Arrangements have been made to have conductors famous throughout the United States and Europe direct the orchestra from time to time during the season. The Atwater Kent Orchestra, organized from Philharmonic-Orchestra members, has been increased to such size that it will be a complete symphonic unit.

Bodansky, who will appear in the program of November 10 when Reinald Werrenrath, baryton, is guest artist, is a native of Vienna and has had a career of distinguished accomplishment.

A musical jury, composed of five of the country's foremost symphonic authorities, is now engaged in judging the merits of more than a hundred original manuscripts submitted by American composers in a contest for the $25,000 prize offered by the Victor talking machine division of the Radio-Victor Corporation. Announcement of the contest was made a little more than a year ago and the closing date then fixed was May 28 of this year. Since that time the manuscripts received have been carefully studied and discussed by the deciding committee which includes Mme. Olga Samaroff, Rudolph Ganz, Serge Koussevitzky, of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Frederick Stock, of the Chicago Symphony, and Leopold Stowkowski, of the Philadelphia Orchestra. It had been hoped to announce the winner by October 3, but the judges have reported that the manuscripts submitted are of such high merit that they are having difficulty in determining which is the best.

The contest was open to Americans only and its purpose was to secure, if possible, a worthy and representative American symphony. It is planned that the formal announcement and probably the first public performance of the symphony chosen will take place at a dinner to be given in New York as soon as the final selection has been made.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Evening dress made from one that had gone out of style, using the skirt of the old one. (A Dah-ray Design.)

I'LL tell you something—something I wonder if many advertisers and mere editors realize. And that is that women don't have to be urged to buy lovely things if they can afford them. And that clever women can manage whether they can afford to or not——?

Was a day when heartless Dame Fashion changed her mind at such a dizzy pace that only wealthy people were able to keep up with her whims. Those were the days of revolution. Today every woman can be smart, can be in the mode, can be attractively dressed—and every woman is!

Today a woman can afford to buy an expensive gown because it will not go out of style until it wears out. In consequence, I am suggesting that we buy fewer and more expensive garments. And that if the mode changes, we who wish to do so, have the right to change the garments!

I want you to just look at the Dah-ray designed evening dress illustrated for you today. It is something that Mamzelle made over for La Chic Secretaire out of one of those heavily beaded evening dresses that have short skirts with even hem-lines all around. It just did seem a shame to give it up, yet the evening mode demands length, in fact demands a lot of things that this type of dress hasn't. So it happened! A very blousy bodice, but extended into very tight hips, as is the demand of the evening mode. Then shoulder-straps and low girdle of rhinestone trimmings to match the beading on the skirt. The front of the bodice is also filled in with rhinestone trimmings, and there you are!

The Christmas Box.

Little girls, like big ones, adore new dresses, and little girls' mothers are so-o-o-o pleased to find them in the Christmas Box Santa Claus leaves by the chimney. And the hand-made frock that you take the time to make will be much more acceptable than the one you rush about to buy. Soft velvet, just big enough for a wee dress, becomes its loveliest self with a design embroidered on the shoulder portion. And if you can't quite steal the time to make up the dress, just the embroidered material will be a most welcome gift—and mother can be sure it's made to fit.

* * * *

Give you three guesses as to what we thought would be the most helpful suggestions for this week's illustrated leaflet, having in mind the Christmas spirit? No! No! Yes!!!—sofa pillows, of course. New and different designs, and a study of the appropriateness of design and color to the room in which they are to "settle down" to a contented life. Don't you think it would be fun to fix up your room or some one else's for Christmas—with brand new pillows? Just send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, and this most practical leaflet is yours!

* * * *

Lace is much in use for both afternoon and evening, and for the latter the new coarse mesh silk tulles are most attractive.

It is still au courant, and delightfully practical, for a jacquette of lace to be worn over the sleeveless evening gown to form a late afternoon or dinner dress. Bright colors in lace are favored.

Are you looking each Sunday in The Washington Post for the weekly Dare Fashion Letter? We hope you enjoy it.

AU REVOIR!

Jelleff Copies Chanel's Gown

For Evening occasions, this model of black net with its Princess line expresses the grace and dignity of the season's mode—Net, a newcomer, is much favored by Paris Couturiers for formal occasions and in this gown Chanel has added to its richness by the interpolation of scalloped bandings of Chenille at frequent intervals.

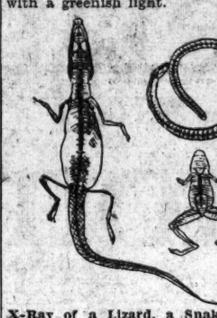
Uncle Ray's Corner

Discovery of the X-Ray.

MYSTERY stories and mystery movies seem to be popular these days. Here is a true mystery story from science.

On an autumn day, 36 years ago, a German professor—William Roentgen—was making tests with a glass tube from which the air had been pumped. By passing electric currents through the tube, he made it glow with a greenish light.



X-Ray of a Lizard, a Snake and a Frog.

Being called away from his test room, the professor laid the tube on a book, which was just above a photographic plate.

After returning to his test room, Roentgen decided to spend an hour taking pictures outdoors. When the plates were developed, one of the pictures contained the outline of a key, in addition to the picture which had been taken.

How did the form of the key get on the picture? That was a mystery.

Roentgen remembered that one of the plates had been under the book. He opened the book and within the covers he found a metal key. It was of the same shape as the key in the picture.

It seemed to the professor that this key must have made the outline on the picture; but how could it do so when it had been inside the book? That was the deepest mystery of all.

Roentgen decided to see whether the same thing could be done again. He placed the book with the key in the same place over another photographic plate. Then he placed a glowing vacuum tube over the book.

Again there was the image of the key on the plate!

Prof. Roentgen decided that rays from the tube must have gone through the book to the plate, but that some of the rays had been stopped by the metal key.

What kind of rays were those? Roentgen did not know, and neither did other scientists. They came to be called X-rays.

X-ray pictures have since been made of the bones in the bodies of people and animals.

"Hooveram" Suggested As New Name for R-101

London, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The report that R-101, Britain's new state airship, would be given a new name soon has brought on an avalanche of letters to newspapers. Numerous suggestions have been made to name the R-101 after some member of the royal family. Other name-pickers favor a resounding word like "Britannia" or "Glorious."

One volunteer, however, insists the ship should be called the "Hooveram" because it was launced in England while President Hoover and Ramsay MacDonald were holding their peace parley in America.

Gum Sticks This Year Total 14,000,000,000

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Foreign countries will buy $34,000,000 worth of chewing gum from the United States this year, based on estimates of production and export.

Fourteen billion sticks, $174,000,000 worth, is the total, if domestic gum eaters are included. In other words, America uses 80 per cent of her chewing-gum output.

"Ag" School Teaching Farm Machinery Repair

Manton, Mich., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Manton Agricultural School is one of the first in Michigan, perhaps in the Middle West, to add a course in farm machinery repair. It is attempting to teach the farmers of tomorrow how to repair implements on the farm.

The course is being given in a shop which the students have constructed since school opened in August.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SPEED OF SMITH GIRLS.

THE writer recently spent one day on the campus of a large college of girls located in New England but patronized by people in all parts of this country and even beyond. There is no reason for not saying the college was Smith and the number of girls exceeds 2,000.

Smith College girls never ride when they can walk and they never walk when they can run. They may start for class by walking soberly and sedately, but they are more than likely to wind up by running the last block or two. The yen to run is so strong that they will speed up when there appears to be plenty of time on hand. Some day a runner will come out of Smith College who will make the female Finns look like they were tied to a post. The writer thought he could detect certain indirect effects of this walking and running custom—effects which may be far-reaching.

In walking the girls had a long stride and a fine swing. Mechanically, their walking was good. It was forthright. It got them over the ground with economy of effort. A girl with a mincing step was rarely seen. This gait assumes broad shoes and fairly low heels. It would be mechanically impossible for any one wearing high shoes or shoes otherwise highly improper to walk with the stride and swing these girls had for any length of time or distance. Occasionally a girl wearing high heels, or even spike heels, was seen, but that was not often.

The statement that none rode when they could walk did not apply to riding on self-propelled vehicles. These girls have revived the bicycle and that scores another for them. Since the influence of college girls is strong in the land we may yet see high heels and mincing steps take their place by the side of hoop skirts and the women should be seen and not heard custom in a museum of discards.

If one may judge by the tanned skins one observed these college girls should be free from colds, coughs, sore throats and other infections until about Christmas time. Like the humble codfish, the symbolic bird of Massachusetts, they have laid up stores of ergosterol in the summer time for winter use.

In all probability, what they have stored will protect them for the remainder of the year. Let us hope they will get enough out of door skating on Paradise Pond and playing in the snow on Mount Tom to keep them safe until the sun comes out of winter quarters.

BLOOD PRESSURE AND PEP.

J. L. writes: I recently read an article in one of the weekly magazines in which the author states that people with a higher blood pressure have a greater ambition and do more than people with normal blood pressure. Would a low blood pressure tend to make a person less ambitious and less attentive to his work?

REPLY.

The statement is at least partly true. People with abnormally low blood pressure live a long time and are good insurance risks, but they have many aches and pains, complain a great deal, do not enjoy life, have but little enthusiasm and not peppy, up-and-coming business people.

ODOR OF AMMONIA.

Mrs. S. writes: What is the cause of urine having the odor of ammonia?

REPLY.

There are several causes. When present in babies the cause is generally soap left in the diaper. Another cause, often encountered in babies, is overeating, especially of cream and other fat foods. A cause encountered more frequently in adults is infection with an ammonia producing bacillus.

MAY NOT BE SHINGLES.

W. G. M. writes: What can I do for shingles? Great welts come out on my shoulders, itching and stinging, accompanied by something like neuritis.

REPLY.

Your description fits urticaria or nettlerash. It does not fit shingles, which is herpes.

Urticaria or nettlerash is generally due to something in the diet, although there may be another cause. To prevent it, find the cause and avoid it.

To obtain relief, bathe the skin in some soothing water such as water to which has been added either soda, witch hazel, ammonia or grain alcohol.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

November 5.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX, probably the most popular woman poet America ever produced, was born this day, 1855. She died in 1919. "Poems of Passion," which appeared in 1883, gave her a national reputation. Her verse in later years was published by newspapers from coast to coast. In more recent years she dwelt on subjects pertaining to the higher life, brotherhood of man and faith in the future life. In addition to her verse, she wrote three novels, "Mal Moulee," "A Double Life" and "An Erring Woman's Love."

Ida M. Tarbell, the noted American biographer, was born this day, 1857. From 1906 to 1915 she was associate editor of the American Magazine. Miss Tarbell is best known for her books, "History of the Standard Oil Company," and "Life of Abraham Lincoln." She also has written biographies of Napoleon, Mme. Roland and Elbert Gary, and "The Business of Being a Woman," "The Tariff in Our Times" and "The Ways of Women."

Other noted women born this day include Carolina Ferdinanda Louisa, Duchesse de Berry, 1798; and Florence P. Miller, English physician, lecturer and author, 1854.

Wives of Tomorrow

"Regrets."

MARCIA, broken by grief, asks us today for some word of comfort and some means of ridding the heart of terrible and deep regret.

"I misjudged and denounced a loved one, caused disgrace, financial loss, illness and death, only to find that my claims and accusations were groundless and my persecution of an innocent dear one so bitter that life meant nothing. If only the person were living I could beg forgiveness, even if I could not undo what I have done. But when they are gone, when no voice can reach them nothing is left but the constant company of the knowledge that in their last hour they could not forgive and went on without one word. Is there any comfort possible for such a tormented being as myself? If so, can you offer that comfort? The bitterest thought is that even in death there was no forgiveness of my act, no wish to explain—just to be rid of my hateful efforts at revenge."

Poor Marcia, still earthly, still stumbling through this maze of agonizing error, still seeing even her own mistakes through eyes that have not found the light. No wonder she can not grasp the all-comprehending knowledge that comes as the tired shell drops away and the spirit soars. Poor tired, aching heart, troubled about many things. How this loved one, looking on, must long to speak, and tell of understanding greater than forgiveness, understanding that does not even hold forgiveness necessary, peace that longs only to bless.

A thousand times more bitter than any suffering Marcia ever inflicted is the remorse that now is hers, and when she, still chained to earth, regrets so deeply the pain she caused how much more must that departed one regret what Marcia is now experiencing. And if she would really make amends for the past she can best do so by trying to understand the love and complete forgiveness that is hers. There are no little thoughts in that beautiful beyond, where only the spirit survives.

In the eyes, that know the light, Marcia is just a suffering soul, and the thoughts that are bent upon her are thoughts only of love. The eyes that close in this world open in the next seeing all things clearly. It is worth death to know the hearts of our loved ones, and Marcia's heart is known now, and her stumbling and mistakes are understood.

Be of good heart, dear child; this journey we are taking is charted by other hands than ours. We walk according to our light, and stumble often, and that is understood by those who, standing in a great light, peer into our surrounding darkness longing to guide us, hoping we understand. Your loved one knows, and your stumblings are like the stumblings of a little child. Be of good cheer!

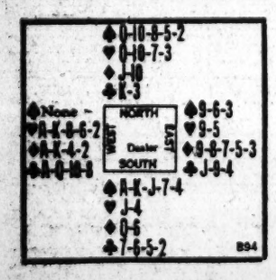
Baby Mine

WORK'S BRIDGE



THE above hand was held in a game of Auction Bridge. I sat South and bid one Spade; West doubled; my partner (North), in a successful effort to shut out an answer to the double, bid three Spades and East passed. I passed and West bid four Hearts which obtained the contract.

My partner opened with a Spade, West ruffed and led two rounds of trumps. At trick 4 he tried to knock our two trumps together, but failed. My partner won trick 4 and drew West's last trump with the Queen. Then we made four Spade tricks, so that West made only one-odd and went down three.

Why do I include this hand under "Aid from Adversaries?"

WHERE WEST ERRED.

It obviously would have been wiser for Declarer to let our last two trumps make separately rather than take the risk that he did in trying to knock them together. With our Spades established, the third trump lead was more valorous than discreet.

I think, however, that West was guilty of a serious error before the play started. I see no excuse for his failure to make a second informatory double. On the second round of the bidding when he bid four Hearts, he was strong enough to force East to bid four of his longest suit were it Hearts, Diamonds or Clubs. Even so, I do not put the entire blame on West. It seems to me that East, after West's double on the first round, should not have permitted West's four-Heart bid to stand when he (East) was so weak in that suit; it appears to me that he should have risked a bid of five Diamonds. It is obvious that if East had bid Diamonds, either in response to West's second double or to take out West's four Hearts, East and West would have made a small slam.

Had the hand been played at Contract Bridge, the correct bidding would have been: South one Spade, West two Spades, North three Spades, East four Diamonds, South pass, and West at least five Diamonds—or if venturesome six Diamonds.

HOROWITZ PLEASES AS CONCERT PIANIST

Russian Artist Wins Plaudits at First Wilson-Green Performance.

CHOPIN WORKS ENJOYED

Pianistic pyrotechnics, a tone of rare beauty, a gift of interpretation and keen sense of melodic values distinguished the program of Vladimir Horowitz, Russian pianist, in the first of the Artists Course under the auspices of Mrs. Wilson-Greene at Poli's Theater yesterday afternoon.

Amply equipped, the pianist found no difficulty with the Brahms "Sonata in F Minor, Opus 5," which was the opening number. In its five movements, each possessing an individual beauty of its own, the soloist traced out the masonry of the great composer's musical dream in haunting melodies, brilliant passages of trills and runs and lovely bits of phrasing. Long to be remembered was his reading of the second movement, "Andante Expressivo," with its many moods and opportunities for masterly playing.

The second number was "L'Isle Joyeuse" by DeBussy, with the dainty whimsicalities of this composer brought out with all the skill of a virtuoso.

The Prokofieff group which followed, a "Gavotte" and "Suggestions Diaboliques," in unique Slavic motif, were outstanding in beauty and played by the artist with native understanding. Someone has called the composer the "musical cubist," and this title was well borne out in the specimens of his work heard yesterday.

Horowitz gave his audience a generous portion of Chopin by playing his "Polonaise" in C sharp minor, "Impromptu" in A flat major, "Nocturne" in G minor, and "Valse Brilliante." In these there were virtuosity, temperament, tone and, above all, poetry. The audience showed its appreciation by liberal applause.

The Lizst number, "Au Lac de Wallenstadt," and "Capriccio," F minor, by Dohnanyi, also pleased the audience. At times the pianist might have subdued his tone to advantage, but, all and all, yesterday's concert was one which reflected real credit on the artist.

TRAFFIC INSURANCE STATUTE IN BAY STATE AROUSES FURY

seem to know more about it. All Bay State motorists are aware of the fact that the compulsory liability insurance law has increased the cost of their motoring. Many take the position that perhaps that would not be so bad, viewed from a broad, humane standpoint, if the economic needs of the mishap victim were met. Whether they are met or not is a moot question. Sometimes, the individual thinks, they are. Again, he doubts it seriously.

"It's a political football," is a typical appraisal of the law, "and it is kicked about in a fashion that makes following its flight impossible."

Bewilderment and confusion are rampant, the reporter gathers when he tries to sound out the "average" man in Massachusetts.

"Those insurance companies," say one group, shaking their heads sadly.

"Those highbinders down at the State House," say others.

Superficially, it is an amazing paradox that finds insurance companies fighting a statute that sells their product for them. Some persons can not understand it. There are many who even today in Massachusetts think the law was foisted upon them by underwriters and that the latter are masking their avarice under a cunningly devised counter-maneuver. That sounds weird, but it is a fact.

Fight Is Held Honest.

There is no questioning the honesty of the fight being made by insurance companies, however. A majority concedes that their fight is honest, but that its motive is equally honest they question.

One goes back to several years before the enactment of the law to get the basis of the underwriters' animus toward the law. They fought it before its enactment and they have fought it ever since. To them, it has many specific objections.

Broadly, their first objection is that the State fixes the rates. Insurance companies heretofore always have reserved this right to themselves. They claim to have worked out the only possible sound basis for rate fixing and frankly resent the intrusion of outsiders in the process.

Secondly, one of their first principles of insurance company operation is that they will select their own risks; that is, if an individual applies for insurance who does not strike them as a good risk, they have heretofore reserved the right to reject the application.

From the start, insurers have insisted that any statute not conforming to these two basic principles struck at the very foundations of the soundness of their operations. The Massachusetts law obviously did not conform. Naturally, underwriters fought it with a venom which was based upon the law of self-preservation as they conceived it.

The State fixed the rates and it prescribed that the companies had to take every applicant unless they could prove beyond a doubt that rejection was equitable, and it prescribed the basis for that proof. It was quite different from the arbitrary method prevailing prior to that time.

Another Reason Stated.

There is another reason, perhaps even more important than that they saw their cherished system ignored, which impelled the vigorous objection of the insurance companies. It is one that is pointed out by many who insist they can see both sides of the question.

This reason is that behind the statute underwriters always have seen the specter of State insurance. They have not talked a great deal about it outside of their round-table discussions, but it has seemed clear that if the State, which is the people, decides insurance is imperative, what more natural than that eventually the State will write the insurance? The companies do no feel they could compete, many of them admit frankly. One way to prevent such a situation is to see that no basis of competition is allowed to grow up. Hence the companies' onslaught on the Bay State statute.

Those who disagree with the insurance point of view, in Massachusetts and outside, say that from a selfish standpoint their arguments are entirely logical. Insurance companies, they say, are "drunk with power" and "notoriously conservative." Naturally, these two conditions would militate against insurance approval of anything so radically contrary to their principles of business conduct. Many do not blame insurers for thus objecting to the law. They admit, that in the same boat, they would do likewise.

However, it is insisted by friends of the law, that in spite of this the problem is a social one and that society's interest is above that of any special group. They measure the success of the law entirely by the manner in which it meets the requirements of compensating the accident victim or his dependents. Many, using this yardstick, agree with the underwriters that the law has many shortcomings, but they believe that it is an entirely different set of shortcomings and they are not above blaming the insurance companies for them.

It is at this point that one runs into one of the most amazing complications of the Massachusetts situation.

Not Making Enough Money.

The insurance companies maintain that they are not making enough money to cover the cost of doing the vast volume of additional business brought to them.

Opponents declare, on the contrary, insurance companies are paying out less than 33 cents on the dollar of premiums paid them by motorists compelled to buy policies. Concise figures on this point are offered for the first year of the law's operation. That year, 1927, premiums paid amounted to $16,806,327. The companies paid out $6,027,000 in settling damages in 34,988 cases. More than $10,000,000 was left, but this reduced to $6,902,000 when a reserve was set aside to meet future claims against existing policies, estimated to be 13,581.

"If the insurance companies were unable to break even on these figures, which show that they had more than $1 for costs, administration and general overhead for every $1 they paid out, then something is wrong," says one authority on the subject who frankly favors compensation insurance paralleling workman's compensation.

While these figures show that the companies had a dollar left for every dollar they paid in damages, it is argued in other quarters that they have settled thousands of nuisance claims just to make the cost of doing business high. Their purpose is to force the State to raise rates, it is said, with the idea that premiums will get so high the individual car owner will rebel and make overturning the law his chief objective. Insurance companies, on their part, deny the charge and say they pay these small claims because it is cheaper to do so than fight them.

But just the same, rates have risen steadily. Originally they were 25 per cent below the rates prevailing the year prior to the application of the compulsory liability insurance law. They were scheduled for an increase in 1928, but in a bitter political and legal row, which saw the resignation of Wesley M. Monk as State insurance commissioner, the increase was blocked.

New Rates an Increase.

This year, however, new rates were promulgated, averaging a 3 per cent increase instead of the 11 per cent asked by the underwriters.

For rate-fixing purposes the State is divided into zones fixed on the basis of congestion and likelihood of accident, and cars are classified by size. Because of its higher registration, Boston has the highest zone rate. This year, on cars of the W class, such as Ford and Chevrolet, the rate was $47, much higher than elsewhere throughout the country for comparable protection. Next year, owners of W class cars in Boston will pay $48. The rate on X class cars—Essex, Nash, Pontiac and others—is jumped at a greater pace, going from $47 this year to $53 next. Y car owners, those who drive Cadillac and Packard products and others similarly priced, get the benefit of the only reduction in Boston in 1930, from $62 to $59.

Contrasting these with the rates he pays, the owner of one of these cars in a city approximating Boston in size will find that he pays less than half or rarely more than half as much for comparable protection of $5,000 in case of one injury in an accident or $10,000 in case there are two or more victims. The same proportionate premium prevails as between smaller municipalities in Massachusetts and other States. Rates are about half.

Opponents of compulsory liability insurance have made the most of this fact. They have insisted that it typifies the inevitable effect of making the carrying of public protection compulsory. The other side, however, insists that these high rates are due in a degree to manipulation.

A small coterie of onlookers in the Massachusetts conflict propose what they regard as a scientific solution of the whole problem, a solution based based upon fact and unselfishness. It considers the situation in its broadest aspects, it is argued, and its findings bring up a number of objections to the Massachuetts law which are not voiced by the insurance companies, and which, they insist, can not be successfully refuted by any others, regardless of viewpoint.

Must Still Go to Court.

One of the objections raised against the Bay State law by this group is that it does not change the civil status of the injured person. He still must go to court to get the compensation which every car owner theoretically is prepared to give through the insurance company. There he encounters two obstacles that are held to be insuperable for the average man:

First, he must provide funds for his livelihood and that of his dependents until the court can get around to hearing his case. A delay of less than a year is unusual, due to the crowded condition of the dockets, and two or three years is not unsual.

Second, he must defeat a powerful insurance company in a lawsuit. The average settlement the first year of the Massachusetts venture in more than 34,000 cases was approximately $177, which, it is argued, indicates the inability of the average man to accomplish the second objective.

The present general situation under which only 16 in 100 motorists carry insurance and only 25 in 100 are able to meet a judgment of $1,000 is held by this group to be unsatisfactory.

So, they say, is the situation existing under safety-responsibility statutes. Into the same category they place compulsory liability insurance as administered in Massachusetts.

If, however, this faction destructively criticizes present efforts to solve the problem, it does not fail to offer a solution that is strikingly different and which, in the opinion of many, may be the direction in which Massachusetts is headed.

The proposal of this group for a parallel for workman's compensation insurance and the reasons therefore will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

buildings across the street, it was pointed out.

Graham suggested that this trouble could be remedied by converting a colonnade between the two new buildings into a street which would make possible continuation of Thirteenth street to B street. Otherwise, it was pointed out, a terrific congestion will be created in the triangle where approximately 25,000 persons are expected to be employed in the new Government buildings.

Ire of the board of directors was further increased by the reminder that taxpayers of the District have just paid for the widening of Thirteenth street, and that if the important thoroughfare is blocked off south of the Avenue this expense and improvement will have come to naught.

After hearing the report, the board of directors recommended that the committees of the trade body on streets and avenues, traffic and public and private buildings conduct an immediate investigation into the situation and report at the next meeting of the full membership of the Board of Trade when further action is expected to be recommended to District officials.

The board of directors also approved the increase of salaries for members of the police and fire departments.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Washington, Monday, Nov. 4—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia, fair Tuesday and Wednesday; rising temperature Wednesday; diminishing northwest winds, becoming southerly Wednesday.

Pressure is low and falling over New England and the eastern Maritime Provinces, Yarmouth, N. S., 29.74 inches. The disturbance from Alaska has moved rapidly east-southeastward to northern Manitoba. The Pas, 29.32 inches, and pressure is falling quite rapidly southward over the Rocky Mountain region and the plains States. The eastern disturbance has caused rains within the last 24 hours in the lake region, the Atlantic and east gulf States, and the extreme upper Ohio Valley. The western area of high pressure is now centered over Texas, Abilene, 30.44 inches, and another high-pressure area is moving southeastward over the Mackenzie Valley, Fort Simpson, B. N. T., 30.48 inches. Pressure remains relatively high in the vicinity of Bermuda, Hamilton, 30.12 inches. The temperature has fallen quite generally over the eastern half of the United States, except New England, and it has risen from Alberta and Saskatchewan southward to Colorado and Utah.

Fair weather will prevail almost generally during the next two days in the Washington forecast district. The temperature will be somewhat lower in the North Atlantic States and the southern portion of the South Atlantic States Tuesday, but it will rise in Tennessee, Kentucky, and western Ohio Tuesday, and quite generally throughout the forecast district, except southern Florida, during Wednesday.

Along the north Atlantic and middle Atlantic Coasts the winds will be fresh northwest and weather partly overcast Tuesday.

$20,000,000 HOME OF OPERA OPENED

Chicago Dedicates Gold and Marble Auditorium; 'Aida' First Offering.

SOCIETY OUT IN FORCE

Chicago, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The shining dream of Chicago music lovers became triumphant reality tonight in the gala opening of the Civic Opera in its monumental $20,000,000 skyscraping home in Wacker drive. On a site where less than a century ago wolves bayed at the moon over the marshy flats along a lonely little stream cutting wind-swept prairies has appeared this 45-story tower of marble, gold, steel and bronze to provide the youthful city by the inland sea with the world's most luxurious home of song.

Every tradition and tie with the past was broken tonight, save one—the selection of Verdi's melodious and gorgeous operatic pageant, "Aida," as the premiere. "Aida" was the opening opera to be presented by Chicago's first permanent opera company in 1910, again it was the first offering of the present Civic Opera Company in 1922, and sentiment ruled when the dedicatory work was chosen for tonight.

Raisa in Title Role.

On a stage which would comfortably accommodate a huge building, and facing the most brilliant first-night audience that ever assembled in Chicago, Rosa Raisa, dramatic soprano, sang the title role, recalling to opera patrons her appearance in the same part in the 1922 opening.

Others of the 1922 cast likewise were there, including Charles Marshall, American tenor, as Radames; Cyrena Van Gordon took the part of Amneris, and Giorgio Polacco, musical director and former husband of Edith Mason, wielded the baton. While it was a debut for the building, there were no debuts among the principals.

For society the opera opening was an event of major importance. The list of box holders for tonight read like the social register and included the Samuel Insulls, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, the Arthur Meekers, Mrs. Edward Hines, the John F. Jelkes, junior and senior; Mrs. Jacob Baur, the Martin A. Ryersons and the Cyrus Hall McCormicks. Nor was Chicago society alone represented, for from many points in the East and Middle West came representatives of the social order.

Crescent Replaces Horseshoe.

For society likewise there was a new setting in the old rose and gold interior of the opera auditorium. Gone was the golden horseshoe of the old Auditorium Theater. The new preserve of the elite already has been termed the golden crescent, as it reaches only across the back of the main floor and not around the sides. In fact there are no side boxes whatever in this modern operatic interior, each of the 3,500 seats of the first floor, dress circle and balconies facing the full stage.

Inside the patrons viewed first the foyer with its columns, its marble steps ascending to the boxes, its domed rectangular ceiling and its great bronze chandeliers, then the auditorium, rose-seated and walnut-paneled—an auditorium graciously intimate in spite of its great size.

Incidentally the feminine contingent appeared in trailing draperies, long gloves and high waistlines, reminiscent of the night in 1899, when the old Auditorium, splendid in gold and marble, began its historic career.

Cinderella Mother Wins Step in Attempt to Regain Lads.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 4 (N.Y.W. N.S.).—Two small boys, wearing red sweaters, sat in domestic relations court here today looking wonderingly at the crowd that watched a legal battle to decide whether the children are to go to a millionaire's mansion in Chicago or stay at the weather-beaten home of their maternal grandparents, farm tenants, near here.

Mrs. Franklin S. Hardinge, Cinderella bride of the oil burner king, is seeking permanent custody of Troy Weems, jr., 8 years old, and Norman Weems, 6, whom she was unable to keep and support after she obtained a divorce from Sergt. Troy Weems in Nashville, early in the year.

Hardinge, who was the subject of wide attention during a breach of promise suit against him by Ann Livingston, of Tulsa, Okla., several months ago, had not arrived today to testify and aid his wife, as her attorney announced several days ago he would do.

The boys' father came here from Fort Benning, Ga.

Mrs. Hardinge won the first round of the fight when Judge Webster ruled that the petition for a writ of habeas corpus could be heard.

Witnesses today testified that Mrs. Hardinge and Mr. and Mrs. Weems, grandparents of the children, all possessed good characters but were not in the habit of attending church or Sunday school.

Joseph Weems is a tenant of John Carter and has given notice he will leave this fall, Carter testified. Weems cultivated 10 acres of corn and some garden truck this summer. He owns a span of mules and a cow, Carter told the court.

Drama Guild to Hold Meeting Friday Night

The first meeting of the Community Drama Guild since it has become a corporate body will be held Friday night at 7:45 o'clock in the board room of the Franklin School Building. Members, guarantors, subscribers and other interested persons have been invited.

The incorporators are Miss Sibyl Baker, director; Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public works and buildings; Cuno H. Rudolph, Williams S. Corby and Judge Mary C. Toole, trustees; Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest, executive secretary; Dr. Lewitt C. Croissant, chairman of the board of governors, comprising also Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Mrs. Maud Howell Smith, Miss Bess Davis Schreiner, Capt. Ray C. Montgomery and Robert M. Miller, jr. The guild will open its second season on November 14-15 with "The Torchbearers" in McKinley School Auditorium.

VOLCANO ERUPTION CLAIMS LIVES OF 21

Relief Bodies in Guatemala City Help 300 Victims of Catastrophe.

TELEGRAPHER IS HERO

Guatemala City, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The government and the Red Cross tonight redoubled efforts to give relief to the 300 victims of the violent eruption of the volcano Santa Maria, 70 miles northwest of this city. The official death list today stood at 21.

The volcano suddenly began violent eruption of sand and lava yesterday, which continued today, although with somewhat diminished force. A stream of lava ran down the course of the Samalea River causing suffocating heat in the district around Quezaltenango, Retalhuleu and Macaltenango. Property damage in the El Palmar area was estimated at $1,000,000.

Special trains were chartered to carry relief workers to the scene of destruction and hospitals at Retalhuleu and Quezaltenango cared for many burned cases.

Several tales of heroism were told, among them the case of Davis Rodriguez, who remained at his telegraph key summoning aid until the glowing lava reached the door of the office.

The opening of a new crater on the mountain was believed to have prevented still greater damage by earthquakes by releasing pent-up energies.

President Chacon cut short his holiday at his ranch and returned to take personal charge of relief. An airplane pilot flew over the region today and reported the lava moving toward the sea. Twenty-one bodies had been recovered tonight.

Woman Is Overcome At Fire in Cafeteria

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Several hundred persons scurried from a cafeteria in the downtown business district here shortly after noon today as fire broke out in the basement of the building and smoke puffed up through the base of a dismantled fountain into the dining room.

One woman was overcome by smoke and was taken to a hospital. All of the other patrons and employes escaped without injury, although firemen had to resort to the use of ladders to rescue several persons from an upper floor.

WHOZIT?

("Whozit?" is a test of your knowledge of history and current events. The statements below describe a character whom you should be able to identify. Match your knowledge and memory against those of your friends.)

1. He was born in Switzerland.
2. He was elected to the United States Senate but was not allowed to retain his seat because he had not been a citizen the required term of years.
3. He served several times in the House of Representatives.
4. He was Secretary of the Treasury under two Presidents.
5. He held important diplomatic offices.

13 Escape, 60 Vanish In Soviet Prison Break

Helsingfors, Finland, Nov. 4 (A.P.). Stories told by 13 refugees who escaped from a Soviet prison on an island in the cold White Sea indicated that 60 other prisoners who had fled at the same time may have lost their way in the trackless forests of the north or have perished in the snow.

The thirteen who made good their escape after felling the guards who watched them labor in the forest were discovered yesterday on the border by Finnish guards. Many were in a state of almost complete exhaustion and all had suffered severe hardships.

President Praised By Joe Robinson

Senator Declares Hoover Flood Control Views Wise.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—President Hoover's wisdom and sympathy in carrying out the flood control program for the Mississippi Valley was praised by Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, in an address before the Arkansas River Association convention today.

"President Hoover already has wisely suspended construction of spillways on the west side of the Mississippi with a view to modifying the Jadwin plan so that controlled spillways may be substituted for fuse plug levees," he said.

"He has demonstrated a purpose strongly sympathetic with just reforms in the act of 1928 and in methods of its administration which it is believed will result in the appropriation of a comparatively narrow strip of land for the spillways and in compensation to the owners for the public use imposed upon their property. This is simple justice and the President's course should receive unanimous approval," the senator concluded.

Zoubkoff Raises "Ante" For Princess Letters

Bonn, Germany, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Alexander Zoubkoff has caused a hitch in the divorce proceedings brought against him by Princess Victoria, sister of the former kaiser. Zoubkoff has raised the price for restitution of Victoria's 900 letters to him from 10,000 marks (about $2,400) to 40,000 marks (about $9,600).

DEAREST GENEVIEVE:

I am so anxious to tell you about something which is about to take place, but think it would be hardly fair to tell you today. But in about a week you will have a chance (providing you are so fortunate as to have an invitation) to attend a fashion showing in the Parisian manner. As far as I know, such a showing has never been given in Washington before. Only a small group will be invited to the premiere. How I wish every one could see it, for it will be exactly like the preshowings given by the great designers in Paris, which I had such fun attending last summer. Wait patiently and I will tell you all!

The Most Glorious Looking Bride

—you have ever seen is pictured in Underwood & Underwood's window this week. At least, the pictures are there today. You will recognize a girl who was a bride last week and will agree that you have never seen a more glorious girl.

The pictures were posed in the garden and so have the most artistic, imaginable background, the composition and lighting resulting in an effect so delicately lovely that each picture seems like a portrait study.

Underwood & Underwood are famous for their bride's pictures and their pictures of bridal parties. They have certain photographers with a particular aptitude for this subject and their superb finish and mounting are undeniably noteworthy.

If mild autumn weather continues it will be possible to make bridal pictures in outdoor settings for some time to come. Pictures posed in the home are just as pretty in their way, although there is something about an outdoor picture which allows for such a variety in detail that nothing quite equals it.

Autumn Frocks For Day Wear

—are found in Schwartz, 1325 Connecticut avenue, in effective stylings, in lovely colors and at very moderate prices.

They had just received a big shipment of new gowns when I went in yesterday afternoon. The latest silhouette, with long skirts and long panels, and all the colors which have come out this season are included.

The moderate prices which prevail at at Schwartz's prove one of the chief attractions. Tweed suits in attractive weaves and colorings, in good copies of authoritative designs may be selected at less than you have expected to pay.

"The Orient" Has Opened New

—in 1009 Connecticut avenue. This firm of importers from the Orient was formerly up near Dupont Circle. The new shop is not far from K street and a few doors from Nancy Carter's.

You will find that Oriental jewelry is featured, with all semi-precious stones and genuine settings guaranteed. Some of the necklaces and bracelets are too stunning for anything.

The gorgeous embroideries and linens are entrancing, with engraved brasses and other fascinating things which breathe the mystery of the Orient. Do go in today and see for yourself.

The Silky Softness and Golden Luster

—which all women desire in their tresses, partly because men admire it so much, can be obtained only if the hair is properly dried following a shampoo. It should be dried evenly, thoroughly, not too rapidly, with nature's own sunshine.

Are you clever enough to embrace the opportunities afforded for Sunshine Treatments at the Russina Shop, 1609 Connecticut avenue? It is the only place of its kind in Washington where patrons enjoy just this sort of roomy, sunshine booths. Pure Spanish castile soap is used for the foamiest suds. An operator with a pretty Russian accent skillfully manipulates a sponge and alternating basins of hot water while you sit in perfect comfort. Go in and see Russina and have her prescribe for your hair and scalp.

The Iron Gate Inn For a Party

—is the choice of any number of people who like to entertain in a place which is cozy and attractive and which can be depended upon to give you good food.

The Iron Gate Inn, 1734 N street, has an early American loft which is available for parties of any size. You may appreciate a big table in sight of the open fire in the main part of the restaurant. The regular dinner is $1, but there is a special filet mignon dinner for $1.25 which you will like.

Luncheons are a la carte or 50 cents up.

Monthly Rates at Hotel Martinique

—are a great attraction to permanent guests. Monthly rates are available for the cafe as well as the rooms and suites. This hotel has advantages peculiarly its own. In many ways it reminds one of the small hotels in Paris, only with the American conveniences. Situated on Sixteenth street at M, it boasts an ideal location. Buses to all parts of the city run right past the door. It is a few steps from Massachusetts avenue, and just two squares from Connecticut avenue and its rapid street car service.

The Martinique is restful in its interior, and in its pale gray walls and furnishings, is quite unlike any other hotel in town. There is a good cafe in connection. This has been for years the favorite stopping place for Army and Navy people. Mr. Harold H. Cunnings, the resident manager, knows what people like, in service, and gives it to them. Tariffs are moderate.

Music Lovers Are All Delighted

—that the music season has really opened here. The Wilson-Greene concerts have held the attention so far. Beginning last Saturday night with that stupendous program at Constitutional Hall and following with the Horowitz recital at Poli's yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Wilson-Greene may be said to have launched the musical season most auspiciously.

Tuesday afternoon at 4:30, on November 19, the great La Argentina will appear in her recital of Spanish dances. We have been hearing of La Argentina and her European triumphs and can scarcely wait to actually see her. She is said to be quite different from her countrywoman, Raquel Meller, and of course is a much greater dancer, as Meller merely uses her dances incidentally in her song renditions.

La Argentina's dances are all her own creations, and are costumed superbly. Her gowns are from Callot Soeurs and are said to be a divine collection of creations.

Her fire dance from the ballet "El Amor Brujo" is one of her most famous, and her Andalusian Tango is, of course, too gorgeous! One of the numbers is done without music and is a uniquely lovely presentation.

The coming of La Argentina is a real event in Washington and a brilliant audience is expected on the afternoon of November 19. On this date there will be an unusually large number present from the Diplomatic Corps, who appreciate particularly the artistry of this fascinating dancer.

Tickets are on sale at the Wilson-Greene Concert Bureau in Droop's, 1300 G street.

The Sale at Nealon & Co.

—continues unabated. Certain things are sold out of course, but there is still quite a good selection of little frocks and sweaters, and infants' novelties at prices so small that you can't afford to miss them.

This shop in the Barr Building is going out of business. Many of the garments had been purchased for fall selling, and to have a chance to buy them at such a reduction, right now, when the children need them most, is an opporunity you would hardly find again.

Sizes are in such a range that many grown-up people can use some of the frocks and coats, just depending on the age they can wear.

Evening Gowns From Pasternak's

—reflect the very latest in the mode. Each time you go in, you will see marvelous new models in the fabrics and colors which fashion decrees this autumn. The lines and silhouette are exactly what you want to be truly smart, and you will say yourself when you see them, that never have styles been more flattering.

Many of the models have their own coats, which may be worn with other gowns, too. There are so many handsome evening coats to choose from you will be delighted to make a selection here.

Pasternak's coats and furs are famous, the hats are the last word in chic and frocks for day and evening and important evening ensembles are outstanding in a survey of this shop.

Affectionately,

Bab

STOCK QUOTATIONS SAG UNDER SELLING

Leading Issues Off 3 to 17 Points as Three-Day Recess Ends.

SPECULATION ON WANE

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—It was a day of anticlimax on the stock market today, as trading was resumed after the three-day recess—a day of sagging prices and waning speculative enthusiasm.

Contrary to expectations in many quarters, the market was sharply depressed by profit-taking at the opening. Despite momentary rallies as the session progressed, the list was persistently heavy, and closed around the lowest levels of the day, with leading issues off 3 to 17 points.

Although commission houses had reported a huge influx of buying orders during the three-day suspension of trading, these orders proved to be largely for odd lots, and failed to impart resistance to the price level, as professional traders who had accumulated huge blocks of stocks at last week's low levels, took their profit. There appeared to be considerable liquidation of stock bought for support purposes, and renewed short selling as well. Furthermore, brokerage houses had discovered many more marginal accounts which had to be liquidated.

Rally Failure Disappointing.

Failure of last week's vigorous rally from the low levels reached on Tuesday, to carry over the three-day interval, proved a far-reaching disappointment, and a fairly steady stream of selling poured into the market during the afternoon, while the volume of trading tapered off to normal proportions for the first time in more than a week, and the ticker was able to catch up with the market. The day's transactions totaled 6,202,930 shares, of which approximately 3,700,000 shares changed hands in the first two hours. The turnover compared with 7,149,990 shares during the three hours of trading on Thursday.

Leaders of the banking group which was hastily organized to deal with the selling crisis twelve days ago, held no further meetings at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co., believing that market conditions had finally been stabilized and called for no further action. The extent to which Wall street's physical trading facilities had suffered, however, became evident when the stock exchange board of governors decided to resume trading on a three-hour daily basis after the legal holiday tomorrow, election day, and to close all day Saturday. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the exchange will close at 3 p. m., instead of 3.

Uncertainty Still Evident.

The day's news did little to dispel the cloud of uncertainty which has risen over the ruins of the late bull market. Bankers pointed out that credit conditions had been vastly improved, with the huge reduction in brokers' loans, and control of the money market passing once more to the New York banks, with the shifting of loans from the account of others." Call money held at 5 per cent. It was felt, however, that the danger that may have been done by the drastic break will not be definitely appraised for several weeks, or even months. Secretary of Commerce Lamont issued a statement pointing to the fundamental soundness of business conditions, but indicating that the adverse psychological effects of the market fiasco may prove to be of far reaching consequences.

Such stocks as Allied Chemical, General Electric, Eastman Kodak, A. M. Byers, National Biscuit, American Tobacco B, International Business Machines, Johns-Manville, Standard Gas, Stone & Webster, Underwood-Elliott, United Fruit and Westinghouse Electric lost from 12 to 17 points, net. American Telephone, American Can, Columbian Carbon, Auburn Auto, Columbia Gas, International Telephone, National Cash Register, New York Central and U. S. Steel lost from 8 to 10. Radio closed 6½ points lower, and General Motors 2¾.

Thursday's Gains Are Lost.

In general, the gains of Thursday were more than lost, although the market closed generally 10 to 30 points above the low levels of last Tuesday. Only a few shares broke to new low levels, including Keith-Albee and Gulf States Steel. A handful made substantial gains, including Crucible Steel, Household Products, McKesson & Robbins, American Metals and Ingersoll Rand, the last named gaining 10 points. Greene Cananea and G. W. Helme jumped about 14 points each.

Commodities turned downward, wheat losing nearly 4 cents a bushel, reflecting increased visible supply, and a bearish Argentine crop report. Corn sagged about a cent. Cotton futures lost about 75 to 95 cents a bale in liquidation attributed to stock market houses.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Sterling Cables sagged slightly to $4.87⅞, while the Japanese yen reached a new 1929 high at 48.45 cents.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—A renewal of Southern selling and liquidation was absorbed by covering and trade buying on scale down orders in the cotton market today, but no rallying power developed. Apparently, and closing prices were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest. January sold off from 17.97 to 17.78 and closed at 17.80 with the general market closing steady at net declines of 15 to 19 points.

The opening was steady at declines of 2 to 5 points. Reports of rains in the South seemed to attract very little attention.

New Orleans was a seller here, while there was considerable liquidation through brokers with Wall street and commission house connections which sent prices 17 to 18 points net lower during the middle of the day. This decline was followed by rallies on reports that the liquidating movement in the stock market was tapering off, while the Southern selling became less active after the first half hour. Prices recovered some 6 to 7 points of their losses but the buying slackened again during the afternoon, and the lowest prices of the day were reached in the late trading when December sold at 17.67 and March at 18.08 or 19 to 20 points net lower.

The Southern selling was a little more nervous toward the close, but local brokers attributed a good part of the day's pressure to further old long liquidation and the failure of the stock market to maintain rallies from its opening decline.

Two more private crop reports were published, one making the indicated yield 16,020,000 bales compared with an estimate of 14,990,000 a month ago and estimated the ginnings prior to November 1, at 11,200,000 bales. The other placed the crop prospect as of October 27, at 14,472,000 bales and estimated that 79.4 per cent of the crop had been picked up to that date.

Liverpool cables said there had been hedging and local liquidation absorbed by sentimental buying in that market and reported an improved cloth demand with a fair business pending from India.

Port receipts today, 90,968. U. S. port stocks, 2,308,407. Exports, 53,053, making 2,337,890 so far this season.

BOND ISSUES CLIMB UNDER GOOD DEMAND

Easy Money, Cut in Loans, and Lower Rediscount Rate Are Helps.

CONVERTIBLES ARE WEAK

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The "bull market" in bonds stepped back into its stride today and prices moved up briskly in response to substantial demands for higher-grade fixed-income obligations.

Easy time money, the reduction in loans used for stock market purposes and the cut in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate were favorable factors, whose efforts were felt for the first time in today's trading session. Also, the necessity for liquidation of bonds for the benefit of stock accounts had disappeared and investors, who believed that bonds looked attractive at the lower levels established in last week's declines placed buying orders for the best issues.

The gains covered the entire list, with the exception of the convertibles which moved lower in sympathy with stocks and, to a lesser extent, in the foreign group, where some irregularity developed after a period of early strength.

U. S. Issues Lead.

United States Government securities were leaders of the advance. Listed Treasury certificates touched new highs, with an extreme advance of 4¼ points shown by the 4¼s on a small scale of registered obligations. The 4s and the 3¾s each rose more than a point, while Liberties closed half a point on the average.

The Associated Press averages showed that the utilities had scored the broadest advance among the domestic corporation issues. Their rise of nearly a full point was almost duplicated by the industrials, while the first grade and secondary rails moved up about half a point. It was the best improvement in many months, and brought the combined average to 94.96, compared with 95.20, the level attained at the height of the October rise, most of which had been eliminated by last week's slump.

Trading in all groups embraced a wide range of issues, but bonds of the higher grades enjoyed the best market. In the utility list, such obligations as American Telephone Collateral 5s, Cincinnati Gas & Electric first 4s, Detroit Edison 5s, Pacific Power & Light first 5s and others of only slightly lower merit soared 1 to 2 points.

Low Coupon Rails Gain.

Among the low coupon rails, where marked strength was apparent, there were gains of as much as 4 points. The leaders included Atchison adjustment 4s, Canadian National 4½s, Chicago & Northwestern 4½s, Burlington 4½s, Illinois Central 4¼s and collateral 4s, Missouri Pacific general 4s, Erie convertible 4s, Missouri, Kansas, Texas first 4s, New Haven refunding 4½s, Northern Pacific general 3s, Pennsylvania 4¾s, Lehigh Valley 4s and 4½s, Southern Railway general 4s, and Union Pacific first 4s. In rails bearing coupons of 5 per cent or more advances of 2 to 3 points were numerous.

Trading in the industrials was marked by the strength of steel and oil company obligations. Bethlehem 5s, Armour 4½s and 5½s, Chile Copper 5, Humble Oil 5s and 5½s, Goodrich 6½s, Lackawanna Steel 5s, Liggett & Myers 5s, Otis Steel 6s, Phillips Petroleum 5½s, the Sinclair Consolidated Oil group, Shell Union Oil 5s and others were 70½ to 2 or more points.

European government bonds, including state and municipal issues, took the leading position in the foreign list. Belgian, French and German national loans rose ½ to 1 point, while larger gains developed in some of the municipal obligations.

Hungarian Issue Higher.

Hungarian municipal 7½s gained more than 5 points, Milan City 6½s more than 4 and Rome 6½s nearly 3. There was some weakness in South Americans.

Convertibles closed just above the day's lows. American Telephone 4½s showed a net loss of 12 points, International Telephone 4½s lost 6½, American I. G. Chemical 5½s, 1½; American International 5½s, 3, and Public Service of New Jersey 4½s, 10¾. New Haven 4½s, with a net gain of 4½ and Texas Corporation 5s, up ½, were strong spots.

WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1929. 17

G. U. WILL MEET POWERFUL NAVY TEAM, SAYS SCOUT

FLYWEIGHTS OCCUPYING STAGE

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Eugene Huat (pronounced Wah), a small French prize fighter, defeated one Izzy Schwartz in a ten round main event of a program of flyweight contests at the new Garden this evening and the members of the profession have some hope that the show will accelerate interest in boxers of the insect type.

It has been five or six years since there was a proper flyweight champion, the last one having been Pancho Villa, the Filipino, first and best of a sudden rising of Filipino fighters who learned the science of beating one another on the liver for sport from members of a superior civilization who went out to civilize them.

Pancho Villa beat Jimmy Wilde, a pit boy from the poverty-stricken Rhondda Valley of Wales, one of the greatest boxers of all time, to date, taking the championship from him by a knockout at the Polo Grounds on a muggy summer evening.

Spent Immediate Profits On $6,000 Roadster.

Villa was so small that when he tried to drive the $6,000 roadster which he bought with the immediate profits of this fight, he had to slide down the steering shaft like a fireman down a brass pole to depress the pedals. Disappearing from view for appreciable fractions of time in traffic to operate the brakes and gears, Pancho, of course, left the bridge of his vessel unmanned and, as he could not navigate by dead reckoning, the car piled up one evening on Fifth avenue.

Pancho was not injured, however, and when he died a year or so later, it was some mysterious complication arising from a tooth ache which killed him.

Alhough he was not to be compared to Wilde as a boxer, he was the most picturesque flyweight of a time when half a dozen fussy, furious midgets were at their best and the New York papers sent their best intellects around to write appreciations of the artistic beauty and feline grace of the small but perfectly proportioned body in the sulphur-colored skin. But even this could not obscure the fact that he was a very good prize fighter and when he died the interest in the flyweight class all but expired too.

Claims to Championship Argued Through Mails.

Several dwarfs have argued more or less plausible claims to the flyweight championship of the world since then, but most of the arguments were conducted through the United States mails on mimeographed sheets produced by the various managers. These sheets of course were tossed into the general litter of mimeographed arguments from managers of prize fighters, university football teams, bowling tournaments and marathons of fantastic kind which covers the floor of every newspaper sport department in the country.

There was no reason to go into them then, and there is now less reason, if possible, to attempt to decide the arguments and trace the descent of the title to the present time.

Flyweight prize fighters are flyweights only in their physical dimensions. In the matter of evading fights and arguing for championships, they are fully developed heavyweights, so there has been only one interesting contest in the division since Villa died.

"The Title Does Not Pass," Asserts Manager.

In that case the Mr. Schwartz who boxed Eugene Huat (pronounced Wah) this evening, claiming to be the world champion in the State of New York and treasuring a signed warrant from the confused gentle-

Capt. Sloan Returns to Virginia

Ball-Carrying Ace to Oppose V. P. I. in Game Saturday.

Virginia Hopes Rise With Showing of Bill Thomas.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 4.—Virginia is welcoming the return to action of Capt Johnny Sloan, who will probably direct the Cavaliers when they oppose Virginia Polytechnic Institute on Lambeth Field next Saturday. It will be Virginia's last home game of the 1929 season.

With Capt. Sloan and Bill Thomas together in the back field, the Cavaliers hope to beat the Gobblers. Then, too, there's likely to be Hunter Faulconer and Albert Lewy, or maybe Gus Kaminer or Herbert Bryant, as other members of the back field quartet.

The return of Sloan to the team should mean a great addition to the driving force of the Cavaliers. Sloan is one of the most accomplished and consistent gridiron performers in the South today, and he is a veteran at directing the play on offense.

While Sloan has been out with an injury received playing Swarthmore, the chief burden of the Cavalier attack has been carried by the brilliant young half back, Thomas. This is his first year on the varsity, and if Sloan had not been hurt Thomas might not have been developed so rapidly.

Thomas Bore Burden in Maryland Game.

Circumstances have demanded much of Thomas. He has had to do much of the passing and practically all of the punting since Sloan was hurt. In the Maryland game last week he tossed the 30-yard pass that Bryant caught and carried 15 more yards for a touchdown. He averaged 55 yards on punts and twice kicked out of bounds inside the 10-yard line. He ran back a punt 55 yards for a touchdown and on defense he stopped more than one Maryland man who had gotten through the rest of Virginia's team.

Sloan and Thomas together will be a difficult pair for any team to stop. If they concentrate on checking one, the other will be sure to get away. And Coach Earl Abell can be counted on for an attack tricky enough to get them both out into the open with the ball under their arms.

Virginia is not underestimating the strength of V. P. I. and for that reason overtime drills will be in order this week in preparation for Saturday.

Skull Work Features Practice at West Point

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Using the South Dakota game as a basis for his talk, Coach Biff Jones gave his Army football team a long skull session today before the regular practice. With Illinois next to be faced, Coach Jones wants his team to make as few mistakes as is humanly possible at Chicago on Saturday.

After a blackboard talk, the varsity first and second teams alternated in the lineup against the sturdy plebe team in a few minutes of scrimmage.

102-Yard Run Longest Of Season Thus Far

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—To Edward Frantz, of Ohio Wesleyan, goes the credit for the longest scoring run made so far this season on an American gridiron, according to the records of Parke H. Davis, of Easton, Pa., noted football statistician.

Playing against Heidelberg, Frantz caught a kick behind his own goal lines and ran 102 yards for a touchdown. Harris, of Brown, ran 97 yards to score against Holy Cross and Ed Wittmer, Princeton ace, dashed 90 yards for a touchdown against Cornell.

The longest scoring run from scrimmage thus far noted by Davis was Lecoin's dash of 96 yards for Tufts against Bates. The longest scoring passes were 50-yard tosses, made by Wood, of Harvard, against Army; Cobert, of Boston College, against Villanova, and Marsters, of Dartmouth, against Yale.

HUAT BEATS SCHWARTZ BADLY

Belgian Flyweight Is Victor Over Champion in Tourney.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Fresh from a sensational campaign in foreign fields, Eugene Huat, flyweight champion of Belgium, made his debut in Madison Square Garden tonight with a stirring 10-round victory over Izzy Schwartz, best of the American 112-pounders. The battle featured the first series of matches between leading contenders for the vacant world flyweight title.

So soundly did Huat, a slim, calm, solid-socking workman, trounce the widely recognized American champion, that Schwartz announced from the ring immediately after the decision his permanent retirement from ringdom. Huat failed to floor the game Jewish midget, but gave him a hearty cuffing every round.

Several times Huat knockout victor over Spider Pladner, the French ace, and Frenchy Belanger, champion of Canada, had Schwartz reeling and all, but spent from slashing punches to the head. Izzy barely weathered the fourth, sixth, seventh and final rounds.

Black Bill Trounces Willie Davies.

Black Bill, Negro midget stablemate of Kid Chocolate, turned in a fine victory over Willie Davies, of Charleroi, Pa., in the third 10-rounder. The ebony pocket piece gave Davies a bad beating in the final three rounds, closing and cutting Willie's left eye in the eighth. Bill weighed 111½, Davies 111¼.

Edgar Norman, newest importation from Norway, knocked out Jake Purtell, of Ironwood, Mich., in the third round of their scheduled six-rounder, dropping him heavily with a hard right to the chin. Norman, a light-heavyweight, had Purtell dangerously near a knockout in the second round. Norman weighed 171½, and Purtell 172¾.

Midget Wolgast Beats Johnny McCoy.

Midget Wolgast, Philadelphia, flyweight, opened the tournament by defeating Johnny McCoy, of Buffalo, N. Y., in a ten-round contest. The decision was most unpopular. Wolgast weighed 110 pounds, McCoy, 111¾.

Ruby Bradley, Holyoke, Mass., Negro, likewise won an unpopular decision over Ernie Peters, Chicago, in the first ten-round go. Peters staggered Ruby with heavy rights in each of the final rounds, but could not floor his man. The small crowd of 7,000 booed the decision. Bradley weighed 112 pounds; Peters, 111.

Canzoneri, Injured, Cancels Berg Match

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Tony Canzoneri was forced today to cancel his match with Jackie Kid Berg, English lightweight, scheduled for Madison Square Garden November 18, because of eye injuries suffered in recent matches. The bout may be staged November 29.

West Virginia Plays Oregon Aggies in 1930

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—West Virginia University's Mountaineers will meet the Oregon Aggies at Soldier Field, Chicago, on Thanksgiving Day in 1930, H. A. Stansbury, director of athletics, announced today. The game will be sponsored by Medina Temple of the Shriners, Stansbury said.

$6,000 Franchise Fee Asked of Greenville

Greenville, S. C., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Greenville's franchise in the South Atlantic Association will be forfeited to the league unless local fans raise $6,000 by November 15, Manager Frank Walker told a group of fans at a meeting here today.

Unless this is done, he said, Greenville likely will be without baseball next year for the first time since the South Atlantic Association was reorganized in 1919.

The local club has seventeen class B players on the reserve list and the franchise and players should easily be worth the amount needed, Walker said, but the cash will have to be raised. Walker is the largest owner of the local club, but said he is unwilling to finance it another season unless local help is provided.

JANNEY DRILLS TONIGHT.

The Janney Athletic Club will hold a practice tonight at 7 o'clock at Nebraska and Wisconsin avenues northwest. The Janneys will play the Columbian Athletic Club Sunday in a game of the Capital City League. There will also be a dance for the Janney Athletic Club on Saturday at the Chevy Chase ballroom for the benefit of the athletic fund.

Tech-Western Opposed in Vital Game

Ahern's Team Gains Experienced Players for Today.

Draper and Millard in Line-Up; Tech Can Clinch Title.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, JR.

"IT ALL depends on you!"

With this cry of four high-school student bodies ringing in their ears, eleven Western Red and White gridders will take the field at Central High Stadium this afternoon at 3:30 determined to fulfill that trust by beating for the first time this year a Hardell-coached Tech High Eleven, and thus keep that team from virtually clinching the 1929 interhigh grid title on which it already has a stranglehold with two wins in two starts.

Should the Western Eleven come through and deal the Manual Trainers their first defeat, the present school race would be thrown as wide open as it was at the beginning of the year with Central, Eastern, Western and Tech all having an equal chance for the title with only one loss at present recorded against each.

But if the team from across the creek is forced to yield to the Maroon and Gray as already two of the foremost contenders have been forced to do, "Hap" Hardell will practically be able to step up and claim the season's title for his team, which would then show a record of three wins, no losses, and only the weakest team in the series—Business—left to be played.

Eastern and Central Support Western.

It is therefore a safe bet to predict that the majority of the students from Eastern and Central, as well as Western, will be on hand this afternoon in the hope of seeing the chances of their respective teams saved by a Tech defeat. A Western victory this afternoon, besides opening up the race again, would give to the coming Central-Western and Central-Eastern games a special attractiveness and drawing-card power which they would otherwise lose if the title had already been decided.

For the "league's last stand against Tech and Hardell," Coach Dan Ahern last night announced that his team would be in much better condition than it has been for any contest this season. The recent advisory period, just ended, has brought to the Western Team a wealth of material, including two players from the 1928 squad, who will break into this year's line-up for the first time today, as well as an abundance of reserve strength.

Joe Webb, regular guard of last season, will assume his former position this afternoon, having removed his scholastic deficiencies within the last six weeks, while Lawrence Buscher was on last year's squad and promises to profit by the experience which he gained. Everett Buscher, his brother, will take hold of right end for his debut today.

Bird and Bloyer in Back Field.

Two newcomers in the Red and White back field will also be seen in Bird and Bloyer, who are slated to start at half back and full, respectively. Their presence should greatly aid Ray Millard and Jimmy Draper, who previously have been forced to

Ray Schalk Considered As Brooklyn Manager

Litchfield, Ill., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Ray Schalk, catcher for the Chicago White Sox for years, and recently released by the New York Giants as a coach, admitted today he was under consideration as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Schalk's home is here and he started his career on local sandlots.

Dave Bancroft Signs As Aid to McGraw

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Dave Bancroft, who was released unconditionally recently by the Brooklyn Club, signed a one-year contract today with the New York Giants as coach and assistant manager.

Bancroft, former star shortstop and captain of the Giants, thus returns to the New York Club after an absence of six years. Benny was traded to Boston by John McGraw in November, 1923, and appointed manager of the Braves for 1924. He served in this capacity until two years ago, when he was giving his unconditional release and signed by Brooklyn as a player. Although he played 104 games and batted .277 for Brooklyn during the past season, Wilbert Robinson let him go, believing him near the end of his active playing career.

Huguley, Harvard Back, Not to Face Michigan

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Harvard football team used the "ghost" ball for the first time this season here today when Head Coach Arnold Horween worked his squad long after darkness fell on the first preparatory session for next Saturday's Michigan game, at Ann Harbor.

Much of the time was spent on tackling and blocking drills, the Crimson's fundamental weaknesses, but the players were unable to satisfy Horween, who pronounced their performances as "very ragged." A long signal drill on new plays for the Michigan game was not ended until a late hour.

It was announced that Art Huguley, who has been one of the regular half backs during most of the season, would be unable to play again until the Yale game. He injured his hip playing against Florida. Dick O'Connell, regular end, and Henry Gildea, second string center, returned to the squad and were pronounced as fit for the Michigan contest. Barry Wood, new varsity quarter back, Bill Tickner, guard, and Charley Devens, half back, were unable to practice because of classwork.

NAVY BACK FIELD THREATS WHO FACE G. U.

Joe Clifton, full back (left) and Art Spring quarter back, are the offensive stars of the Annapolis team which meets Georgetown next Saturday. Clifton, the "Paducah plunger," specializes in off-tackle smashes. Spring is the speed boy of the Middies' back field.

Booth, Leading All-American Candidate, Blasts Theory of the "Good Little Man"

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—In the best resin circles of pugilism it has long been held sound reasoning that a good big man will beat a good little man. The sage axiom was supposed to hold good in football too, until little Albie Booth came along to do his bit for Yale.

The good little man, in the person of Yale's best back for a generation, has beaten two good big men on successive Saturdays, Keener Cagle, of the Army, and Al Marsters, of Dartmouth. Cagle is a light heavyweight, Marsters is a heavyweight and Booth is only a junior welterweight.

As the open season approaches for selecting All-American teams as a part of the overemphasis of football, viewed with alarm in the more conservative councils, the diminutive Booth's name will be placed well to the front. The 144-pounder will be outweighed by all his rivals but outclassed by none.

Booth Only Fair At Athens.

When Albie, of New Haven, was only fair to middling against Georgia in classic Athens, his friends were chagrined and the scoffers went into a huddle with "I told told so" expressions. The failure of the Milford lad to star in his first real varsity chance, however, did not shake the faith of the home folk, for Booth is one prophet who is not without honor in his own country. New Haven stood by for later returns.

The small package of elastic and dynamite combined responded against Brown, Army and Dartmouth, three rugged opponents in as many Saturdays, he scored all of Yale's touchdowns from scrimmage. With two touchdowns against Brown, three against the Army, with the accompanying points after touchdown, and a field goal against Dartmouth he scored 38 consecutive points for the Blue, the sum total of Yale's scoring from the beginning of the Brown game to the start of the second half of the Dartmouth set-to.

As good as he is, Yale's modern Frank Hinkey, on the basis of ability per pound, has plenty of company when great backs are being catalogued for future reference.

In spite of the fact that they were outshone by the remarkable Booth, Cagle and Marsters remain experts on any field. Cagle can outpass Booth by a wide margin and Marsters will plunge through a line where Booth can not use even his eel-like tactics. Walter Masters, of Pennsylvania, can match kick for kick with him and not often does the game's roll of honor find a better all-around name than that of the tongue-twisting Octavius Uansa, of Pittsburgh.

In any enumeration of all-star back fields Purdue will be found on the front seat. Few better trios have performed under one tent at the same time than Yunevich, Harmeson and Welch. And Pharmer, of Minnesota, is another great Middle Western back, and supporters of Detroit will tell any one who asks that Lloyd Brazil is an all-American back if there ever was one. Iowa has the big Glasgow of the "double S" Glassgowa, described by Bob Zuppke as the "smartest" back in the Big Ten.

South Can Offer Candidates.

The South can name, among others, Billy Banker, of Tulane, and Gene McEver, of Tennessee. In a galaxy of star performers in the far West, Benny Lom, of California, and Marshal Duffield, of Southern California, stand out, but they are pressed by a husky crew of Sanford ball carriers, where the players are classed by groups. Not quite so far West, "Powerhouse" Pomeroy, of Utah, and Dutch Clark, of Colorado College, are furnishing thrills for hungry football fans.

Nominations are far from closed and November will have its praise of "a man who" did this and that before December comes to say, "Hold, enough!"

Al Marsters, Dartmouth Star, Has Back Injury

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Al Marsters, Dartmouth's high scoring quarter back, was sent to the college infirmary here today to be treated for the back injury he received in the Yale game. He was said to be in considerable pain and Harry Hillman, football team trainer doubted that he would be in condition to play against Brown next Saturday. Marsters has played in each of the Green's six games to date.

Jolley, Coast Slugger, Purchased by Chisox

Chicago, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The White Sox made another move to strengthen their team today by purchasing Smeed Jolley, heavy hitting outfielder from San Francisco, of the Pacific Coast League. Jolley batted .385 and rapped out 38 homers for the Seals last season.

Coffee, of Ohio State, Suspended for Season

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Charley Coffee, Ohio State's brilliant half back, has been suspended for the remainder of the season for breaking training rules on the Pittsburgh trip last Saturday, Coach Sam Willaman announced today.

The suspension came at a time when Ohio State launched upon an intensive training for this week's game with Northwestern, one of the toughest on Ohio's schedule. Coffee was the offensive star against Pittsburgh.

Middies Due To Perform At Best

Dagrossa Brings Back Tales of Power of Midshipmen.

Spring and Clifton in Back Field Tabbed as Men to Watch.

By JACK ESPEY.

AN important figure behind the scenes in Georgetown's football triumphs is John (Cx) Dagrossa, Head Coach Lou Little's assistant in charge of linemen. Though he hasn't been present at a Georgetown game this season, he has, nevertheless, been a vital factor.

Dagrossa's contributions to Georgetown's successes have been made by proxy, so to speak. This does not mean his pregame coaching alone, but includes his work as a scout. While the Blue and Gray Hoyas is battling on the gridiron, its line mentor is off somewhere scouting future opponents and obtaining information that can be used to Georgetown's advantage when those foes are met.

Dagrossa scouted New York University. His revelations on the Violet's style of attack and defense helped largely in the preparation of Georgetown to defeat the powerful Fordham team. Previously he had studied the other five teams that were played, including Western Maryland, which holds the only victory scored over Georgetown this fall. About Western Maryland, Dagrossa warned that Dick Harlow's eleven would prove formidable.

May Be More Powerful Than New York U.

Now Dagrossa comes along with the statement that Navy will be just as troublesome for Georgetown, if not more son, than was New York University.

Says the Hilltop scout: "The Navy game this Saturday will be equally as hard as the New York game and possibly harder. I believe Navy will show their best football for us and I feel sure they will show their greatest fighting spirit.

"The Navy Team has its back against the wall on account of its recent disappointing reverses, and will be out to atone as far as possible for those beatings at our expense. In my opinion, it is just as powerful as New York and in the matter of offense is better fortified. Its offense is more diversified than N. Y. U's.

"They have big, fast backs," continued Dagrossa, adding, "and we'll have to watch Spring and Clifton, their quarter back and full back, especially well. Those two can do anything in a football game. Bowstrom, the punter, also is liable to prove dangerous with his long, high boots. But, all in all, I think Georgetown can give them an even break if we put up the same kind of game we did last Saturday."

Hilltoppers Have Even Chance, Is Opinion.

Dagrossa's slant on the impending renewal of the Georgetown-Navy grid warfare, which dates back a long time, seems to be identical with the prevailing expression among Georgetown observers. It is generally believed the Blue and Gray holds an even chance of winning.

Head Coach Little opened an intensive preparatory program for the Hilltoppers yesterday. Following a half-hour's talk on the correction of faults apparent in the N. Y. U. en-

The BALMORE
Overcoat by Stein-Bloch

PARTICULARLY for such men—as a rule, successful men—who demand fashion without extremes, we present our "Balmore" Overcoats. Quietly smart, these coats wear an air of confident prosperity without vulgar "show-off." Tailored by hand, they attract attention by seeming to avoid it.

STROLLING PLAYER ROMPS TO VICTORY AT PIMLICO

Fields' Mount Wins by 6 Lengths

Half Brother to Call Boy Opens Big Lead to Take Feature.

Martinique Is Second; Distraction Is Disappointment.

Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 4. Strolling Player, the half-brother to the English Derby winner, Call Boy, that races for the Salubria Stable, was winner of the Pimlico feature race this afternoon when he galloped home in front of his opposition in the running of the Pimlico Weight for Age race.

The race was a dash of 6 furlongs for all ages. There were eight starters, Mucker and Balko being withdrawn. Strolling Player shouldered 130 pounds and was ridden by G. Fields. Breaking rapidly, he forced a fast pace from the start and at the half-mile pole was a head back of My Sis.

Rounding the far turn Fields sent the winner to the front and after passing the 3-furlong pole he began to draw away and opened a long lead. At the finish he was a margin of six length to spare over Martinique who, in turn, beat Distraction a length for the place.

Strolling Player Idle For Some Time.

Today's victory was the first that Strolling Player had scored in many months. He was put away last season and this spring served several mares at Admiral Grayson's stud in Virginia, when he was put back in training he was taken over by P. M. Burch, who has brought him back to the races in grand condition. On his showing this afternoon it appears as if this well-bred horse may still live up to the great things predicted for him by many shrewd judges on the other side.

The disappointment of the race was the showing of Distraction. The son of Chicle broke slowly and raced on the outside of his company the entire trip. He did not find his foot until the last quarter and at the finish he closed with splendid courage. The stake had a net value of $4,140.

The races this afternoon were run over a heavy track and horses that fancied that sort of going had a big advantage.

Salmon Stable Pleases "Punters."

The Walter J. Salmon stable which has a habit of making "punters" happy, furnished them with a thrill when the Ladkin colt Companion carrying the colors of the New York sportsman was returned a winner of the first race and paid $184.70 in the $2 mutuels. There were ten starters and Benny Creech's recent purchase, Chestie Ann, was the favorite.

In the early stages Guilder bounded to the front and opened up a lead of a couple of lengths. Guilder remained in front until the final strides where he collapsed and was passed by both Companion and Jovial Friar. Companion began in his usual slow fashion and was a trailer until making the turn into the home-stretch. When Fouhy got him to move up with a great burst of speed and wearing the tiring leaders down in the final furlongs was up right at the end to win by a head.

Jovial Friar always a keen factor outgamed the tiring Guilder to beat the latter out a head. Chestie Ann faired badly after moving up stoutly on the backstretch. She changed hands after the race when Abe Halow claimed her for $5,000. This is the third owner that this filly has had in a fortnight.

Three Opal Scores in Second.

Another close finish came with the running of the second race in which the result was not decided until the very last stride. Fire Opal was the winner and it was not until the last jump that he managed to get his head in front to beat out the tiring Chattahoochee. Bidable and Star Gift were withdrawn which left ten to go.

Milton sent them away to splendid starts and Chattahoochee, quick to find his foot, dashed to the front and opening up a lead of one length retained this advantage until just before making the turn into the home-stretch, where Homelike moved up and passed him. Fire Opal, who was trailing along in eighth position the first half mile began improving his position and was fourth as they swung for home. Catrone took him to the outside and in the final furlong Fire Opal finishing straight and true wore down the tiring leaders.

At the end, Chattahoochee responded with a game effort to Plaumber's call, outlasted Homelike, but right at the end he bore over to the inside where the footing was deepest. Had his rider been able to have kept him straight he would probably have lasted long enough to stall off Fire Opal's challenge.

Game Finish by Hacky H. Wins the Third.

There was a lot of contention in the running of the third race and the finish was a driving one in which Hacky H., carrying the colors of the local sportsman, J. P. McGovern, was winner when he beat S. W. Labret's Fortunate Youth out three parts of a length. Brown Trap was third, beaten a nose for the place. In the early running Hacky H. showed in front and as they passed the half-mile pole all five starters were heads apart.

Rounding the far turn Culloden took the lead for a few strides, but making the turn into the home stretch, Brown Trap and Fortunate Youth moved up with a rush. King Kelly had dropped out of it, but the other four made the turn for home almost aligned. Culloden was in the middle and going to the furlong pole was squeezed out of it. Hacky H., down on the inside, finished the gamest when put to a drive and in the last sixteenth began drawing away. Fortunate Youth, in a whipping finish, just managed to get up in time to nail Brown Trap for the place. King Kelly ran as if he did not fancy the footing.

Fashion Never Headed In the Fourth.

Marshall Field's Westy Hogan colt, Fashion, scored in runaway fashion when he won the Patapsco Purse. This was a dash of 6 furlongs and was run as the fifth race. A good muddler, Fashion was out in front before they had gone a furlong and once in front he never relinquished the lead. At the finish he beat Port Harlem four lengths and the latter was two lengths in front of Stupendous, who chased in, the end to beat Too High a ... the show money. Bask, who was running for the first time in the colors of Brose Hoover, who claimed him at Empire, had a couple of bandages on behind. Bask was never able to get going and trailed along with the rear division the entire trip.

Fair Gold scored in runaway fashion when she won the sixth race. Cannon hustled the Bedwell racer to the front in the run to the first turn and entering the back stretch opened up a lead of a length. Cannon then took her in hand and Fair Gold was rated under slight restraint to the head of the home stretch. At this stage Nat Evans charged on the pacemaker and was on almost even terms with Fair Gold at the furlong pole. Cannon then went to a drive and Fair Gold, responding, drew away again in the last sixteenth. Nat Evens was driving to the limit to beat Rea a head for the pace. Prairie Girl left the post in a jam and Hughes had all he could do to keep the filly from falling. Krick, after racing prominently in the early stages, stopped and finished fifth.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

—BY BERT E. COLLYER

YEA-YOW! Also a kupla whoops!

Now, that we have terrible "wash day" out of our system, I believe I can honestly promise you about three good winners down at Pimlico this afft. The first of these is CALOME, which goes in the opening dash. This trick, highly tried, has been knocking at the door for several starts and I believe the distance suits her well today.

SINGLE STAR, in the third, looks like another of those "eagle birds"—on the Bill Dalley throughout. As a matter of fact and taking a line through those last two races, it would seem to be one of the safest things of the meeting. STUPENDOUS and SIN CUINADO for what is left.

BLACK MAMMY has a straight eleven point call in the fourth, hence, further comment would seem superfluous—woteverinell that is. The sky is the limit.

If you need a bit of laginappe, as they say in Noo'olens. I slip you WATER LAD, a supermuder, and which should roll home in the fifth.

Down at Latonia they scratched MINERVUS yesterday to go in the opening dash today. This is a fair sort of hide and the one to beat is TURN OVER. I did not find the usual commissions, overnight, on the latter. GOVERNOR PRATT and PAGAN LADDIE, the remnants of the purse.

DAVID L., which showed sparkling speed in the going last Saturday, is taken to bring home the bacon in the third. He has it on this kind. PRINCESS DONNA has been a real "hot" thing on various occasions, but may have had a bit too much at that. She may outlast PEGGY MAC and LITTLE CAPTAIN.

BLACKWOOD is dropped into a real anug spot in the fifth. This fellow loves the going and should be on the front end all the way. LORD BRAEDALBANE also possesses a good turn of speed, but I really believe BLACKWOOD and Meyer are a winning combination, hard to beat today.

In the closing dash, I am stringing with the plater DRAHA. That last was even better than cold dope would indicate, while DONN BON and SHARON follow in the order named.

LATONIA.

1—Minervus, Turn Over, Governor Pratt.
2—Dark entry, Aspirin, Gold Stop.
3—David L., Princess Donna, Peggy Mac.
4—La Golondrina, Chattering, Manta.
5—Blackwood, Lord Braedalbane, Devon.
6—Dar Fur, Padona, Latch Key.
7—Draha, Donn Bon, Sharon.

Best—Blackwood.

PIMLICO.

1—Calome, Jodhpur, Col. Crump.
2—Maxwell entry, Rollicking Princess, Raspberry.
3—Single Star, Stupendous, Sin Cuidado.
4—Black Mammy, Timon, Maybe.
5—Water Lad, Sheltoc, Fair Beth.
6—Peter, Droll, Carloman.
7—Rejuvenation, Pestic, Reform.
8—Single Star.

Collyer's system horse—Blackwood.

The Post's PAST PERFORMANCES AT PIMLICO

NOVEMBER 5, 1929.

Weather, Cloudy — Track, Heavy

Reading the past performances from left to right they show the date of the race, track, distance, time of race, condition of track, weight carried, mutuel or closing price, start, position in the field at the three-quarters pole, distance back of the pacemaker at the top of the stretch and then at the finish, jockey, number of entrants and the order of finish with weights carried. If an entrant is a fair mud runner an × precedes his name; if a good mud runner a ✳, and if a superior mudder, an ✳✳.

INFINITUS STANDS OUT IN PIMLICO JUVENILE PURSE

Heavy Going Will Favor Stayers

Collins Names Snifter Over Poor Field in Steeplechase.

Improved Water Lad Selected to Beat Snelboc in 5th.

By LEONARD W. COLLINS.

TRACK conditions at Pimlico, this afternoon, should, if anything, prove more exacting and treacherous than those which prevailed yesterday. While the going may not be as holding it will undoubtedly be lumpy and only those thoroughbreds with the sturdiest of underpinning should be given consideration in the speculation.

Topping the card is the Helpful, a dash at six furlongs fashioned expressly for 2-year-olds. Racing Secretary Frank Bryan has seen fit to make W. S. Millers' Infinitus the top-weight of the party with a load of 125 pounds.

A buck-jumping winner in his last three starts, one of which was over a fast strip, another over a deadened Empire fairway and the third through Jamaica mud, is indication enough that the Infinite gelding is at his best when the footing is at its worst. He sizes up as a solid hasard.

FIRST RACE—One mile and 70 yards: purse, $1,300; claiming; for 2-year-olds.

1 Kal-Lo	109	8 Jovial Friar	106
2 Jodhpur	114	9 Storm	116
3 *Ping Coates	107	10 Calome	109
4 Col. Crump	112	11 Titus	116

JODPHUR has been keeping company with just a little more class than what he will encounter in the opening number. The brown son of Mad Hatter has inherited staying qualities from his sire as was shown in his two long races in New York. PING COATES is another that has displayed partiality for a route. This trick lacks early foot, but runs his best races through the stretch. COL. CRUMP has been moving up to brackets and is a possibility.

SECOND RACE—Two miles; purse, $2,000; the Elk Ridge steeplechase; for 3-year-olds.

1 Victor	140	4 Flavius	132
2 Tremar	132	5 Roi's Princess	132
3 Raspberry	133	6 †Patrol	135

† Maxwell entry.

SNIFTER will be coupled in the jumping event with PATROL—why nobody seems to know. But, to get right down to brass tacks there isn't anything in the whole heat that really can be considered as belonging in the "400" of our hedge-hopping circles. Of a rather indifferent lot he figures best. FLAVIUS may be the good thing. Has good speed and jumped well in his first attempt over the Timonium hurdles. RASPBERRY is best of the others.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $1,300; claiming handicap; for all ages.

1 Honeyman	106	6 Rapid Transit	106
2 Sin Cuidado	99	7 Toki	101
3 Legend	98	8 Black Patricia	106
4 Friar Cliff	108	9 Single Star	117
5 Stupendous	118

SINGLE STAR is the form horse of the third event; in fact, so much so she appears a standout. This mare has compiled quite an enviable record during the current campaign—started 14 times and has not been out of the money. BLACK PATRICIA is in receipt of 11 pounds from the top one, and a race to best form will find her the contender. The word is out that HONEYMAN is just a trifle better than the dope indicates. We shall see.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $2,500, added; the Helpful stakes; for 2-year-olds.

1 First Lady	115	10 Timon	118
2 Black Mammy	115	11 Skirl	121
3 †Fascinate	115	12 Chlo Boy	121
4 The Kid	118	13 Berber	118
5 Hillsdale	118	14 Sun Falcon	118
6 Keep On	115	15 Fallacious	115
7 Infinitus	125	16 Sistony	116
8 Buckeye Post	121	17 Wayfarer	118
9 Stanton	118

† A. F. Morris entry.
†† N. Louscheim entry.

INFINITUS has not been beaten much in his last three starts, neither has he fractured any track records, but the manner in which the gelded son of Infinite has hog-tied, spread-eagled, ham-strung or what have you the opposition certainly bespeaks a smattering of class. Of still more importance he relishes mud in his oats. BLACK MAMMY has won her last three, and from some fair ones. She looks all over to be the contender. CHLO BOY could save the show with one of his good races. Tab FALLACIOUS.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles; purse, $1,500; the Old Maryland Purse handicap; 3-year-olds and upward.

1 Water Lad	123	5 Fair Bill	103
2 Redside	95	6 Snelboc	116
3 Fair Beth	106

WATER LAD was on the improve at Laurel and should now be somewhere near the peak of form. If the Meridian colt is keyed for one of his best efforts, he should take this band into camp. SNELBOC will find today's distance to his liking, and a race back to his last would find him disputing the issue. FAIR BETH might be third if sent right back. Yesterday's effort may have taken too much out of the Fair Cain mare. You can take your choice between FAIR BILL and ROCKDALE.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward.

1 Peter	111	6 Silance	107
2 *Troll	110	7 *Rock Candy	110
3 *Sir Leonid	110	8 *Fire Watch	110
4 *Villager	112	9 Chittagong	115
5 *Corleone Boy	110	10 *Cottage Boy	110

PETER'S last race at Empire before being shipped to Maryland was a humdinger, and the one just prior to that was every whit as good. If the Meridian gelding brought that form along he is going to prove a tough egg to crack. VILLAGER is another that raced creditably his last two times out in New York, and figures next best. FIRE WATCH will be right at home in the going, and the top ones will not dare to make any mistakes.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward.

1 Altisimo	115	7 Festic	119
2 Ring On	119	8 Odd Fellow II	115
3 *Hat Brush	110	9 Judge Caverly	116
4 *Immortal	110	10 Reform	115
5 Fair Girl	102	11 *Rejuvenation	120
6 *Potent	110

FESTIC showed a return to best form in his last race at Laurel. The Negrofol gelding is more or less partial to mud and, despite the fact that he is loaded with 119 pounds, should not find the package too exacting. He has carried more. REJUVENATION is strictly the one to beat. Getting by this old fellow inside of the sixteenth pole is almost equivalent to getting the long end of the purse. REFORM has enough early speed to save the show.

GEORGETOWN SCOUT SEES NAVY AT BEST

test, he immediately set about the task of building a defense for Navy plays as learned by Dagrosa and executed by the G. U. freshmen.

Georgetown will be able to use its full strength against the Middies, for Steve Barabas, veteran fullback who was out before last Saturday with a knee injury, managed to play the second half of the New York game without any ill effect. It is possible he will return to the starting line-up this week-end, although Leroy Bordeau, the husky sophomore who won the assignment two weeks ago, is still improving.

Ed Leary, half back and Paul Liston, guard, who suffered minor injuries at New York, were back in uniform yesterday.

Ingram Lectures at Navy; Plans Changes in Line-Up

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4.—With keen dismay pervading the Navy football camp over the failure to defeat Pennsylvania, following on the heels of the 13-to-13 tie with Princeton, the Middies are due for a considerable shake-up in preparation for the Georgetown contest Saturday, was the unofficial word that went the rounds tonight. Reports have it that changes will be made in the forward wall as well as the back field.

Instead of the regular practice session today, Head Coach "Bill" Ingram took the varsity squad off to a secluded part of the gymnasium and gave them a severe lecture on the errors of commission and omission that caused the loss of the Penn game. The talk was so extensive, in fact, that the players had but a few minutes to limber up stiffened muscles and joints before "supping" at the training table.

There is no question that the Navy contingent is taking a more serious slant at the approaching Georgetown game than was the case a few days ago. They realize that Lou Little's Hilltoppers have been developing slowly, and the impressive triumph over New York University Saturday only served to demonstrate this more clearly. And now a wave of fear seems evident that the Washingtonians might come along to trip them in their big home encounter of the season. As far as the players are concerned they are determined to snap out of the slump and show the home folk a thing or two when they face the Blue and Gray.

Crap Games McGraw's World Series Worry

MANAGER McGRAW OF THE N.Y. GIANTS ALWAYS FROWNED ON BIG CRAP GAMES WHERE PLAYERS SOMETIMES LOST THEIR ENTIRE WORLD SERIES SHARE.

GEORGE STALLINGS, THE "MIRACLE MAN" MANAGER OF THE 1914 BOSTON BRAVES, WOULDN'T START A GAME UNTIL HE HAD CLEARED THE FIELD OF PEANUT SHELLS, PROGRAMS AND SPARROWS!

By AL DEMAREE

(Former Pitcher New York Giants).

Keeping big crap games from being started by his players during a world series was one of Manager McGraw's chief worries. Some players to whom the "galloping dominoes" were unkind would have their "world series" money signed away or mortgaged before the first game started, with possibly a watch and a stickpin thrown in for good measure.

Naturally, the losers wouldn't feel highly elated and full of pep the next day after losing from $500 to $1,000, and their work suffered in the world series games. McGraw had a standing fine of $50 for any one found shooting craps during a world series.

The players wouldn't let him in one day and locked the door. But he sat down and waited all night till they came out for breakfast, and then he jumped up and fined them on the run as they ran past him.

George Stallings' world series peculiarities were simply his every-day ones accentuated to the 9th degree.

Pieces of paper scattered by players of the opposing club that knew his weaknesses, peanut shells and any kind of bird hovering about the players' dugout, drove Stallings into a perfect frenzy of excitement.

He kept one player, Oscar Dugey, for years, whose sole duty was to provide himself with a pile of pebbles before the game with which to drive away all birds.

Dugey claimed he lost his arm in this manner and blamed Stallings for ruining his baseball career.

men of the New York Prize Fight Commission to substantiate his claim, undertook to defend his title against one Willie La Mort, which means, I believe, Willie the Dead One, in the State of New Jersey. Izzy Schwartz was momentarily taken back when William the Dead One defeated him and claimed the title, but only momentarily.

"The title does not pass," said Izzy's manager, one Mr. Joe Bernstein, in an official document given under his seal as manager of the champion 24 hours later. "Izzy is champion of the world only in the State of New York, so defeats in the State of New Jersey do not affect the championship."

The members of the various boxing commissions held emergency sessions to pass upon this argument, and the division of opinion was about equal, which only confused the confusion. At this dark hour, Mr. Bernstein came forward with a revelation which solved the problem, and in all probability averted a dangerous situation with regard to the flyweight championship of the world in the State of New York.

Managed Both Fighters, He Revealed.

Mr. Bernstein disclosed that he was the manager of Willie the Dead One, as well as manager of Izzy Schwartz, and said: "In the interests of sportsmanship and the welfare of the great manly game of boxing, I have decided that Izzy will remain champion of the world in New York, and that Willie is to be the world champion of New York everywhere else."

But since then Eugene Hust (pronounced Wah) has knocked out one Spider Pladner, of France, who had knocked out Frankie Genaro, who used to be a good flyweight. He has also knocked out one Frenchie Belanger, of Canada. Although neither of these victims of Eugene's right-hand punch was regarded as the official flyweight champion in or out of the State of New York, they were very good little pugilists, so it appears that Eugene must be very good himself. In fact, by his victory over Izzy Schwartz he might be recognized as the flyweight champion of the world in all countries, including the Scandinavian but for one unfortunate fact. That is that Eugene Huat weighs 113 pounds and, therefore, is not a flyweight.

Referee's School To Open on Nov. 15

The school for basketball referees to be held by the Boys Club of Washington, will open its classes on Friday night, November 15, with Edward Beckett, director of physical education at the Y. M. C. A., and long experienced in the court game, in charge.

The officiating of the Boys Club League will depend upon the senior members of the club along with any other young men who are interested in learning the ways of a referee. The class will meet once a week for five weeks and the following are requested to be at the club on November 15: Harry Brag, M. Panella, A. Panella, Sidney Greenberg, A. Villari, H. Clar, H. Cole, Cody Shapiro, G. Lassis, Joseph Robinsor and Klein Jaffee.

KENNEDY A. C. TO DRILL.

The Kennedy A. C. will drill tonight at Sixteenth and Kennedy streets at 7:30 o'clock.

C. L. McCarthy Says Lax Ride Lost Spinach Futurity.

By LEONARD W. COLLINS.

LIKE all of our big turf classics—the Kentucky Derby, American Derby, Hawthorne Gold Cup, Lawrence Realization, Washington Handicap, Belmont Futurity, not to mention others—the Pimlico Futurity is now undergoing a complete post-mortem analysation by students of the game.

Press dispatches emanating from the old Hilltop course immediately after the running of the Maryland Jockey Club's $40,000 fixture, were almost in accord that Gifford A. Cochran's Flying Heels outgamed William Ziegler's Spinach in the furious stretch drive which marked the last furlong of the race.

However, it has remained for Charles L. McCarthy, one of America's greatest turf chroniclers, to come forward with the statement that it was Jockey Mack Garner's overconfidence, not the superior gameness of Flying Heels, that was the direct and contributing cause for the defeat of Spinach.

McCarthy Identified With Turf 30 Years.

McCarthy has been identified with racing for almost 30 years in one capacity or another and has "covered" every big race of any consequence or importance that has been run in this country in the last 30 years. He is acknowledge a past master in passing judgment on horseflesh. He not only knows horses, but knows riders—their capabilities, fallacies and weaknesses.

Analyzing the Futurity, McCarthy points out that passing the eighth pole Spinach under slight urging drew away from Flying Heels as though the Cochran entrant was anchored. Any one who saw the race acknowledges the fact.

However, McCarthy points out that just as soon as Spinach drew clear Garner ceased his efforts, taking it for granted that the race was as good as won. He further points out that it was not until they were passing the sixteenth pole that Garner renewed his activities. In the meantime Flying Heels, as the result of severe punishment, had drawn up on equal terms with the Sir Martin colt.

Permitted Spinach to Shorten Stride.

In the ensuing drive to the finish Flying Heels held Spinach safe by the narrowest of margins and to the uninitiated it appeared as though the son of Flying Ebony had really outgamed Spinach. His contention is that Spinach, as a matter of fact, was permitted to shorten his stride when Garner took it for granted that Flying Heels was whipped.

When Garner discovered that Flying Heels was not in reality gaining on Spinach, but that the latter was going back to the Cochran star as a result of his shortened stride, he then made a desperate attempt to again get Spinach into full stride, but it was too late. McCarthy contends that had Garner ridden the Ziegler colt out he would undoubtedly have been the winner.

Overconfident Ride Against Zev Cited.

That Garner has a bad habit of taking too much for granted once his mount gets to the front or is apparently overtaking the opposition has resulted disasterously upon numerous occasions. McCarthy emphasizes his statement by mentioning that Garner's overconfidence cost In Memoriam his match race against Zev at Churchill Downs; Blue Larkspur the Dwyer Stakes, and numerous other instances.

McCarthy pays Garner the compliment: "Keep him convinced that he hasn't a chance to win and he's as booting, hunching, sternly driving a jockey as one could ask for. But let him think he is as good as home and he can not resist the temptation to say to the grand stand, 'Here I am, folks.' And, while his attention is off the task at hand—bing! another horse is first to the cashier's post."

TECH AND WESTERN IN BATTLE TODAY

do all the ball carrying for the Red and White Eleven.

Although Eddie Brownfield, 1920 back field luminary, also became eligible with the announcement of the advisory grades, it is extremely doubtful that he will break into the game today, due to an arm injury sustained in an early season practice. However, Brownfield will be on the Western bench and should necessity arise, may be rushed into the fray.

The last doubt that the latter two would be unable to play was dispelled yesterday when the pair went through the final signal drill with their team. Although both suffered injuries in the last series go against Eastern, both have sufficiently recovered and should take up where they were forced to leave off against Eastern.

Both are dangerous ground gainers and should cause the Tech line plenty of trouble. Draper is again expected to do all the kicking for his team in addition to leading the offense, while it is never safe to say when Millard will not break away for a long gain.

Fans should then be in store, therefore, for plenty of thrills today when the two elevens clash, as everything in the way of grandstand enjoyment will be expected to be offered. In contrast to the powerful onslaught of Draper and Millard will be Tech's brilliant passing attack which has carried it to victory in its first two games.

Spencer's Passes Are Expected.

With Aubrey Spencer doing the passing, the pigskin is due to sail through the air many times today if Hardell hasn't drastically changed the attack of his henchmen. Capt. Willis Benner will likely be in the line for the receipt of most of Spencer's heaves, although most any Tech player may crop up to snag the oval out of the air.

No game in the series should be fought harder. With a team upon which the fate of the entire series, as well as its own hopes for success, depends pitted against an eleven which has only to defeat its rival of the afternoon to gain its most coveted award, there should be nothing lacking in the way of fight and spirit from the opening whistle to the final minute.

NEWARK BUYS WINDLE.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Newark Baseball Club, of the International League tonight announced the outright purchase from Pittsburgh of the National League, of Willis B. Windle, first baseman, the purchase price was not announced. Windle was farmed out by the Pirates last years to Omaha, of the Western League.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NOR'EASTER, $6.10, $3.78, $2.24; STAR FORWARD, $6.02, $3.36; MY HOBBY, $2.80.

NOR'EASTER, held behind MY HOBBY until straightened in stretch and easily disposing of latter when ready, drew out cleverly. STAR FORWARD worked way up on inside, closed strongly last eighth and was easily best of others. MY HOBBY, under hard pressure throughout, tired badly when put to a drive. ZETIN always a pointender, tired last sixteenth as if a trifle short. ASHBURN had no mishaps. ZETIN stumbled after the finish, unseating her rider.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 2-year-old maidens, fillies. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:32. Off at 2:36. Winner, A. Sorenen ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NELL M'CLATCHEY, $42.72, $24.80, $11.88; FRISKY FLO, $9.98, $3.52; GO TO IT, $2.82.

NELL M'CLATCHEY, running suddenly improved and holding on gamely, was never in danger. She was weakly handled all through stretch, but had enough in reserve to finish on own courage. FRISKY FLO, always in nearest pursuit, paid on stubbornly while saving ground, but could not threaten leader. GO TO IT suffered slightly when approaching the turn when FRISKY FLO came over sharply, but was tiring badly in the last sixteenth. MISS PLUNGER went evenly and had no mishaps. FIG LEAF could never reach a contending position.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:06. Off at 3:07. Winner R. C. Thatcher's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PORT O'PLAY, $11.68, $7.36, $3.74; BIG SANDY, $9.80, $4.96; BIG BROTHER, $2.86.

PORT O'PLAY disposed of LUCKY XENORA after three furlongs, drew out into a commanding lead and, tiring near end, just lasted. BIG SANDY moved up stoutly after reaching far turn and apparently blinded by the mud, might have won but for being taken up on the heels of the winner a sixteenth out. BIG BROTHER, forced back repeatedly first half mile, faltered when clear through stretch. LUCKY XENORA had early speed. BORIS raced sluggishly and was never a contender.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good for all but Williamson. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:33. Off at 3:35. Winner, A. F. Canale's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AIMEE GOLDSMITH, $14.28, $6.94, $5.26; MISS SUDDUTH, $11.44, $10.56; EIL WEIR, $7.02.

AIMEE GOLDSMITH, at home in the going, was hustled into a long early lead and, holding on gamely under steadying restraint, was never in danger. MISS SUDDUTH, loomed up dangerously on outside at head of stretch and, although continuing well, was not good enough. EIL WEIR, a keen factor throughout and saving all possible ground, had no excuses. FULL TIDE closed stoutly from a slow beginning. MISS LOTTA went well. JANE WILLIAMSON refused to break and was left.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. The Maple Avenue. For all ages. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:01½. Winner, A. F. Canale's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH SCORE, $6.34, $4.66, $3.62; VIRADO, $5.18, $4.00; REENIE, $9.28.

HIGH SCORE, displaying usual early speed and cleverly handled, was sent into a commanding lead first quarter and, increasing advantage, won with much speed in reserve. VIRADO, prominent from start and holding on stubbornly in the drive, lasted long enough to get place. Latter raced improved and was going courageously at the end. MUTUAL FRIEND, never far back, but tiring in last sixteenth, just failed to get up for third place. FANNIE J. broke down badly.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:29. Off at 4:30. Winner, O. V. Barnes' ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHISK ARROW, $11.70, $6.12, $4.84; MISS LEE, $6.68, $6.04; BABY DELHI, $4.94.

WHISK ARROW, forward from start and racing strongly final quarter, responded well when hard ridden and continuing gamely, gradually wore down Miss Lee who had usual early foot, saved ground wherever possible and, holding on better than usual, just failed to last. BABY DELHI improved position steadily while saving ground, held on well in the drive, but could not menace leaders. CLOVER CLUB could never reach a contending position. TWO COLORS had no mishaps. DOLLY SETH began dropping back after five-eighths.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:58. Off at 4:58. Winner, W. Kinney's br. m. G. U. FORGETS VARSITY DEFEATS AS FRESHMEN SHINE

Banner Year In 1930 Is Forecast

Strength of Present Cubs Asserted in Every Game.

Middle West Supplies Stars of Yearling Combination.

ONE bright angle of the drab football season for George Washington University is seen in the Colonial freshmen eleven which has so aroused the hopes of G. W. followers that they are already forgetting the woeful record of the present varsity eleven and looking ahead to great things in the gridiron sport of 1930, when the present freshmen become eligible for varsity competition.

The record of the individual members of that now-famed G. W. team even surpasses that of their already brilliant team record. From reliable sources, it is learned that 20 of the men now enrolled at G. W. in their first year boast either all-State or all-conference records for high schools in the Middle West, with the majority of the men harboring from Missouri and Mississippi. And all of the men seem to be living up to the reputations which they established for themselves in their home towns.

Already the newcomers at the downtown school have become somewhat heroic in the eyes of Colonial fans, and a certain admiration and respect for these men as football players now prevails among the G. W. students. Heretofore, the G street students paid little attention to even members of the varsity team, hardly recognizing any of them by sight, but by the end of the first month of school this semester the players on the Buff and Blue yearling squad were being called by their first names by members of the student body.

G. W. Students Forget Varsity Defeats.

There is a distinct pride which G. W. students are taking these days in speaking of their freshmen and gone are the shameful looks which used to appear when Buff and Blue gridiron activities were discussed in the open.

From time immemorial the old saying of "Wait 'till next year," has been taken with so much hooey, it most always being the expressed sentiment of any group in the throes of a disastrous season. But with the thought of the graduation of the present Buff and Blue yearlings to the ranks of the varsity squad, it seems for once that this hitherto alibi statement is entirely justified in light of the record of the G street frosh as a team and a history of its members as individuals.

To date, the Colonial Cubs have played four games, winning three of them by decisive scores, and losing the other by the narrowest margin by which a game may be lost, 7-6. But the record of the Buff and Blue youngsters is even more impressive when the standing of their opponents is considered, and it is seen that not one set-up was included in the lot.

When the Colonials opened their season with the Georgetown University freshmen, not a small crowd of the G. W. student body accompanied their freshmen in the hope of seeing a G. W. win over G. U. What they saw exceeded even their fondest hopes for the Buff and Blue Yearlings flashed an attack which left the Hilltoppers stunned and dazed and staggering under a 20-0 defeat.

Western Maryland Surprises.

Then came the Western Maryland frosh, the only team to upset the Farrington-coached men this year. Exhibiting a powerful aggregation and surprising the G. W. yearlings almost as much as the Western Maryland varsity surprised Lou Little's Georgetown eleven, walked off with a 7-6 verdict for the only stigma on the Buff and Blue record to date.

Since then George Washington's "little boys" have won two games in impressive fashion, defeating the Maryland University's junior varsity, 32-19, and burying the Johns Hopkins freshmen only last Saturday under an 68-0 score.

With the prospects of these men participating in varsity sports next year at G. W., it is no wonder that the Hatchetite supporters are worrying not at all about the failure of this year's varsity.

For the first time in four years the Buff and Blue is looking forward to a banner year of football in 1930 with the rosy hopes of seeing some of this year's rivals who already have trampled the current varsity mercilessly bow to the up-and-rising generation at G. W. who promise to be the "big boys" of the future.

CENTENNIALS PRACTICE.

The Centennials will meet at North Capitol street and New York avenue tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in preparation for their game with the Petworth Eleven. Both teams are boasting the same record, with neither eleven being scored on nor having lost a game.

DUKE COACH BESET BY ILL LUCK

Criticism of De Hart Overlooks Injury to Regulars.

Durham, N. C., Nov. 4.—Duke alumni and newspapers have been criticizing Jimmy De Hart, head coach of football, severely the last few weeks. In that time the Blue Devils have lost to Pitt, Navy, Villanova and Boston College.

It is always thus when a team is losing. The best football coach in the country can not escape the critics, and De Hart is regarded here as one of the best coaches in the country. His system of football is not antiquated, as some of his critics charge. It is the same system used by the great Pitt Team, Stanford and many others.

Briefly, here is the football record of De Hart:

One of the greatest players in the history of football at Pitt, a member of Pitt's greatest team in 1916.

During the war years he coached and played on the great Mather Field Team, beating California on Friday, 20 to 0, and Stanford the next day, 80 to 0. He was chosen all-Service quarter back by Walter Camp.

After he left the service he went to Georgia as assistant coach, but really had charge of the team. He coached the team that beat Harvard, 10 to 7, and Dartmouth, 7 to 0.

In 1922 he became head coach at Washington and Lee, and remained there four years. In those four years his teams won fourteen Southern Conference games, while they were losing but four.

Teams Greatly Improved Since 1926.

He started at Duke in 1926 and Duke in those days was being given stiff opposition by such schools as Elon, Wofford and Guilford. DeHart improved the brand of football and Duke took on bigger game. Duke has found this going rather rough at times, not because of DeHart's system is antiquated but probable because he has not had the great wealth of material enjoyed by other coaches.

Duke had an ambitious schedule this year. The first big foe tackled was Pitt, and Duke simply was outclassed. The 52-to-7 defeat, however, did not take the fight out of the Blue Devils—named such after the great French fighting outfit of that name in the World War. Duke ran rings around Navy for half of the game at Annapolis and then succumbed to another terrific beating after nine of the best men had been forced out with injuries.

Against Villanova the Duke Team was made up of second and third string men because of the nature of injuries to the varsity. And Duke lost again—to a great team.

Boston College Outrushed From Scrimmage.

Then came the Boston College game. Duke had a better line-up. Only Capt. Kistler, Charley Rupp, Red Davis and a few others were unable to play. Duke outgained Boston from scrimmage and in passing but Boston won, 3 touchdowns to 2. Duke had the ball near Boston's goal at the half and at the end of the game was again threatening.

If Duke could hold Boston—another of those undedefated teams—with several regulars still out, they no doubt could beat Boston and many other teams with all the strength at hand.

Duke will have its full strength next Saturday against Louisiana State University—the first Southern Conference foe of the Blue Devils. And DeHart is expecting a win.

If Duke wins from Louisiana and from North Carolina State, Wake Forest and Davidson then a great crowd will turn out December 7 when Duke plays Carolina. Duke may win all of these games if wholesale injuries do not again descend on the Blue Devil camp.

The defeats by Pitt, Navy, Villanova and Boston do not count in the standing of the Southern Conference. Duke has three S. C. games—Louisiana, Carolina State and Carolina.

ARMY PLAYS ILLINOIS ON SATURDAY

Midwest Team Aims to Stop Cagle in Big Contest.

Special to The Washington Post.

URBANA, Ill., Nov. 4.—Welcomed by a crowd of 68,000 which will fill every seat in the Illinoi stadium with uncounted thousands turned away, Army will come into the Middle West Saturday to meet the fighting Illini, champions of the Big Ten for the past two years.

Three years ago Pennsylvania, the first Eastern eleven to play in the stadium, came with its back field of "four magicians" whose hidden ball had mystified all foes. Bob Zuppke, chieftain of the Illini, devised a defense which consisted of stoping every Red and Blue back whether or not he had the ball. Penn's team fought gallantly but the Illini triumphed when Frosty Peters dropkicked a field goal in the closing minutes.

Now the Army comes with its red-haired all-American half back, Christian Keener Cagle as captain and star. The Illini know all about Cagle. Bob Zuppke watched him play against Stanford in New York last year and all week in practice the Illini veterans will be warned that he is a different kind of runner from any they have ever encountered.

Army Started Season With 14 Letter Men

Army started the season with fourteen letter men from last season of whom seven were considered first-stringers. Illini, on paper, has nineteen letter men, but probably not more than eight ranked as first-stringers last year, and several letter men have spent the fall playing with the reserves.

The Illini look to no particular star, as their back field men, Timm, Mills and Walker, are all fast. Doug Mills has been the leader this fall with his runs for touchdowns on Iowa and Michigan, but his teammates are just as likely to break loose.

Illinois Has no Chance For Let-Up.

The exigencies of the schedule forced Zuppke to take the Army game in its stride. With every conference game a stubborn contest, there could be no letting down.

Against Eastern teams the Illini in all time have won four out of five games and under the Zuppke regime, two out of three. Illinois defeated Syracuse in 1909 and 1910, when Art Hall and Jus Lindgren were the coaches. Colgate invaded old Illinois field in 1915 to defeat a Zuppke-coached eleven, but the Illini beat Pennsylvania in 1925 and 1926.

LIGHTWEIGHTS READY.

The Trojan Football Team, averaging less than 100 pounds, would like a game for Saturday or Sunday. Call North 5718 after 3 o'clock.

PINEHURST GOLF DELAYED.

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The qualifying round of the twenty-fifth annual golf tournament, scheduled for today was postponed until tomorrow because of rain. The tournament is the opening amateur event in the Pinehurst season.

HAMLINE FIVE READY.

Hamline Church's Basket Ball Team is anxious for a practice game on Wednesday night and would also like to schedule games on Monday and Wednesday nights during the season. Call Walter Frye, Col. 7596, for arrangements.

MERCURY TO DRILL.

All Mercury players are requested to report for practice every night this week at 8 o'clock on the Sixth and B streets southwest field, in reparation for Sunday's game with St. Stephen's. Freckl, Du Bresne, Ball, Cox and Tolson are especially urged to be on hand.

MINOR DRAFT SHIFTS 18 PLAYERS

Kolza, Former Nat, Among Those Affected by Draw.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Promotion for eighteen minor league players was announced today by J. H. Farrell, secretary of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, in making public the results of the draft in class A, B, C, and D circuits.

As the result of the draft selections R. W. Florria of the Columbus Club of the Southeastern League becomes a member of the Wichita Falls Team of the Texas League; Roland Flinn, from Lewiston of the New England circuit, also joins the Wichita Falls Club as does Jack C. Kolza, of the Montgomery Club of the Southeastern League. San Antonio of the Texas League drafted Albert R. Edwards from the Independence, Kans., Club of the Western Association; Thorpe Hamilton, from Knoxville Club of the South Atlantic Association and George Malicky, a member of the Martinsburg Club of the Blue Ridge League.

Fort Worth, also of the Texas circuit, selected Paul Gribble from the Augusta Club, of the South Atlantic Association, while Houston, Tex., drafted George Binder from the Scottdale Team, of the Middle Atlantic Association. Shreveport, the Louisiana member of the Texas League, drafted Lios Ward from Alexandria, La., of the Cotton States circuit.

Columbia Club Gains 3 Players.

The Columbia Club, of the South Atlantic Association, drafted P. Colrane from Fort Smith, of the Western Association; Herman Cholcher from Lincoln, of the Nebraska State League, and J. Payne from Goldsboro, N. C., of the Eastren Carolina League. Tampa, Fla., of the Southeastern League, selected Thornton G. Lee from Globe, of the Arizona State League. Ulmont Baker, of the Greensboro, N. C., Club, of the Piedmont League, joins Lynn, of the New England circuit, while Independence, of the Western Association, gets Sherman Walker from Chambersburg, of the Blue Ridge League. Shawnee, Okla., of the Western Association, drafted Clark Taliaferro from Hanover, Pa., of the Blue Ridge circuit. The Jeanette, Pa., Team, of the Middle Atlantic League, selected Kemp Wicker of the Goldsboro Club and William Simons from Rocky Mount, N. C., of the Eastern Carolina League.

ON VIRGINIA GRIDIRONS

(Associated Press.)

FIVE headline acts, including two important Southern Conference meets, are on the Virginia football card this week.

In the Piedmont, at Charlottesville, Virginia Tech and the Cavaliers will engage in the third of the Virginia Big Four battles, which also is a conference game. At tidewater Norfolk, the strong Clemson Eleven from South Carolina will endeavor to pull down V. M. I.'s proud flag, which has dipped but once this season—to Florida. The remaining games involve Virginia Conference laurels.

A rejuvenated Virginia team with Capt. John Sloan back in the line-up is expected to trot out on the field against the Gobblers, so far undowned within the limits of Virginia. If Sloan's foot is well enough for him to again engage in play, his playing strength will be added to that of Bill Thomas and Hunter Faulconer, who have been carrying the big load since the Charlottesville captain's foot bone was smashed.

Coach Andy Gustafson, of Poly, however, has a fine collection of backs in Spear, Temko, Moever, Hooper and Owens, and the game proposes to be one of the best played in the State this year. Neither line is outstanding, both having been built up this year. In a series of games since 1923, each team has won three times.

The hard-hitting Capt. Al Hawkins, of V. M. I., probably will be called on to muster more stuff than has been necessary for several weeks when he leads the Cadets against the Clemson Tigers. The South Carolina assemblage already has shut out N. C. State and has defeated South Carolina, Davison, Newberry and Wofford by creditable scores.

In Justus and McMillan, the Tigers possess a combination comparable to Hack and Mack, of Tennessee—Buddy Hakman and Gene McEver. Also the Clemson line weights better than 190 pounds, a good many more pounds than the Cadets can muster under any circumstances.

The Cadets, on the other hand, will go into the game with victories over Virginia, Maryland, Citadel, Richmond and Hapden-Sidney behind them. The team probably will expect some stimulus from the fact that three of the Cadet stars, Capt. Hawkins, Tommie Scott, and Louis Chadwick, will be playing their home town.

When the V. M. I. Flying Squadron goes to Norfolk this week-end, it will not go alone. The corps of cadets will be on hand to add color to the Clemson game and produce the volume of yells for which they are noted.

To be certain of strength against Lynchburg this week-end, Coach Bernier, of Hampden-Sidney, put Ralph Willis, Ben Franklin and Boot Lawson on cold storage last Saturday and carried reserves to Colgate in their places. This trio is certain to perform against the Hilly City aggregation, and Bernier hopes to have Capt. Butch Blanton back in shape after a siege with an infected foot.

Harry Stark and Jim Swart, Virginia Tech's first string tackles, are playing their first year of varsity football. Both are members of the sophomore class, and each weighs between 190 and 200 pounds. Stark is a product of Portsmouth High School and Swart of Potomac State School.

Virginia Conference teams will perform in three sections of the State. William and Mary Conference leaders, are doped to win over Roanoke at Roanoke. The University of Richmond is the favorite in its match with Randolph-Macon, of Ashland, at Richmond, and Hampden-Sidney shows a better record than its competitor, Lynchburg College, to be met at Lynchburg.

Virginia will be playing its last home game of the season this week. After the invasion by V. P. I.'s Gobblers, the Cavaliers go to Lexington November 16 for a try-out against Washington and Lee, and Thanksgiving they will play North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

SOCCER CLUB MEETS.

There will be a meeting of the Silver Spring Soccer Club at Buck Vanborn's tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

An Inspirational Chat Between the Halves Of a Big Game

The dressing quarters of a football team, between the halves of an important game. Slumped on the floor, breathing warm air which smells of green concrete, steam, rubber, iodoform, wool, leather and sweat, are the members of the team, together with a number of substitutes, rubbers and assistant managers. In the middle of the room stands the coach. He regards them in silence for a time, and then begins to speak.

WELL.

That's nice. That's all I got to say, that's nice.

Thirteen to nothing against you and only the first half. The way you were playing out there it's a wonder it wasn't 113 to 0 and a whole team of substitutes put in against you on account the first string was all out of wind from making touchdowns.

Thirteen to nothing, think of that.

Did you think we joined a tiddledy-winks league or something? I never heard such a pants-slapping in all my life. Why, they could hear you guys missing tackles clear up in the grand stand. Slapping at their legs like a lot of kids in a game they got up at recess time so they could heave the ball through the window and bean the teacher on the head with it. It sounded like clap-in-clap-out. Or more like pat-a-cake, pat-a-cake, baker's man.

Wisdom of Punt From the 18-Yard Line Doubted.

Callahan!

What were you doing punting the ball on their 18-yard line? Were you that blind you couldn't see their goal posts and, anyway, try a drop-kick? I swear, I saw you punt that ball and even after I saw it I couldn't believe it. Punting on their 18-yard line! And so they brought the ball out 20 yards and they were 2 yards better off than they would have been if you just made them a present of the ball right where it was at. Thirteen to nothing! They ought to have rung up 25 against you for that punt alone and then wrote a piece about it for the Spalding Football Guide when it comes out next year. That there was football history, that was.

Resnick!

Did you have the sleeping sickness or something that you couldn't remember that left shift? Or has your neck got a crick in it that you couldn't turn around and see what I was giving you from the bench? Think of that! I been taking you over that play for the last three weeks, I haven't hardly given you anything else but, I tell you to use it soon as you get inside their 25-yard line, and there you were, right on their 18-yard line, and you never even heard of a left shift.

You call for a kick, and then Callahan, he thinks it's a rule of the game you got to punt on all fourth downs, and stead of making a drop-kick out of it, he punts it, and they bring it out, and it was the same as if you had made them a present of 2 yards, just to show you know they're a old football rival and you want them to know you play the game like a gentleman.

Cohen! What's the Idea, Giving Ground Away?

I'll say you do. Oh, you got the ethics of the sport down pat all right. Nobody can't say you don't give a opponent all that's coming to him. Oh yeah. And then some. You just make a mistake that's all. You ought to went to Harvard, where all the members of the squad make their expenses taking care of babies while their Ma is down to the store buying some canned sardines for dinner and they won't play Princeton because Roper's boys are too rough.

Cohen!

What was the idea of roughing that end after the pass had hit the ground and bounced a couple of times already? Why couldn't you tackle him once when he had the ball, stead of waiting till the ball was dribbling along on the sideline and nobody had it? Oh, yeah! I understand. You don't have to tell me. You're another one of these here bright, gentlemanly, ethical boys that would rather give away some yards than keep them. Fifteen yards you gave away that time, and it sure did come in handy for them because they sliced off a touchdown on the next play. Oh, sure. I get the idea perfect. Just giving the ground away. You spell your name like a Cohen but you don't play a Cohen, that's all I got to say.

Ethical, Charity Stuff Not So Good.

Di Caprio!

Were your arms paralyzed that you couldn't grab that kick and down it, stead of letting it bounce along the ground like you did till that bonehead end on the other side fell on it? Oh, yeah. Don't say a word. I understand without you telling me. That was some more of this ethical, gentlemanly, charity stuff we just been talking about. Fourteen yards that kick rolled, and would have rolled about ten more if that end handn't fell on it, only of course he was ethical too and wanted to show he could return a favor. Fourteen yards, think of that, just because you got the infantile paralysis in your elbows or something and couldn't grab it.

Berney, Cumisky, Smith, Hessler, Jacobi, Katzenstein!

Oh no, don't get up. Just sit where you're at. We're handing out medals for ethical conduct now, and we got to that very vital part of a football team, the part that don't generally always get any appreciation, the line. But it's going to get plenty of appreciation today. If I ever saw a perfect functioning machine, I saw it just now, and how it functioned like a well-oiled machine. All offside at once, like they worked on springs. Believe me, I been coaching football 20 years and I've seen some funny things, but I never saw a line where the guards, tackles and ends all popped at once, and on pretty near every other play. A dozen times that happened, and five yards it cost every time. Oh yes, the line did its share today all right.

Bishop!

Do you call yourself a center? Couldn't you hold that ball once while these her hoptoads were jumping offside and maybe save a penalty? What was the idea of shooting it back every time like?

Well, there goes the whistle. Now fellows remember. . . .

The cleats clatter on the concrete floor, and the players get heavily to their feet. Inspired by the coach's brilliant address, they become a different team in the second half, and win the game, 18 to 13.

Navy Boxers Report For Initial Workout

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4.—Though football will continue to occupy the center of the stage through November, today marked the launching of preliminary activities for the winter indoor season of sports, the program of which promises to be even more extensive than usual.

For the time being chief interest will center in the development of the boxing team, particularly as the season opens three weeks earlier than usual. Dartmouth, a new comer on the Navy schedule, will send its mitt slingers to Annapolis on December 18.

All of the teams of the intercollegiate association, again are booked for dual meets prior to the finals in March. These include Penn State, Georgetown, Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Massachusetts Tech, Western Maryland. A misunderstanding as to a date, prevented University of Virginia from being on the card.

"Spiks" Webb, veteran coach, took charge of a number of pupils today, and there is every prospect for a whale of a team to carry on in the wake of the enviable record of ten successive years without defeat in a dual engagement. Claude Ricketts, captain and middleweight, was the only loss by graduation. The veterans available include Dempsey (bantam), Fitzgerald (feather), Williams (light), Hall (welter), Moret and Swan (light-heavy) and Chapple. Since the association abolished the heavyweight division, "Moon" Chapple will have nothing to do. Davis, plebe 160-pounder last season is a promising candidate for the new 159-pound class added at the league meeting.

George Moffett, crack featherweight to Webb. He is the son of Rear Admiral Moffett, of the Navy.

No New Injuries Found On Virginia Poly Squad

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 4.—V. P. I.'s Eleven trotted off the field at Lynchburg Saturday after its win over Washington and Lee without serious new injuries to varsity men. This will enable Andy Gustafson and Lee Frank to swing into preparations for the Virginia clash at Charlottesville with the services of every man except Red Jones, the guard who was injured last week.

A lot of things which bear upon the Cavalier encounter came to light when the Gobblers hurdled their first barrier in the State title hunt. The game proved conclusively what has been all too evident for the past two years—that in all-round power V. P. I.'s second team is a far cry from the first. There is not enough football material at the institute for the coaches to substitute without taking big chances, particularly on defense.

The game showed also that the powerful defenses of heavier Gobbler teams during the coaching regime of Ben Cubbage a few years back, are no more. V. P. I.'s defense is mainly a stronger offense than that of the past. Therein lie Gobbler hopes for their first victory over Virginia on Lambeth Field since 1923.

On Southern Gridirons

By EDDIE BRIETZ

(Associated Press Sports Writer).

THE schedule from now until the end of the season will send the big green wave of Tulane University rolling down the championship stretch in the rail position.

Coach Bernie Bierman's charges have three conference foes left, but only one of them—Louisiana State—is figured dangerous to the hopes of the New Orleans entry.

Coaches of the other three leading contenders are not sitting so pretty as Bierman. All they can see ahead is grief and plenty of it.

Where Bierman has one tough game to face all the other coaches have two.

At Nashville, they are trying to figure how Vanderbilt can turn back both Georgia Tech and Tennessee on successive Saturdays. All are agreed that if Dan McGugin can do it he will be entitled to the championship and Past performances point to another disappointing week-end for the South in its intersectional engagements with the East and Middle West.

Of the five teams participating, Georgia, which plays New York University at New York, and Oglethorpe, which entertains Manhattan College at Atlanta, appear to have the only chances to come through.

Maryland, which meets Yale; Mississippi, which takes on Perdue, and Mississippi A. & M., scheduled with Michigan State, are three of the weakest teams in the Southern Conference.

Alabama Poly at Auburn is looking around for a coach to succeed George Bohler, who was relieved of his portfolio last week.

Several names have been mentioned, but it is considered unlikely that any decision will be made until the end of the season.

WHAT DID YOU WRITE IN YOUR BEST GIRL'S ALBUM?

NOVEMBER 5, 1904.

Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, and his party's candidate for reelection to that office, has personally answered the charge that his former Secretary of Commerce and Labor, George B. Cortelyou, now chairman of the Republican national committee, has secured a heavy campaign fund by a species of blackmail levied upon trusts and other corporations. Mr. Roosevelt denounced this charge, as circulated by Judge Alton B. Parker, Democratic candidate for President, as monstrous and utterly false in a signed statement issued from the White House late last night.

Today was the celebration of the first anniversary of the independence of Panama. President Roosevelt sent a cablegram of felicitation to President Amador of Panama.

Three races were run at the Benning Race Track before a crowd of 500 persons. In the third race, a 2:40 event, Myron H., driven by Mr. Javins ran away twice around the track, finally jumping the fence and smashing the sulky. Neither Mr. Javins nor the horse was injured.

"How to Catch a Man," by Dorothy Dix, will appear in the Sunday issue of The Washington Post.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

November 5.
"SCORPIO."

IF NOVEMBER 5 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 9:15 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:45 a. m. to 11:50 a. m., and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Adverse astrological influences are in control on this date and grief or disappointment may occur. The prearranged program for the day may have to be changed to meet with unexpected developments. Only a brief period of ill-luck is foreseen.

Children born on this November 5 will like to lead and will never be content filling a secondary place. They will desire a full and active life and will be "live wires." They will be extremely affectionate and demonstrative.

You will never be as happy or successful in life as you should be until you conquer your pessimism. It paralyzes your thoughts and activities, and produces stagnation. You are a very poor fighter, and you needlessly accept failures and disappointments which could be otherwise, if you put forth the effort. You do not bring about the fulfillment of your desire, because you do not have sufficient hope and faith.

You are also very intolerant and suspicious toward other people, and for this reason you antagonize those from whom you should expect both loyalty and assistance. You allow yourself to become embittered and you wallow in the depths of self-pity. You need to turn your thoughts outward—self contemplation is fatal to one of your type. You are capable of being hysterically happy or hysterically sad, and you seldom remain upon a normal emotional plane. You are either the life of a party or the damper which lowers the spirits of all.

When your enthusiasms are fresh, you go into things with considerable vim and vigor, and are a hard and fast worker, but you are not apt to stick when confronted with real handicaps. You love art and music, and would become proficient in the latter field if you developed your talent. Your tastes are very domestic.

Successful people born November 5:
Thomas Shepherd—Founder Shepherd Memorial Church, Cambridge.
Thomas R. Gould—Sculptor.
William Corliss—Safe inventor.
Ella Wheeler Wilcox—Poet.
Ida Tarbell—Editor and lecturer.
Will H. Hays—Ex-Postmaster-General.

BUCK ROGERS, 2429 A. D. — Has Plan to Right Ship — By Phil Nowlan and Dick Calkins

THE SUBMARINE WAS FLOATING UPSIDE DOWN, BUT WE GOT OUT THROUGH THE DIVING PORT
WE'LL TURN THE SHIP OVER IN JIG TIME
WELL, WE'RE STILL ALIVE
AND GOING STRONG, DEAR
SCREW THE HOSE ON THAT CONNECTION, AND MAKE IT TIGHT
AYE, AYE SIR
TOSS OVER THE FREE END OF THE HOSE NOW
OVER IT IS, SIR
WONDER HOW THAT'S GOING TO RIGHT THE SHIP
I CAN'T IMAGINE

ELLA CINDERS— The Efficiency Expert — By Bill Conselman and Charlie Plumb

I REALIZE YOU HAVE A BAD COLD, ELLA, BUT THE TALKING PICTURE MUST GO ON! THIS PRODUCTION COSTS US TEN DOLLARS A MINUTE, AND WE LOSE SIX HUNDRED DOLLARS EVERY HOUR WE'RE HELD UP!
IN THAT CASE I'D SUGGEST IT WOULD BE CHEAPER FOR YOU TO CALL A DOCTOR!
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright, 1929, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service
A TYPICAL CASE OF INFLUENZA! MY ADVICE IS THAT YOU SPEND THE NEXT THREE DAYS IN BED!
THAT'S AWFUL! WE CAN'T HOLD UP THE PICTURE THAT LONG! WE'RE BEHIND IN OUR SCENES ALREADY!
I GOT AN IDEA! IF I HAVE TO SPEND THE NEXT THREE DAYS IN BED, WE'LL SHOOT THE SCENES AT NIGHT!

GASOLINE ALLEY — An Oversight Easily Remedied

SKEEZIX, DID YOU WASH YOURSELF WITH SOAP AND WATER THIS MORNING?
YES, UNCLE WALT. YOU CAN FEEL THE WASHRAG.
THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT I DID. IT IS WET BUT SO CLEAN I COULDN'T BELIEVE IT HAD BEEN USED.
I MUST HAVE BEEN AWFUL CLEAN.
AND HOW DO YOU ACCOUNT FOR THE SOAP BEING DRY.
DID I FORGET TO WET THAT?

TALKIE COMEDY
THE PARTY OF THE SECOND PART
PART 2
SAMUEL SLABB, THE VILLAGE UNDERTAKER, AND PRESIDENT OF THE "LEAGUE FOR THE PERPETUITY OF POLITICAL PURITY" SUGGESTED THE MAN WHOM THEY SHOULD NOMINATE AGAINST McLOOK
THE ONE I HAVE IN MIND, BROTHERS AND SISTERS, IS THE HERMIT WHO LIVES IN THE HILLS BACK OF SAPP CENTER!!
THE TOWNSPEOPLE ARE DISGUSTED WITH McLOOK AND MACHINE POLITICS—THEY ARE LOOKING FOR A MAN OF UNTARNISHED CHARACTER AND REPUTATION TO CHAMPION THEIR CAUSE—A MAN AGAINST WHOM NO WORD OF EVIL CAN POSSIBLY BE SPOKEN!!
SUCH A MAN, MY FRIENDS, DWELLS NEAR BY—LET US GO TO HIM AND PRESENT OUR CASE!!
ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF THE TOWN
"OH, A HERMIT'S LIFE IS THE LIFE FOR ME-E" HOT CHA-CHA-CHA-CHA!"
HERMAN, THE HERMIT, A HAPPY PHILOSOPHICAL MAN WITHOUT A CARE IN THE WORLD
FULLER PHUN
MR SLABB PRESENTED THE LEAGUE'S VIEWS AND URGED THE SURPRISED HERMIT TO ACCEPT THE NOMINATION
IT IS YOUR DUTY, SIR—COME WITH US AND HELP US TO DEFEAT THIS PROFESSIONAL POLITICIAN, LUKE McLOOK!!
DOES HERMAN ACCEPT?
WELL, FOLKS WE SHALL SEE!!

BOBBY THATCHER — The Dim Trail — By George Storm

THE SKIFF MADE SLOW PROGRESS AS BOBBY STRAINED AT THE OARS—AS THEY NEARED GARDNERS ISLAND A SLIGHT WIND STIRRED THE RIVER MISTS INTO VAPOROUS SHROUDS AND THE DARK WOODS AT THE WATER'S EDGE BECAME VISIBLE—
HERE YOU TAKE THE LANTERN AND LEMME TAKE THE PICK AND SPADE— BE SURE AND HOLD THE COAT OVER SO WE WONT SHOW A LIGHT OVER THE WATER—
WELL HAVE TO FIND THE TRAIL IN THE DARK THE BEST WE CAN— IT STARTS NEAR THAT OLD DEAD TREE—
AFTER BREAKING THROUGH THE DENSE UNDERGROWTH FOR A FEW PACES THE BOYS PERMITTED A PENCIL OF LIGHT TO PRECEDE THEM ALONG THE DIM TRAIL THROUGH THE FOREST

MORE LOANS MADE BY RESERVE BANKS

Net Demand Deposits and Borrowings Increase Also in Report.

FIRM CHANGES HANDS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Loans and investments showed increases of $1,536,000,000, net demand deposits of $1,796,000,000 and borrowings from Federal Reserve banks of $175,000,000, while time and Government deposits revealed decreases of $15,000,000 and $4,000,000, respectively, in the Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in leading cities as of October 30.

Loans on securities increased $1,259,000,000; "all other" loans, $175,000,000; holdings of U. S. Government securities, $28,000,000, and holdings of other securities, $74,000,000 at all reporting banks.

Announcement was made yesterday by Waggaman, Brawner & Co., Inc., that the Carpel Corp., of this city, has purchased the Food Products Co., of Pittsburgh. This acquisition gives the corporation control of five distributing companies located in Baltimore, Md.; Richmond and Norfolk, Va.; Pittsburgh, Pa., and Washington. Plans are also under way for further expansion.

Carpel Corp. Declares Dividend.

Waggaman, Brawner & Co., Inc., also announced that the board of directors of the Carpel Corp., of Washington, has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share and an extra dividend of 12 1-2 cents per share, payable January 2, 1930, to stockholders of record December 20, 1929.

From three to nine months will be required for business and the stock market to reverse a downward trend, according to the estimate of A. Vere Shaw, financial adviser and economist for Shaw, Loomis & Sayles, with offices in New York, Boston and this city, addressing a large audience of women yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel. Shaw was the first speaker on a program arranged for the financial and business education of women, by President Wade H. Cooper, of the Continental Trust Co., and Miss Mary J Winfree, its secretary, and sponsored by that institution.

Declaring the recent return of stock prices to normal has punctured inflated ideas of many speculators with reference to their ability to buy during the near future, this contributor to the Atlantic Monthly, Harvard Business Review, and Barron's weekly said, "Many orders for automobiles; trips down the Nile, and clothing have been canceled and the effect of this will not be felt for some little time, but the downward trend of business, already existing for some three months, will be accentuated."

Upturn Later Foreseen.

Painting the brighter side of the picture, however, he predicted that while certain adjustments will be made in economic conditions, American aggressiveness and industry are as strong now as they have been; and in a brief period, the infusion of the supply of new ideas and a return of the old willingness to work will cure any intermediate depression which may be in prospect.

Speaking of investment principles and current investment trends, Shaw said that a constant change in investment conditions is the normal expectation for the future. Due to improvements in transportation, communication, industrial methods and management, the world has constantly been growing smaller and within the last decade, various activities have contributed toward bringing about a different economic structure. Installment buying, mergers, building up of corporate reserves, the new theory of high wages, the strengthened position of large corporations, and lately, the financing of investment trusts and holding companies and the wild speculation on the part of the public are all interesting factors responsible for our present conditions.

Closed for three days, the Washington Stock Exchange opened yesterday to considerable business in the stock division, where the turnover of 826 shares came within six of last Wednesday's sales and was 145 ahead of Thursday's aggregate. The bond sales total of $13,500 was $9,500 behind Thursday's.

Five Stocks Advance.

Five stocks registered advances in a market continuing ragged. Capital Traction came out at 77 and sold up to 80½ in a leading transfer of 182 shares. Capital Traction 5s also led the market with $6,000 exchanging at 90, former level. The exchange will be closed again today.

James M. Johnston and James H. Lemon have formed a partnership under the name of James M. Johnston & Co. to do a general investment banking business, it was announced yesterday. The firm will take over the business of Irving & Johnston and act as Washington correspondents for the well-known New York banking house of Spencer Trask & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange. The firm will also be members of the Washington Stock Exchange.

Their offices are located temporarily on the tenth floor of the Woodward Building, but will be moved to the new Shoreham Building about the middle of November. Through the firm's connection with Spencer Trask & Co. it will be able to offer to its clientele the facilities of that organization, whose private wire system extends to all the financial centers of the country.

Both Well Known.

Both Johnston and Lemon are well known in investment banking business in Washington and were formerly members of the firm of Irving & Johnston. Johnston is a director of the Liberty National Bank, a member of the Washington Stock Exchange, a director of the Federal Storage Co., also vice president and treasurer of the Federal Storage Co., and a member of the Columbia Country Club. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois and served during the war as a pursuit pilot in the A. E. F. Army Air Service. Lemon is a graduate of Central High School and Princeton University. He was a prominent athlete at both places. Both Johnston and Lemon were connected with Spencer Trask & Co. prior to locating in Washington.

R. P. Irving, formerly of Irving & Johnston, will also be connected with the new firm, as well as Harold G. Cummings, Edson B. Olds, jr., Guy O. Dove, jr., and Paul L. Doerr.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

A. M. Byers & Co.

R. E. M.—I am 23 years old and have approximately $10,000. At present I hold ten shares each of American Tel. & Tel., Standard Oil of New Jersey, Johns-Manville and 20 shares of A. M. Byers & Co. Do you think I have overinvested my resources in common stock? What is your opinion of these stocks at their present prices as investments?

Answer—Although the income yield on the three first-named stocks at present prices are small, they are, nevertheless, well regarded in conservative investment circles, this applying particularly to American Tel. & Tel. The same, however, does not hold true with reference to A. M. Byers. No dividend has yet been paid on the present common stock issue of that company, even though earnings reports are of satisfactory character; estimates for the current fiscal year are approximately $6.50 a share. The stock is regarded as overvalued on the basis of earnings and for that reason lacks the attraction possessed by the other stocks which you now hold. It probably would be well if you were to dispose of your holdings of A. M. Byers, and place the proceeds from the sale thereof in some one or more of the other stocks you mention or else in some high-grade preferred stock, on which you would obtain a regular fixed income. Stocks of the last named description are frequently referred to in this column.

International Nickel.

A. G. T.—Kindly give your advice as to buying International Nickel of Canada stock?

Answer—In relation to probable earnings during the near term, the stock at present appears to be priced amply high. However, the issue has considerable long term attraction on account of the development of the Frood mine, which should eventually result in substantially increased profits. If you are not in a hurry to secure a profit and are in a position to withstand probable intermediate sharp price fluctuations, the issue does not appear unattractive.

Schulte United Preferred.

H. D. R.—Would appreciate your opinion concerning Schulte United preferred, purchased at $400 per share and now selling around $55. Would you advocate taking a loss? What do you think of United Gas & Improvement as a purchase at present prices?

Answer — Earnings on Schulte United preferred in 1928 was only 6 cents per share. The stock therefore must be considered a radical speculation. However, inasmuch as you have already suffered a substantial loss and current reports would indicate that the company is making substantial progress in opening new stores, it might be well for you to keep your present holdings. United Gas & Improvement is well regarded in conservative investment circles. At present, dividends of $4.50 annually are being paid in quarterly installments of $1.12½ each.

Stewart-Warner.

O. W. G.—Will you please let me have your opinion of Stewart-Warner if bought outright and put away at this time? I understand that on the present market it is selling for less than ten times earnings, which seems cheap, but I know nothing about the management or future prospects.

Answer—Management of the company must be efficient, otherwise it could hardly have established the record of earnings and dividends that it has. Moreover, the prospects are good, largely on account of the diversification of its lines. Average net income for the past ten years has been about double dividend distributions. Dividends at varying rates were maintained on the old stock since 1913, and following the two-for-one split-up in April last, the new stock was placed on a $3.50 a share annual basis, equal to $7 on the old shares. Besides, 8 per cent in stock is being distributed this year in four quarterly installments of $2 each, the next being payable November 15 and the final one February 15, 1930.

Amrad Corporation.

Mrs. E. B.—Kindly give me a detailed opinion on the Amrad Corporation. I am told this stock will earn about $15 a share this year. Do you know this to be correct? I understand also that the company's greatest revenue comes from their having licensed radio manufacturers to use their mershon condenser. Can you give me names of the various manufacturers who use this condenser? Although I believe this stock to be speculative, would you advise purchasing it at present levels, not from an investment standpoint, but with the view that the shares will enhance in value in the near future.

Answer—It is reported that earnings of the company are showing substantial increases, but there is nothing in the statements thus far put out by the company that would indicate what the earnings for this year are likely to be. Consequently, it is impossible to say as to whether or not the estimates of the amount to be earned on the stock for 1929 are correct. The latest statement put out by the company was that for 1928, which showed net earnings of $162,179. It is true that the company has the exclusive rights of the mershon electric condenser, but it is impossible to give a list of the names of the manufacturers using it. Company on July 1, of this year, paid an initial quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share. Notwithstanding this and the fact that the company is closely affiliated with the Crosley radio interests, the stock must be looked on as a speculation. It is not within the province of this column to predict whether or not the stock will enhance in value in the near future.

General Baking; Missouri Kansas Pipe.

Mrs. P. W. K.—Would you kindly advise me as to the prospects of General Baking common? Would also appreciate your opinion of Missouri Kansas Pipe Line.

Answer—General Baking Corporation is the second largest of the national baking chains, operating 50 plants in 39 principal population centers. Although profits have been increasing, common stock appears to be priced high on earnings and dividend basis. The issue must be considered a radical speculation not suitable for conservative investment. Missouri Kansas Pipe Line should likewise be regarded in much the same light. The company, which was incorporated May 8, 1928, in Delaware, is engaged in the production, acquisition and distribution of natural gas. It has contracts with the American Pipe Line Co. and Gas Service Co., subsidiaries of the Cities Service Gas Co., whereby latter companies have agreed to purchase a maximum of 12,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily for a period of twelve years. It delivers gas through pipe lines to companies serving Kansas City, Mo., and other communities located in Missouri and Kansas. Thus far no statement of income has been published and it is impossible to determine the earning capacity back of the stock. No cash dividends have been paid as yet. On July 31 last the company paid a stock dividend of 3 1-3 per cent.

National Dairies.

L. H.—Will you kindly give me all the information you have in regard to National Dairies. Please advise if you think this a good buy at the present price?

Answer—By "National Dairies" it is presumed you mean National Dairy Products Co. The latter company ranks as the largest manufacturer of ice cream in the United States and one of the principal distributors of milk and other dairy products. Rapid expansion by acquisition of profitable concerns has been carried on through exchange of stocks, numerous companies having been taken over within the current year. For the full year of 1929 earnings are conservatively estimated at $4.85 to $5.50 per share of common stock. In addition to regular $1.50 cash dividend, the company pays 4 per cent per annum in stock. The stock is somewhat speculative, but offers considerable attraction for long-term holding.

Shenandoah Corporation.

Mrs. M. S.—I am contemplating buying some shares in the Shenandoah Corporation. By whom is this corporation sponsored and when was it launched?

Answer—The Shenandoah Corporation was incorporated July 23, 1929, in Delaware to buy, sell, trade in, and hold stocks and securities of any kind and to participate in syndicates and underwritings. The company was organized under the sponsorship of the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation and Central States Electric Corporation, which will acquire 2,000,000 shares or together 80 per cent of the common stock to be outstanding. Even while appreciating that the sponsorship of this corporation is of the best and that its standing is no doubt of the highest, it is the invariable practice of this column not to comment on investment trusts and the operations of the Shenandoah Corporation are very much, if not entirely, along that line.

Curb Review

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Trading got back to normal proportions on the New York Curb market today as speculative enthusiasm lagged. The movement of prices was highly irregular, and there was liberal profit-taking, especially at the opening. Some renewed liquidation also appeared, chiefly especially in the utilities and the oils.

The heaviest selling took place at the opening when, contrary to expectations, stocks were dumped rather freely at concessions of 1 to 9 points. The volume tapered off, however, and the early losses were mostly erased, although subsequent selling depressed many of the leaders.

Cities Service was again a trading favorite. Opening an hour late with the unprecedented block of 225,000 shares, which represented an accumulation of orders over the holiday and week-end, the stock lost 3 points of its early rise of more than 4, and closed with a net advance of 1 3-8 on a turnover of nearly 900,000 shares.

American Superpower remained below its previous closing price throughout the day, finishing with a decline of 4 1-2. Electric Bond and Share and Electric Investors were other soft spots, dropping 11 and 12 points, respectively. Associated Gas & Electric steadied after early weakness, but Allied Power & Light was off 5 1-2 points. Middle West Utilities, new, and American Light & Traction were strong spots in their group, the former advancing 8 points under brisk buying.

Aluminum Company of America, Lehigh Coal and Navigation and Caterpillar Tractor showed strength, the second named soaring 16 points in response to the plan to segregate its coal properties. Caterpillar was up nearly 5 points on reports that it was to be moved to the "big board," but was able to retain only 1 1-2 points of its gain.

Soft spots in the oil list included Cosden, down 15; Humble, down 1; Vacuum, down 4 1-2, and Gulf, down 4 3-8. The Standard Oil group was fairly steady.

Investment trusts were once more under pressure, Goldman Sachs falling more than 8 points and Lehman Corporation 5 1-2.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Nov. 4.—The New York Stock Exchange, Curb Exchange, Securities Market of the New York Produce Exchange and the various commodity markets here will be closed tomorrow, election day.

Stockholders of the By-Products Coke Co. have approved an increase in the capital from $500,000 to $2,500,000 shares. About 1,200,000 of the new shares will be used to acquire the plant and assets of the Toledo Furnace Co., of Toledo; Zenith Furnace Co., of Duluth; Perry Iron Co., of Erie, Pa., and an interest in the ore properties of Pickands, Mather & Co.

The Richfield Oil Co., of California, for the nine months ended September 30 reported today net earnings of $6,472,340, or $3.05 a share on 1,947,000 shares, a gain of 26 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago when the profits amounted to $5,455,194, or $2.66 a share on 1,855,833 shares.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

INSURANCE ORDERED FOR SCHOOL BUSES

Liability Policies Will Be Taken Out by Fairfax Education Board.

OTHER PLANS ARE MADE

The county school board met yesterday in the boardroom at the courthouse, Dr. F. M. Brooks presiding. Other members present were: Joseph Murphy, J. T. DeBell, H. F. Williams, John Haislip, S. H. Styles, F. S. McCandlish and F. W. Robinson, county superintendent of schools, acting as clerk.

A communication was read from the Oak Grove colored school in which it was stated the school had recently purchased an acre and a half of land to add to the half acre which it already has. The letter stated that the school would convey the whole tract to the board, but wished the board would give them some assurance that a new school building would be erected on the side, as the building they are now using is in an exceedingly dangerous condition. After some consideration the board decided to try to include this in the school budget next year. In the meantime a committee was appointed to investigate the needs of the community and the requirements for such a building. Even if included in the next budget it would be two years before the new building could be occupied, it was found, so inquiries will be made to determine if there is any possible way of financing a building that could be made ready for occupancy by the beginning of the next school year.

Tuition Charges Up.

This school is situated near the Loudoun County line and approximately one-half of the pupils attending are from Loudoun County. The same committee was instructed to take the matter up with the Loudoun school board in regard to tuition to be paid this county for these pupils and also for those attending the Floris Vocational School.

A letter was received from the Ivatoka School, which is under the Florence Crittenten School supervision, asking the board's permission to solicit funds and help from the school children of this county. Such funds would be used in giving the less fortunate children of the home a Thanksgiving celebration. This was given a hearty indorsement by the board, although it was brought out that the solicitation of funds and contributions in the schools is getting to be "somewhat of a nuisance" and that many solicitors should be barred from taking the time of the children during school hours. The board instructed that the principals and teachers of the schools be notified that any one wishing to solicit or sell in the schools must have permission in writing from the country superintendent of schools.

Institute Attendance Aided.

The State Teachers Institute, which is held in Richmond during Thanksgiving week each year is considered by the board as very beneficial to the teachers and any teacher attending will be allowed Wednesday preceding the Thanksgiving holidays, as an extra day off, and classes dismissed. The teachers unable to attend will conduct their classes as usual. Mr. Williams was appointed by the board to represent them at the meeting of the State board of school trustees in Richmond that week. The office of the county superintendent of schools will be closed from the Wednesday before Thanksgiving until the following Monday.

Transportation of school children from Clark's Crossing, Peacox and Curtis Station will be furnished under the same plan that was used last year. They will be transported to McLean School. This will be for the pupils of the grade schools only.

Colored Church Offered.

The board decided to open the colored school at Cartersville when the people of the community offered to furnish the church building free, for the use of the school. They will also furnish all the wood, outbuildings, water and stoves and such other service as is needed. There are 28 children in this community of school age. The board offers to furnish a teacher as long as the requirements of the State law are fulfilled, i. e., that an average of 20 pupils per day be maintained.

The county superintendent was authorized to transfer school furniture and equipment from one school building to another at his discretion.

A new regulation was promulgated making it necessary, before a pupil be transferred from one school to another during the year, to obtain written permission of the county school superintendent.

Sale Is Authorized.

To take care of the pupils at the Legato School, it was found that it is necessary to abandon the three higher grades and to run a bus from there to Centerville. This will be done as soon as possible.

A resolution was passed authorizing the necessary legal proceedings be taken by the Commonwealth attorney to sell the school building and land which was recently abandoned at Merrifield.

County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr asked permission to organize 4-H clubs among the boys of the schools. These clubs will study the leaves and woods of trees in this section of the State as well as the care and planting of home crops and gardens. The board gave its approval to the suggestion.

Representatives of two insurance companies submitted specimen policies covering public liability and property damage for the county-owned school busses. They explained the policies and estimated the cost to the board. The board decided to take out only the public liability policies which will relieve the board and its individual members from liability in any accident involving school busses. The policies will run until the end of the school year.

Waterpipe Aid Given.

Fifty dollars was appropriated to help the McLean Fire Department run pipe from the guttering and downspouting of the Franklin Sherman High School at McLean into the water supply tank, which was recently constructed in the school yard. The water in this tank will be used for fire prevention.

Trustee Williams was authorized to have a new asphalt shingle roof placed on the addition at the Idylewood school.

The clerk of the board was authorized to obtain bids from the county newspapers for publishing the financial statement of the school board as is required by law.

A motion was passed by the board to permit the Fairfax County Council of Religious Education, at its request, to establish, without cost of the school board, instruction in religious education in such schools of the county as may be designated by the county school superintendent, in the fifth and sixth grades of those schools only, and then at the writte nrequest of the parents or guardians of the pupil.

The members of the board stated in connection with this course of religious education that it must be carried out in such a manner so as not to influence the child in any particular church creed. It must be taught the same as a course in history or kindred subjects or the permission of the board would be immediately withdrawn. This subject will be taught one hour in each week in the schools designated by the superintendent of schools, and will not be compulsory for any pupil to attend unless their parents shall require their attendance by a written request.

Bills for October were read and approved. They amount to $4,085.27, not including the bills for telephone and electric service. The note for the temporary loan to the Herndon Bank, amounting to $2,700, was ordered renewed and the interest paid. Literary bond No. 6, on the Oakton School, and interest, making a total of $466.20, was ordered retired.

Reuben Ryon, 22, of Cameron Run, near Alexandria, was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with assaulting a 16-year-old girl. The information was furnished by the girl's mother. A preliminary hearing before Judge A. C. Ritchie, of the Juvenile Court in Fairfax, will be held this morning at 10 o'clock.

Ernest L. Lucket, of Accotink, was fined $10 and costs by Justice of Peace Thomas P. Chapman, of Fairfax, on a warrant sworn to by Paul F. Millard, alleging a threat to "get" Millard within the next few days.

Lucket was again arrested yesterday on two warrants charging him and Robert Gorham with the theft of chickens from Mrs. P. A. Gilling and Robert Lacy and sold at a nearby store. Lacy identified his chickens among the ones at the store. Their trial was set for next Monday.

Robert E. Brown, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was injured when his car was sideswiped by a car driven by John E. C. Beschoff, of Audubon, N. J., and Lorton, Va. Brown was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where he received treatment for cuts and bruises, and was allowed to leave after his wounds were treated.

According to Capt. Haywood Durrer, of the Fairfax County traffic police, who investivated the accident, Beschoff was driving on the wrong side of the road. His trial is set for this morning at 10 o'clock. This accident occurred on the Alexandria Highway near Gum Springs.

Several persons were injured on the Lee Highway near Merrifield Sunday evening when the car driven by one Montgomery and occupied by his wife, Hazel Montgomery, and Fanny and Tillie Hines, all of Baltimore, and the machine of Maurice McQuade, 716 Twenty-second street northwest, collided. The occupants of the latter car were Miss Edith Pfeil, Miss Gneva Wininington and Leslie Reed. Montgomery was severely cut about the head and body and was removed to a hospital in Washington. McQuade's chin was split open. The rest were given treatment for cuts and bruises by Dr. C. P. Waring at Fairfax. Both cars were demolished.

A car driven by O. R. Peterson skidded on the wet pavement near Lee Downs and ran into a telephone pole. Soren Jenson, a passenger in the car, was thrown against the pole and his collarbone broken. He was removed to a hospital for treatment.

Fairfax County, one of the oldest in the Commonwealth and always in the Democratic column, finds itself now in the doubtful column as to the result for State officers today.

While the campaign during the past six weeks has been quiet, the anti-Smith forces have been busy night and day on behalf of the coalition ticket and indications are that the county will not only give a majority to the coalition candidate for governor, but that L. L. Freeman, Republican candidate for the House of Delegates, will win over his Democratic opponent, L. D. Hall.

Freeman closed his campaign last night speaking before a capacity audience in the Town Hall at Vienna.

The polls will open at 6:30 a. m. and close at 5:04 p. m.

Dry Agent Traps Two Fairfax Men

Poses as Bootlegger; One of Prisoners Prohibition Detective's Kin.

Gordon Davis, of Lorton, and Robert Williams, of Fairfax, Va., were arrested last night at Lorton by Prohibition Agent William J. Riddle, attached to the prohibition administrator's offices at Baltimore, on charges of transportation and possession of 48 gallons of liquor. They were held in the Alexandria jail awaiting a hearing this morning at Alexandria before U. S. Commissioner John Barton Phillips.

The prohibition agent reported that he cultivated the acquaintance of the two men several weeks ago in posing as a bootlegger, and that last night he loaned the pair his automobile to haul the alleged load of liquor from an unnamed address in Lorton to him there.

Robert Williams is a brother of Virgil Williams, of Fairfax, a Virginia prohibition agent.

Cumberland "Y" Opens Membership Campaign

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 4.—The campaign to secure 1,000 new members for the Central Young Men's Christian Association opened here tonight with a dinner attended by the 111 workers. The drive will end Friday. With the proposed increase the membership will be 2,000.

Talks were made tonight by Douglas Bowie, who heads the campaign as flight commander and Frank Smith, Elmer J. Carter and Arthur H. Gehauf, who head major divisions in the competitive drive. They are squadron leaders and under each will be five pilots and a varying number of copilots. The campaign will be conducted as an airplane race. Three suspended airplanes will mark the progress of the "flight" or drive.

Sweet Briar Officials Get Honorary Degrees

Sweet Briar, Va., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Two officials of Sweet Briar College have been awarded honorary doctors degrees by Columbia University, New York.

Miss Meta Glass, president of the college, received the degree of doctor of letters in recognition of her educational work in New York and Virginia, and H. Parker Willis, a member of the board of overseers of the college, the degree doctor of laws. Dr. Willis is editor of the New York Journal of Commerce and professor of banking at Columbia. The degrees were awarded in connection with the celebration of the 175th anniversary of the founding of Columbia.

ALEXANDRIA POLL MAY TOTAL 3,000

Democrats Voice Optimism on Eve of Election in Four Wards.

PRISONER BREAKS JAIL

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Democrats confidently predict victory in the election today. The polls will open at 6:40 a. m. and close at 5:03 p. m. There are 5,512 qualified voters on the ward lists and the vote is expected to reach 3,000, more than ordinarily cast in a general election.

Dr. John Garland Pollard, of Williamsburg, Democratic candidate for governor, is expected to register a heavy vote, in spite of the claims of the Republicans and coalitionists that Dr. William Mosely Brown, coalition candidate, will win. James H. Price, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, who is well known in Alexandria, is opposing Callom B. Jones, Republican, of Hanover.

Three contests for local offices will add interest to the race. They are: For clerk of the Corporation Court, Elliott F. Hoffman, incumbent; Miss Cora Duffey and W. Selden Washington. Hoffman holds his office by virtue of having been appointed to succeed the late Nevelle S. Greenaway, and has never before been before the electorate, Miss Duffy was for a number of years a clerk in the office of the clerk of the court, and is the first woman to seek election in Alexandria. Washington has been engaged in the real estate business for several years, and has been making an active campaign.

Albert V. Bryan, who was appointed Commonwealth's attorney to succeed William P. Woolls when the latter was elevated to the bench of the Corporation Court, is opposed by John Barton Phillips, Republican, chairman of the city Republican committee and for several years United States Commissioner for the Eastern District of Virginia. Bryan, as city attorney, had charge of the recent suit of Alexandria for the annexation of a portion of Arlington and Fairfax Counties, which resulted in a victory for Alexandria.

The Democratic nominees who are unopposed are Charles H. Callahan, for commissioner of revenue; William S. Snow, civil and police justice; Roger C. Sullivan, city treasurer, and Robert H. Cox, city sergeant.

The voting places are as follows:

First Ward, the Armory, Royal street between Prince and Duke streets.

Second Ward, 110 North Royal street.

Third Ward, Odd Fellows Hall, Columbus street between Cameron and Queen streets.

Third Ward, Rosemont precinct, Rosemont station, now used as a subpolice station, for voters living west of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad tracks and north of King street. This is the first time this station has been used as a voting place, the Third Ward having only recently been divided into two precincts for the convenience of the voters.

Fourth Ward, Friendship Engine House, Alfred street between King and Prince streets.

Joseph Billingsley, Commonwealth attorney of King George County, has asked the Alexandria police to look for a colored youth, 16 or 17 years old, giving the name of Louis Taylor and claiming Alexandria as his home, who was arrested Sunday in King George on the charge of stealing an automobile from Hampton Tate, of that county, and escaped from the police in the car on the way to jail.

John Sabol, a soldier from Fort Humphreys, who had served one week of a 90-day sentence on a prohibition charge, has escaped from the city jail.

Dr. Magel Ewing, of the University of Virginia, will hold a meeting at Jefferson School at 4 o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of arranging an extension course of English for teachers. The minimum number of teachers required to form such a class is 15. This class would give additional credits in English.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Post, of 415 Burnett avenue, Syracuse, N. Y., were treated at the Alexandria Hospital yesterday for cuts and bruises received when the automobile in which they were riding overturned on the Fort Humphreys road, just south of this city. Both were able to leave the hospital later in the day.

Ted Harrell is program chairman for the meeting of the local Rotary Club today at the George Mason Hotel.

Superintendent R. C. Bowton, of the public schools, has announced that a rifle range will be established in the basement of the Jefferson School building for the R. O. T. C. of the Alexandria High School.

Extension of Camp Site Offer to Be Sought

Special to The Washington Post.

Middleburg, Va., Nov. 4.—The Loudoun Camp Meeting Association held a meeting to discuss the advisability of holding camp meeting next year, which will mark the end of the 99-year lease which the association holds on the camp site, or of accepting an offer made by Mrs. W. A. Robinson, present owner of the property, that she contribute $150 toward the immediate removal of the camp equipment and the reversal of the site to her estate.

The association concluded that it would be impossible to remove the auditorium and cottages from the camp ground before spring and instructed the secretary to so advise Mrs. Robinson and ask for an extension of her offer to June 1.

Clarendon Wife Dies At Charlottesville

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 4.—Mrs. Wilburn Lee Murphy, 19, of Clarendon, Arlington County, Va., died yesterday at a local sanitarium, where she had been under treatment since August 18. The body was sent today to Clarksburg, W. Va., where the funeral and interment will take place tomorrow.

Mrs. Murphy was before marriage a Miss Smith, daughter of Benjamin F. and Lena L. (Malmsby) Smith, of Clarksburg, W. Va. Besides her husband, she is survived by both parents.

It would cost you more than $1,500 to send a letter to each person who buys The Washington Post every day. To reach them with a large sized ad in this newspaper would cost you only a fraction of a cent per person.

Jury Panel Drawn In Charles County

No Important Cases Seen on November Docket of Court.

Special to The Washington Post.

La Plata, Md., Nov. 4.—W. Mitchell Digges, chief judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit of Maryland, has drawn the following to serve as jurors for the November term of court in Charles County. Court will convene on Monday, the 18th.

No big cases are listed for this session of court. It will probably take ten days or two weks to clear the docket. Jurors drawn are:

James G. Cooksey, Archibald Robey, James A. Cox, J. Berry Oliver, Richard P. Murphy, J. Sydney Posey, James M. Wheeler, P. Preston Williams, Almer McDaniel, William H. Hodges, James A. Linkins, Francis P. Hamilton (Fourth District), Joseph H. Howard, Daniel W. Benton, William A. Dyson, Archie M. Davis, George J. Turner, Frank Tibbs, Frank E. Cooksey, Arthur W. Berry, Lawrence W. Farrell, James A. Freeman, Reginald A. Farrell, John Roberts, P. Dudley Davis, George Warren, Allen P. Clagett, James B. Warder, J. Holland Adams, W. Worthington Milstead, William J. Wheatley, James T. Bowling, John L. Wathen, Anthony Muschette, Webster P. Hayden, William C. Bowie, J. Mitchell Simpson, William P. Jameson, J. Wesley Padgett, John S. Irwin, John R. Lomax, Robert O'Keeffe, Edwin M. Gardiner, Thomas W. Wills, Pliny P. Gates, Oscar B. Jameson, Albert S. Elder and Middleton L. Shannon.

NAVAL OFFICER, GIRL HAD SUITE TOGETHER

NORTHCUTT STILL SILENT

Vancouver, British Columbia, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Mrs. Sarah Gibson, landlady, told authorities here today that Lieut. Harold Wilson Northcutt, missing United States naval officer from Norfolk, Va., now held in custody at the Puget Sound Navy Yard at Bremerton, Wash., registered with a woman at a rooming house on Pendrill street here a week ago.

The pair obtained a suite at the landlady's place last Monday, authorities quoted Mrs. Gibson as saying. They paid one month's rent in advance. She thought they were man and wife and they were "always very affectionate," she said. Mrs. Gibson did not know they had left until early today, when she forced an entrance to their rooms through a window on a veranda.

Clothes and books, which Mrs. Gibson said were the woman's personal effects, were found in Northcutt's rooms. There were two nurses' uniforms in the bureau. Among letters were two cards signifying that Miss Laura Clements was a nurse in good standing at the University of New York; the other that she registered as No. 20928 at Niagara Falls Hospital.

A note on a small piece of paper was also found in the room occupied by the couple. It read:

"Married in Seattle Monday. Address H. W. Northcutt, letter follows." The number 13 was on the note, but was scratched out. The word "address" and the name "H. W. Northcutt" also were scratched out.

Authorities here said Northcutt undoubtedly volunteered to return to the United Sates, as he could not be taken on a desertion charge without the Government's appealing to British Columbia officials.

Bremerton, Wash., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Refusing to discuss his predicament and disdaining the offers of fellow naval officers to act as his counsel, Lieut. Harold Wilson Northcutt, listed as missing from the naval station at Norfolk, Va., since October 22, was in custody here tonight and held for further orders.

Rum Charge Made After Auto Crash

Driver Is Held When Gin Is Found in Car; Four Persons Hurt.

An automobile accident in which five persons were injured and the car demolished on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard, just north of Laurel, Md., led to the arrest of the driver yesterday after 30 quarts of gin were found in the automobile.

George Alton King, of Nutley, N. J., was the driver of the car. He told Maryland State policemen, Sergt. C. E. Duckworth and J. E. Wheeler, that he lost control and that the car crashed over a 60-foot embankment. His wife and three Washingtonians were slightly injured. They are Miss Felicia Barrows, Mis an Suleski and Robert Paul, of the Colonial Hotel.

The injured were taken to St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore, and King was turned over to Capt. Higgins, of the Fort McHenry Federal dry unit. The accident occurred early yesterday morning.

ROCKVILLE PLANS FIVE-DAY FOX HUNT

Events Begin at Sunrise Today and Concludes With Bench Show.

COURT CLERK REPORTS

A meeting was held last night in Rockville to complete final arrangements for the five-day fox hunt, which will be held in the vicinity of Rockville, beginning at sunrise today under the auspices of the Maryland Fox Hunters Association. Included in the program are five days of chases, a bench show and a grand ball, the latter two events taking place at the Rockville fair grounds.

Horses and hounds will be lodged at the fair grounds for the week, with the huntsmen divided among the hotels and private homes of Rockville. The field trials will begin this morning with the Derby, or contest of young hounds. This event probably will consume two days, this being elimination day and tomorrow the finals. About 65 dogs are expected to compete in this event, according to Clarence L. Gilpin, who is to act as master of hounds.

Approximately 150 hounds are expected to compete in the "all age" contest, which is expected to begin Thursday, and this event is expected to consume three days. The huntsmen and their hounds will leave Rockville each morning in time for the hounds to be cast at sunrise. The chases will be held on the farm of Thomas D. Griffith, at Potomac, an dthe Lay Hill neighborhood. They will be conducted under the rule of the National Fox Hunters Association.

The bench show will be held at the Rockville Fair Grounds Friday afternoon, with B. H. Brewster, jr., as Ten experts will act as field judges, Z. McCubbin Waters, president of the association, has announced. Three challenge cups and a number of other handsome prizes have been offered for the field trials and the bench show.

A grand ball will be held Thursday night in the big exhibition hall at the fair grounds. Otto C. Trundle is chairman of the committee in charge with Mrs. Charles G. Holland and Mrs. George M. Hunter, of Rockville, as chaperones.

A total of 347 licenses to hunt have been issued at the office of Preston B. Ray, clerk of the Circuit Court for Montgomery County, in the month of October. The licenses were divided as follows: 206 county licenses, 101 resident State-wide licenses and 40 nonresident State-wide licenses. Six resident anglers licenses were issued in the same period.

There were 839 legal instruments filed in the month of October, according to Ray's report. They were divided as follows: 284 deeds, 159 mortgages and releases, 126 deeds of trust, 270 bills of sale.

Montgomery County Chapter, of the American Red Cross, has "gone over the top" in the Christmas bag sector, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. J. Somervell Dawson, of Rockville, secretary of the county chapter. Mrs. Dawson yesterday completed the shipment of 101 Christmas bags intended for the United States soldiers in the Canal Zone.

The chapter's quota was 75 bags but an additional 26 was sent in by the members of the county. Each bag contains suhc nonperishable gifts as writing paper, pens, pencils, cigarettes, playing cards, combs and brushes. A Christmas card is enclosed with a postcard which the recipient is expected to return in acknowledgment.

A brief business meeting of the Blair Citizens Association in the Takoma Park-Silver Spring High School tonight at 8 o'clock will be followed by a Hallowe'en party. A men's burlesque show will be one of the features of the party. Those in charge include: M. M. Sanford, president of the association: Guy Murdell and Mrs. Bruce Snowden.

The courthouse building committee has completed an agreement with Otto W. Anderson, county agent, for his property on the square west of the present courthouse which is needed for the erection of a modern courthouse and jail, it was announced yesterday. The price to be paid is $27,765.

This is the last section in the block and the agreement is expected to result in prompt beginning of construction work. Condemnation proceedings had been instituted in Circuit Court at Rockville against the property. Anderson originally asked $38,000 for the property and the county offered $18,000. After Anderson refused an offer of $25,000, the condemnation proceedings were instituted.

As in the case of the several other land owners who insisted upon what they termed "fair prices" for their property and refused to accept prices set by the committee, the county has a large degree accepted Anderson's valuation. Agreements have been reached with all of the owners of property on the block and the courthouse building committee will be expected to take important steps at a meeting which is expected to be announced today by the county commissioners at their weekly meeting.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

GOVERNMENTAL figures show a total of 290 individual incomes of more than $1,000,000.

"Figures," mused Luella. "Always it's figures. That's the trouble with this country—too many figures."

In the same paper we read where short skirts are responsible for an annual increase of $45,000,000 in the value of silk hosiery.

"Who gets up all these figures?" asked Luella.

To begin with, the Government. The silk hosiery report was made by the industrial research department of the Wharton School of Finance. "And here's another little item," I shouted, "compiled by Roger Babson——"

"Roger Babson," she repeated. "He's the fellow who first went wild on statistics."

* * * *

"ON statistics?"

"Yes. He's responsible for the national disease."

"The national disease? What's that?"

"Babsonitis."

It was a new one on me. I'd never heard of Babsonitis. So it was my turn to ask a question.

"What is Babsonitis?"

"Babsonitis," explained Luella, "is a rush of figures to the head."

Perhaps she's right. We are going mad with figures. Just for fun, we chalked up the day's news dealing with them. Almost every headline had figures in it:

Three Missing Navy Fliers Found Safe on Ocean; Orders for 21 Aircraft to Take Off on Hunt Are Cancelled.

Fire on Virginia Shore Burns 1-Story Shack.

BOLD robbery nets furs worth $5,000.

Eleven farm organizations make plea for duty on hides.

"Just a political move to save their skins," said Luella, pointing out one more headline with figures: Japan gets ready for five-power naval conference.

All of these were on the front page.

"You see what it means, don't you?" asked Luella. "We have become figure minded. We eat, sleep, drink, and talk statistics. Art means nothing, only how many artists paid income tax last year—and how much. Instead of culture, we cultivate figures. It isn't what or who you are, but what are you worth? How much do you weigh? Figures!"

SHE worked herself into a frenzy.

"Luella, dear," I pleaded, "what good will this do, getting all hot and bothered over——"

"Over what?"

"Over figures."

"That reminds me," she remarked. "I need a new frock. Look up your bank account and see how we stand."

Say. We haven't been standing for some time; since they knocked us down a month ago. As I dragged out the sad statistics, I couldn't help smile—though 'twas a sickly one.

"Read these figures and weep." I told her.

And she did. You can't get away from it. Figures have a demoralizing effect—especially these bank statements.

BYRD GETS OVATION IN HOME TOWN TALK

Governor Defends His Record and Praises Pollard in Winchester Rally.

G. O. P. PROFFER IS TOLD

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 4.—John Garland Pollard, Democratic nominee for governor in tomorrow's election, enjoys the unique distinction of not only being the regular nominee of his own party, but has been tacitly indorsed by the Republicans and also the anti-Smith Democrats, declared Gov. Harry F. Byrd in a speech before a home-town audience tonight.

Gov. Byrd referred to the speech made here last week by Col. Jennings Wise, Republican campaigner of Richmond, who revealed for the first time on the stump in the campaign now closing that he (Wise) went to Pollard last fall, "begged him to vote for Hoover, and assured him that if he did he would be the next Governor of Virginia and that the Republican party would support him." Wise added that "Col. Henry W. Anderson, President Hoover and others would back him if he would run for governor on the Republican ticket," Byrd declared.

Gov. Byrd said there had been no change in the attitude of Dr. Pollard on any public questions since the Republican leaders "begged" him to throw his influence to Hoover in the presidential campaign and that "he is the same man in every respect now that he was then. "Failing in their efforts to induce Pollard to go over to the Republicans," the governor said, "they began attacking him on all sides."

The governor said he was glad Col. Wise had spoken in Winchester. "The voters have now heard, from a paid propagandist, the slanderous character of the campaign that has been waged against the Democratic party," he said. Wise said he had come "to tell the truth about Harry Byrd in his own town" characterizing the State government as being "rotten, nefarious and filthy."

Byrd replied in detail to charges against his administration by the Republicans.

The city's largest theater was packed, with scores standing even before the rally arranged by the Democratic committee began. A concert by the Winchester Concert Band preceded the speaking. Gov. Byrd was introduced by Charles P. McVicar, a merchant and boyhood friend and associate of the executive. Delegations were present from all sections of the Shenandoah Valley and from counties east of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Thunderous applause and cheering greeted Byrd as he strode to the front of the stage to speak.

Deputy Wounds Self While Drawing Gun

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4.—With a bullet wound in the abdomen, accidentally self inflicted, Deputy Sheriff Earle Findley, of Mayo, Anne Arundel County, is in a precarious condition at Emergency Hospital here tonight.

Findley, also is employed as night watchman at Beverly Beach, a summer resort on Chesapeake Bay. The injured man explained that his finger became wedged in the trigger ring as he attempted to draw his revolver from its holster, while at the beach last night, and the gun was discharged. He walked to his automobile, drove a mile and picked up a friend to accompany him to the hospital. He was exhausted from the loss of blood. Dr. J Oliver Purvis, who removed the bullet, holds hope for Findley's recovery.

Man and Wife, Injured In Crossing Accident

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Nov. 4.—Otis King and wife, both colored, of Madison, Va., narrowly escaped death when their car was struck by a train on the grade crossing at Inlet, 2 miles north of here, early today. Their car, a large sedan, was almost across the track when hit by the train and was practically demolished. The victims were taken to the University Hospital at Charlottesville, by Dr. Otis Marshall, railroad surgeon, who tonight said that they both had a good chance of recovery.

This crossing has been the scene of other wrecks, three boys having been killed there less than two years ago, in a similar accident.

WARRANTS ISSUED IN GASTONIA DEATH

Sixteen Accused of Killing of Mrs. Wiggins During Anti-Red Drive.

HEARINGS TO BE PUBLIC

Gastonia, N. C., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Sixteen persons were ordered arrested here today in bench warrants issued by Judge P. A. McElroy, who is sitting as committing magistrate in the probe into the death of Ella May Wiggins, who was shot during an anticommunistic demonstration here September 14.

Issuance of the warrants and the announcement that 40 or more witnesses will appear tomorrow morning when court reconvenes, was the first step in the investigation. Judge McElroy stated at the opening session that "the status of the case requires full publicity."

The statement was concluded by the announcement from the judge that there would be no secret sessions.

Names of those for whom the warrants were issued were:

Yates Gamble, Fred Morrow, L. M. Sossaman, Jack Carver, Horace Wheeler, William Boyters, Lowry Davis, O. H. Lundsford, Troy Jones, Theodore Simms, George Fowler, Howard West, Roy Carver, L. H. Thompson, W. H. Holbrooks, and E. F. Haney.

All of the men, the warrants charge, "did conspire, confederate and agree" to intimidate and force back against their wishes Mrs. Wiggins and the others in the truck, in which she was killed, also that they entered into a conspiracy to and "did and murder" Mrs. Wiggins. Deputy Sheriff M. V. Wiggins will serve the warrants.

Today's session opened the third investigation into the death of Mrs. Wiggins. Coroner J. F. Wallace and his jury held six sessions and bound over nine men for the grand jury, but "no true bills!" were returned, and the investigation was thought to have closed. However, Gov. O. Max Gardner ordered Judge McElroy to sit as a committing magistrate in a new investigation.

Maryland Man Awarded $300 for Finding Body

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 4.—The jury today here in the suit of Tilden Fenton Greenwalt, of Washington County, against S. L. Blye, trading as the National Detective Agency, for $500, the amount of reward alleged to have been posted by the defendant for the recovery of the body of Charles William Moore, drowned in the Potomac River, brought in a verdict of $300.

Greenwalt contended that bills offering $300 reward were posted in the vicinity of Harpers Ferry and that later the amount was increased to $500. Greenwalt found the body on an island in the Potomac, March 22, 1926. The defendant claimed the reward was never authorized by its officers or agents.

Big Loudoun Vote Is Expected Today

Unusual Number of Ballots Forecast as Democrats Predict Victory.

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 4.—It is expected that voters of Loudoun County will turn out in unusually large numbers at the general election tomorrow. An intensive campaign has been carried on in Loudoun, with speaking by both the Democrat and coalition candidates in most of the leading towns.

Democratic leaders predict that Loudoun County will give Dr. John Garland Pollard 1,000 majority, with a possible 1,200. Coalition leaders have fought valiantly for their candidates, however.

Leesburg is expected to roll up its usual heavy Democratic vote, as there has been no fluctuation among the voters here, neither in this campaign nor in the presidential campaign last fall.

Wilbur C. Hall, candidate for the House of Delegates to succeed himself, has no opposition.

Loudoun U. D. C. to Meet.

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 4 (Special).—Loudoun Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will hold the regular monthly meeting Wednesday in the Peoples National Bank at 2:30 p. m. On Friday the chapter will have a miscellaneous sale at Littlejohns Drug Store beginning at 10 a. m.

ARLINGTON COUNTY TO POLL HUGE VOTE

Party Leaders Are Confident as Hot Campaign Ends; 5,000 Total Seen.

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With arrangements completed, and one of the hottest campaigns ever waged in Arlington County closed, voters of the country are prepared to go to the polls today to register their choice as to who will preside over the affairs of the State for the next four years. Indications are that the vote will total 5,000.

In a statement given out last night by Democratic County Chairman William L. Bragg, he said: "I am confident of the success of the party all over the State, and believe that we shall also carry Arlington County both for the State candidates and Hugh Reid, candidate for reelection to the House of Delegates from Arlington County."

Republican County Chairman J. E. Spaulding said: "The entire State Republican committee strongly stresses the need of a large majority for Brown in Arlington County to assure the carrying of the Eighth congressional district." Spaulding freely pred
